Badger Urges "Hot Pursuit" Of Red Fliers

Would Let Allied Fliers Cross Yalu

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Vice Adm. Oscar Badger urged today that Allied planes be permitted to cross into Manchuria in "hot pursuit" of Red Chinese fliers who attacked United Nations forces in Korea.

Allied pilots are now barred from crossing the Yalu River, the boundary between Korea and Manchuria, under any circumstances.

Badger said U. N. aircraft should be allowed to "pursue and destroy" enemy planes once they cross the Yalu on hostile missions in Korea.

But he said he would not advocate any immediate bombing of enemy bases in Manchuria — as proposed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur — and to that extent, at least, Badger supported the administration's strategy of a "limited war" in Korea.

Badger made his "hot pursuit" recommendation near the close of his one-day testimony before the Senate's MacArthur inquiry committee.

JCS Favored "Hot Pursuit"

He had told the senators a few hours earlier that "for the time being" he would limit military operations to the region south of the Yalu River.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) told Badger that the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and the State Department had approved "hot pursuit" but U. N. Allies vetoed it on the ground that it might expand the war.

Badger replied he didn't know there had been such approval, but he said:

"If that is so, why, I certainly would continue every possible effort to put that (hot pursuit) into effect, because I agree with it. I believe in it, I think it is a great morale factor, and I think that everything points to it."

Badger told the committee he can't understand why Allied planes haven't bombed the enemy's supply base at Rashin in Korea, 30 miles south of the Russian border.

Hurley Is Next Witness

Previous testimony has brought out that Secretary of State Acheson "vigorously protested" after the military high command staged the first bombing raid on Rashin.

Acheson himself testified that the base was too near the Soviet frontier to run the risk of bombing it.

Badger indicated that if the present strategy in Korea does not induce the Reds to open truce talks "pretty soon," he would favor stronger measures.

Badger was the first witness since the inquiry began to finish his testimony in a single day. Patrick J. Hurley, former U. S. ambassador to China, is to testify at 9 a.m. EST, tomorrow.

23 Perish As Fishing Boat Upsets, Sinks

ENSENADA, Mex., June 19 (AP) — Loss of 23 lives in one of the worst boat tragedies of the Lower California coast was reported today.

The 23 went down with a boat carrying 37 Mexican men in the treacherous Cedros Island channel Saturday night.

Fishermen of this port, on hearing the tragic news, crossed themselves and resolved to treat the channel with even greater respect.

Caught by the swift current and tossing seas between Bonitas Islands and Cedros, the fishing boat Calmex II, only 45 feet long, turned over and sank at 8 p.m.

The crew of three, including Capt. Fausto Sylva, were trapped inside the boat, along with many of the passengers.

Those on the deck were thrown into the water. Two managed to swim more than two miles to Cedros Island. They gave the alarm three hours after the boat sank.

When rescuing boats reached the scene, they found 12 men clinging to debris and one small boat.

President Signs Draft Bill, Names UMT Commission

Measure Lowers Minimum Age To 18½

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—President Truman today signed a bill lowering the draft age to 18½, and nominated a five-man commission to lay the foundation for universal military training.

Selective Service will remain in effect for four more years under the new law, and the period of service in the armed forces is extended from 21 months to 24. Young men must register at the age of 18. They may be inducted six months after registration if the supply of eligible men in older categories is exhausted.

UMT Commission Named

For the new National Security Training Commission, Mr. Truman selected James W. Wadsworth, former Republican House member from New York; Adm. Thomas C. Kincaid, retired; Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain; William L. Clayton, former undersecretary of state, and Karl T. Compton, former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Their names have been submitted to the Senate for approval. As soon as confirmation is voted, members of the commission will proceed to draw up the blueprints for universal military training (UMT). They must submit a code of UMT standards to Congress within four months.

If Congress approves this groundwork, the nation will be well on the way to its first universal military training system. "With good luck," Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said recently, "there is no reason why much of the machinery for this system should not be well along before the end of this session of Congress."

Marshall Witnesses Signing

UMT is a long range program, designed for application after the present military emergency. All eligible youths would be brought into it at the age of 18 to take six months' training and then to stand by for seven years and six months in the reserves.

Secretary of Defense Marshall, Earl J. McGrath, commissioner of education, and congressional leaders attended the signing ceremonies in the White House.

Bitter Fighting Erupts In East Korea

Allied Planes Rout Reds 3rd Straight Day

Enemy Nuisance Raider Reappears

TOKYO, Wednesday, June 20 (AP)—Bitter mountain fighting erupted on the eastern end of the Korean war front Tuesday while the Chinese Communist air force lost its challenge of Allied air superiority for the third straight day.

The Fifth Air Force announced that four Russian-made MIG jets were damaged when 30 enemy planes jumped 27 U. S. Sabre jets near the Manchurian border. Dogfights blazed briefly from 30,000 feet on down unitl the Reds broke off and fled north to safety.

That brought the bag of enemy planes destroyed or damaged since Sunday to 18, including six positively destroyed.

After Tuesday's action the Fifth Air Force failed to make its usual announcement that all U. S. planes returned safely, hinting there may have been some Allied losses.

"Bed-Check Charley" Reappears

During the last three days a total of 195 MIGs and Sables have traded shots over so-called "MIG Alley" near the Yalu River in extreme Northwest Korea. It was the most determined appearance of the red-nosed MIGs in several months, but apparently was no more successful than all the other encounters.

"Bed-Check Charley", a single-engined Communist nuisance raider, was out again early today. The plane bombed and strafed the Uijongbu area about 10 miles north of Seoul.

Censorship blacked out details but AP Correspondent Nate Polowetzky said it was believed "heavier and more serious" than previous attacks.

In the last week light "heckler" raids have been made on the Suwon airfield, Inchon tidal basin, Kimpo airfield and Yongdungpo, a suburb of Seoul. Damage was negligible.

Crest Changes Hands 6 Times

In the ground war Eighth Army troops slugged it out with last-ditch Communist fighters for command of a broad, rolling valley in East-Central Korea.

Opposing forces fought at grenade-tossing distance on the highest crest of a sweeping ridgeline, overlooking the valley called "Punchbowl", north of Inje. (This

Gamblers Face Contempt Action

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Gamblers Samuel "Gameboy" Miller and Morris "Mushy" Wexler were threatened with contempt action today after the Senate crime committee held a futile all-day session with men it has named in connection with a Cleveland racket syndicate.

"I do feel the committee should consider citing Miller and Wexler for contempt," Chairman O'Conor (D-Md) told reporters after announcing meager results from the closed-door hearing.

Committee Counsel Richard Moser said Wexler was "cooperative about non-essentials" but "just wouldn't testify about anything that could be of use to the committee." O'Conor added that Miller declined to give details about his associations.

Also questioned was Samuel T. Haas, described by the committee as lawyer for many operations of the Cleveland group. Moser said it was unlikely the lawyer would be cited for contempt, though he reported Haas would not discuss his net worth and claimed the immunity of attorney-client relationship on questions about the syndicate.

Membership In Boy Scouts "Discouraged" By Church

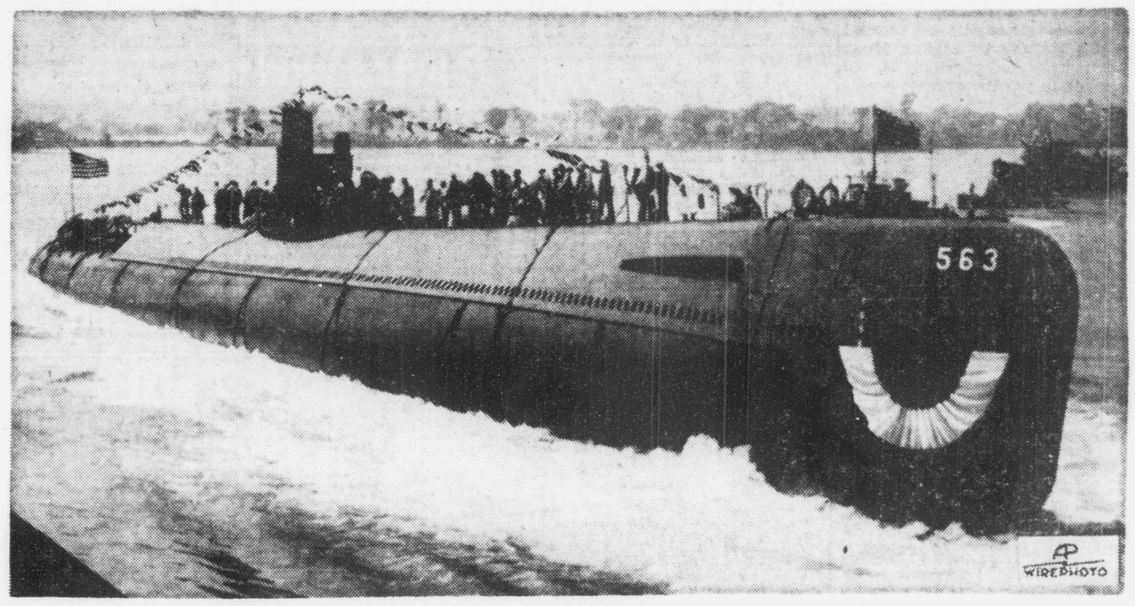
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 19 (AP) — The Christian Reformed Church decided today to "discourage" its youth from joining the Boy Scouts of America and to urge instead participation in its own boys' club movement.

The decision was announced at the annual 10-day meeting of the synod, top governing body of the church which has some 155,000 members in the United States and Canada.

Rev. Martin Monsma of Grand Rapids, Synod vice president, said the synod acted on recommendation of a special committee which studied the problem for a year. The decision is advisory, rather than legislative, he pointed out.

"This does not mean that we forbid participation in the Boy Scout movement, but only that we discourage it in favor of our own youth organization," he explained. The church already has a denominational club for boys.

Synod members agreed with the committee's charges that the Boy Scout movement lacks "the adequate religious basis" which the denomination seeks to establish in its own youth programs.



151st Submarine For 151-Year-Old Shipyard

The USS Tang, a snorkel-equipped submarine, slides stern-first into the Piscataqua River after launching at the U. S. Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, N. H., yesterday. The Tang is the 151st sub built at the 151-year-old Navy yard. She is named after the original Tang of World War II which sank 24 Japanese ships before she was herself sunk by one of her own torpedoes circling back again.

Improved Ethics For Government Urged At Hearing

Comptroller General Warns Against Waste

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The nation needs a set of higher moral standards lest it embark on another "spree of waste and profligacy" rivalling that of World War II, Comptroller General Lindsay Warren said today.

There has been "an undoubted weakening or moral standards" in government and out, he told a Senate Labor subcommittee studying the question of governmental ethics.

Congress Code Suggested

Another witness, Sen. Benton (D-Conn), urged effective curbs on huge campaign spending, and a 10-point code to govern members of Congress. Among other things, the code would pledge legislators to stay out of public issues in which they have direct financial stakes, and to try to represent constituents "in the perspective of the total national interest."

On the subject of campaign spending, Benton declared the present corrupt practices laws are so full of loopholes candidates can "drive a bulldozer" through them.

The hearing grew out of recent exposures of alleged graft and influence rings in federal executive departments but both Benton and Warren said there is room for improvement at the Capitol too.

Commission Proposed

The immediate issue is a resolution for creation of a commission of leading citizens to carry the study of ethics in government and propose steps to improve the standards.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) is author of the resolution, which grew out of a 15-month investigation centered on loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Fulbright and some of his colleagues made charges of political favoritism.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill), a backer of Fulbright's proposal, heads the hearing subcommittee.

Brannan Fires Official Of PMA

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Secretary Brannan today discharged Guy W. Cravens, 52, administrative assistant of the Agriculture Department's production and Marketing Administration commodity office at Minneapolis, for alleged "unethical" conduct. The discharge becomes effective Friday.

A spokesman for Brannan said the action was indirectly connected with the recent discharge, on the same grounds, of E. M. Rowlands, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation office at Minneapolis. The RFC charged that Rowlands had made money in connection with storage of surplus farm products in the government-owned Badger Ordnance Plant at Merrimac, Wis.

The spokesman said Gravens had a close relationship with Rowlands and an associate, Jule Marachowsky, in the highly profitable storage operations. He said the relationship involved the receipt of favors.

Cravens has formally denied any wrong doing. He has a right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission. He is a war veteran and a native of Milaca, Minn.

Mobilization Chiefs Protest As Senate Committee Votes Curbs On Price Rollbacks

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee voted today to forbid price rollbacks below the January-February level. The move would cancel most of the future cuts planned for beef.

Tonight the House Banking Committee, in another blow at the administration's economic controls program, voted to relax credit restrictions on automobiles, television and radio, washing machines and dryers, other household appliances and house repairs.

The action set off a strong protest from mobilization officials, led by Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston who said it will be "bad news to every American housewife." Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said it "would reward those people who had no regard for attempts to stabilize the economy under voluntary controls" by propping up their "unjustified" price increases.

But Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of the Banking Committee contended the action would spur production by removing uncertainties facing producers and would thus help combat inflation.

Shortly after Maybank's committee voted, the House Banking Committee handed the administration a second setback. That group voted down a proposal to give price stabilizers authority to license business operators as a means of controlling prices. Such powers were used in World War II and permitted the government to shut down businesses which violated ceiling orders.

Both actions came as the two committees neared the end of their job of rewriting the Defense Production Act, which carries control powers, to extend the law past its present expiration date of June 30. Both groups hoped to finish the chore tomorrow and get bills out.

The Senate committee's pricing plan, if approved by the Senate and House, would prevent DiSalle from setting a price ceiling below the average level of Jan. 24-Feb. 24, 1951, unless the market price already was lower. In that case the ceiling could not be below the level just before the pricing order came out.

DiSalle, who already has cut live cattle prices 10 per cent, has decreed additional cuts of 4½ per cent Aug. 1 and 4½ per cent Oct. 1.

Along with the new price rule today, the Senate committee approved more liberal installment credit on purchases of automobiles. The one-third down payment requirement is retained but the payoff time is extended from 15 months to 18. The committee refused to liberalize the rules on other items such as household appliances.

"Small" Shipment Of American Arms Sent To Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The United States has sent a "small" shipment of arms to Marshal Tito's Communist Yugoslavia, the Defense Department announced late today.

A spokesman said the shipment included rifles, grenades, and other small arms and ammunition, mostly from Army surplus stocks, but he declined to estimate their value. Artillery was not included.

The announcement marked a new relationship with the Balkan country, at one time considered a Russian satellite. Later Yugoslavia broke with Moscow. In this role she has moved closer to support from the U. S. and other free nations.

House To OK Tax Hike This Week

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The biggest tax increase in American history was ticketed today for swift approval by the House this week.

The $7,200,000,000 measure is due to reach a final vote Thursday or Friday, with no basic changes permitted under procedure approved today by the House Rules Committee.

Debate will begin tomorrow if the administration leaders have their way.

The clearance given the bill by the Rules Committee will allow only two days of general debate, ending at 4 p. m. on the second day.

Individual members will be prohibited from offering amendments on the floor, although the Ways and Means Committee which developed the legislation can propose any technical or clarifying changes it deems desirable. This, in the lawmakers' slang, is known as a "gag rule" and was so referred to in a two-hour open hearing before the Rules Committee.

Three Guilty In Draft Conspiracy

BALTIMORE, June 19 (AP) — John J. Comi, convicted Baltimore bookie, was found guilty tonight of draft-bribery charges and sentenced to six years in prison and fined $2,000.

A Federal Court jury convicted Comi and two co-defendants of attempting to keep a man out of the armed forces by paying $450 to a local recruiting sergeant.

Eugene A. Hurley and Sgt. Frank L. Nelson were found guilty with Comi and also received sentences of six years and fines of $2,000 each.

The jury deliberated more than three hours before returning a verdict.

The 46-year-old Comi was subpoenaed today by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee as one of 10 witnesses to be heard in a full-scale probe of Maryland gambling.

The three were charged with conspiring to violate the Selective Service law with a $450 bribe to keep Hurley out of service.

United Air Lines Pilots Ordered To End Walkout

Strike Called Illegal By Mediation Board

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—United Air Lines' 900 pilots struck today and later in the day the National Mediation Board directed the AFL Air Line Pilots Association to end the walkout.

The UAL pilots' strike halted all the company's commercial non-military flights in the United States and its non-military run to Honolulu.

The mediation board in Washington ordered the AFL Air Line Pilots Association to call off the strike, which it termed illegal, but a union spokesman said the walkout is "completely legal."

Union Disagrees

The spokesman, a union officer who asked to remain anonymous, said all legal procedures of the Railway Labor Act—which also governs airline disputes—had been complied with.

The pilots are demanding a limit on work hours and milage and a bigger slice of the "increased productivity" they claim they provide by flying bigger and faster planes.

A spokesman for the striking AFL Air Line Pilots Association said pilots flying the air lift to Korea and transporting vital military cargo in this country are excepted from the walkout.

Thousands Left Stranded

The walkout, at 4:55 a. m. (EST), left thousands of passengers stranded temporarily in cities across the country. NAL attempted to reserve space for them on other airlines or on trains.

The air line normally carries 9,600 passengers in 220 flights daily.

The union's Chicago headquarters said it expected the strike would not affect the operation of other airlines. A spokesman said pilots of other lines will cross strikers' picket lines.

The dispute over pay and working conditions goes back nearly two years. The pilots voted in favor of a walkout on March 30, if necessary to support their demands.

Irate Father Sues Officers In McCarthy Party Aftermath

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 19 (AP)—An irate father has filed a $100,000 damage suit against Sheriff Glen E. Jones and others, claiming he was jailed when he attempted to take his 17-year-old daughter from a party being given by Oil Man Glenn McCarthy.

McCarthy was not named a defendant in the suit filed yesterday by Harry Gilman of Las Vegas. The suit is directed against Sheriff Jones, Deputies E. B. Woodward and Pat Pattengill, the Flamingo Hotel and Moe Sedway.

Gilman's complaint asserted that he learned his daughter, Tobey, was at the Flamingo Hotel last April 28, and that he found her there in a phone booth and asked her to come away with him.

Gilman alleged that a "Mr. Wells," identified as a bodyguard of Glenn McCarthy, Houston, Tex., intervened and said: "She's the guest of Mr. McCarthy's party and is staying."

The girl, the suit added, pleaded with Wells not to harm her father. Gilman stated she returned to the party in the hotel dining room and he asked the sheriff's office for help in removing her.

However, Gilman asserted, he himself was taken to jail by deputies at the request of Sedway, one of the defendants in the suit, and kept there for two days without charge.

Tension Rises After AIOC's Offer Spurned

Britain Will Guard Citizens, Property

TEHRAN, Iran, June 19 (AP)—Iran rejected tonight a British offer of a financial advance as a substitute for the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company profits she demands and talks on the oil nationalization issue broke down in bitter disagreement.

"The talks are broken off," B. R. Jackson of the AIOC negotiating team, told newsmen after a session of an hour and 20 minutes with Iranian officials. "The Iranians insist on their demands and nothing else."

The British-owned company had offered to pay £10,000,000 ($28,000,000) now as an advance toward reaching a "workable agreement" on its future and £3,000,000 ($4,400,000) monthly while the negotiations proceeded, Jackson said. This was to be paid with the understanding the government would keep its hands off company operations.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's government insisted that the company, a billion-dollar concern which has run Iran's oil industry under a concession dated to run until 1993, fulfill the nationalization law he pushed through parliament in March. The government demanded that the company turn over 75 per cent of its profits and bank the rest against future claims.

In their counter-proposal tonight, the British said this was an ultimatum they were unable to accept.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatimi said Mossadegh had called a special cabinet meeting for Wednesday to decide the government's next step.

The breakdown of the talks heightened the crisis over the fate of the company's refinery at Abadan, the world's largest. Iranian officials had been threatening for 48 hours to halt the loading of tankers there if the company turned down the Iranian demands.

(Qualified sources in London said shortly before the crucial meeting began in Tehran that any breakdown in the talks might bring a British decision to stop oil production in Iran and pull out all her workers. These would include technicians and engineers such as Iran lacks.)

Britain Will Use Force To Guard Lives, Property

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Qualified sources said tonight that Britain will use military force to guard the lives and property of her citizens in Iran against any threat to their safety.

They said Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd has power to call in British troops from nearby Middle Eastern territories at once if any sudden dangers arise in the troubled oil regions.

British military leaders in the Middle East have ready a plan to deal with the Iranian situation immediately in the event of its flaring into any kind of violence.

The possibility of Shepherd taking action in the next few hours—pending British Cabinet study of the situation—hangs on whether the Iranians carry out their threat to interfere with the operation of the Abadan refinery of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

An Iranian government spokesman has warned that the valves in the refinery controlling the oil flow will be turned off if the British reject Iran's demand for a settlement of the oil dispute.

The British informants said fires, explosions and flooding could follow this action.

Yugoslav Athletes Ask IRO For Asylum

SALZBURG, Austria, June 19 (AP) —Eight members of the Yugoslav water polo team who disappeared in Austria last week have asked the International Refugee Organization for asylum, it was learned tonight.

The eight swimmers, all Belgrade students, arrived in Salzburg yesterday after having been missing for several days following their disappearance in Innsbruck. They reported to an IRO camp near here, saying they did not want to return to Yugoslavia because they object to Marshal Tito's Communist government. All eight said they wished to join the United States Army.

Allied Planes Rout Reds 3rd Straight Day

Enemy Nuisance Raider Reappears

TOKYO, Wednesday, June 20 (AP) —Bitter mountain fighting erupted on the eastern end of the Korean war front Tuesday while the Chinese Communist air force lost its challenge of Allied air superiority for the third straight day.

The Fifth Air Force announced that four Russian-made MIG jets were damaged when 30 enemy planes jumped 27 U. S. Sabre jets near the Manchurian border. Dogfights blazed briefly from 30,000 feet on down unitl the Reds broke off and fled north to safety.

That brought the bag of enemy planes destroyed or damaged since Sunday to 18, including six positively destroyed.

After Tuesday's action the Fifth Air Force failed to make its usual announcement that all U. S. planes returned safely, hinting there may have been some Allied losses.

"Bed-Check Charley" Reappears

During the last three days a total of 195 MIGs and Sabres have traded shots over so-called "MIG Alley" near the Yalu River in extreme Northwest Korea. It was the most determined appearance of the red-nosed MIGs in several months, but apparently was no more successful than all the other encounters.

"Bed-Check Charley", a single-engined Communist nuisance raider, was out again early today. The plane bombed and strafed the Uijongbu area about 10 miles north of Seoul.

Censorship blacked out details but AP Correspondent Nate Polowetzky said it was believed "heavier and more serious" than previous attacks.

In the last week light "heckler" raids have been made on the Suwon airfield, Inchon tidal basin, Kimpo airfield and Yongdungpo, a suburb of Seoul. Damage was negligible.

Crest Changes Hands 6 Times

In the ground war Eighth Army troops slugged it out with last-ditch Communist fighters for command of a broad, rolling valley in East-Central Korea.

Opposing forces fought at grenade-tossing distance on the highest crest of a sweeping ridgeline, overlooking the valley called "Punchbowl", north of Inje. (This

151st Submarine For 151-Year-Old Shipyard

The USS Tang, a snorkel-equipped submarine, slides stern-first into the Piscataqua River after launching at the U. S. Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, N. H., yesterday. The Tang is the 151st sub built at the 151-year-old Navy yard. She is named after the original Tang of World War II which sank 24 Japanese ships before she was herself sunk by one of her own torpedoes circling back again.

Gamblers Face Contempt Action

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Gamblers Samuel "Gameboy" Miller and Morris "Mushy" Wexler were threatened with contempt action today after the Senate crime committee held a futile all-day session with men it has named in connection with a Cleveland racket syndicate.

"I do feel the committee should consider citing Miller and Wexler for contempt," Chairman O'Conor (D-Md) told reporters after announcing meager results from the closed-door hearing.

Committee Counsel Richard Moser said Wexler was "cooperative about non-essentials" but "just wouldn't testify about anything that could be of use to the committee." O'Conor added that Miller declined to give details about his associations.

Also questioned was Samuel T. Haas, described by the committee as lawyer for many operations of the Cleveland group. Moser said it was unlikely the lawyer would be cited for contempt, though he reported Haas would not discuss his net worth and claimed the immunity of attorney-client relationship on questions about the syndicate.

Membership In Boy Scouts "Discouraged" By Church

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 19 (AP) — The Christian Reformed Church decided today to "discourage" its youth from joining the Boy Scouts of America and to urge instead participation in its own boys' club movement.

The decision was announced at the annual 10-day meeting of the synod, top governing body of the church which has some 155,000 members in the United States and Canada.

Rev. Martin Monsma of Grand Rapids, Synod vice president, said the synod acted on recommendation of a special committee which studied the problem for a year. The decision is advisory, rather than legislative, he pointed out.

"This does not mean that we forbid participation in the Boy Scout movement, but only that we discourage it in favor of our own youth organization," he explained. The church already has a denominational club for boys.

Synod members agreed with the committee's charges that the Boy Scout movement lacks "the adequate religious basis" which the denomination seeks to establish in its own youth programs.

Improved Ethics For Government Urged At Hearing

Comptroller General Warns Against Waste

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The nation needs a set of higher moral standards lest it embark on another "spree of waste and profligacy" rivalling that of World War II, Comptroller General Lindsay Warren said today.

There has been "an undoubted weakening or moral standards" in government and out, he told a Senate Labor subcommittee studying the question of governmental ethics.

Congress Code Suggested

Another witness, Sen. Benton (D-Conn), urged effective curbs on huge campaign spending, and a 10-point code to govern members of Congress. Among other things, the code would pledge legislators to stay out of public issues in which they have direct financial stakes, and to try to represent constituents "in the perspective of the total national interest."

On the subject of campaign spending, Benton declared the present corrupt practices laws are so full of loopholes candidates can "drive a bulldozer" through them.

The hearing grew out of recent exposures of alleged graft and influence rings in federal executive departments but both Benton and Warren said there is room for improvement at the Capitol too.

Commission Proposed

The immediate issue is a resolution for creation of a commission of leading citizens to carry the study of ethics in government and propose steps to improve the standards.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) is author of the resolution, which grew out of a 15-month investigation centered on loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Fulbright and some of his colleagues made charges of political favoritism.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill), a backer of Fulbright's proposal, heads the hearing subcommittee.

Brannan Fires Official Of PMA

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Secretary Brannan today discharged Guy W. Cravens, 52, administrative assistant of the Agriculture Department's production and Marketing Administration commodity office at Minneapolis, for alleged "unethical" conduct. The discharge becomes effective Friday.

A spokesman for Brannan said the action was indirectly connected with the recent discharge, on the same grounds, of E. M. Rowlands, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation office at Minneapolis. The RFC charged that Rowlands had made money in connection with storage of surplus farm products in the government-owned Badger Ordnance Plant at Merrimac, Wis.

The spokesman said Gravens had a close relationship with Rowlands and an associate, Jule Marachowsky, in the highly profitable storage operations. He said the relationship involved the receipt of favors.

Cravens has formally denied any wrong doing. He has a right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission. He is a war veteran and a native of Milaca, Minn.

Mobilization Chiefs Protest As Senate Committee Votes Curbs On Price Rollbacks

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee voted today to forbid price rollbacks below the January-February level. The move would cancel most of the future cuts planned for beef.

Tonight the House Banking Committee, in another blow at the administration's economic controls program, voted to relax credit restrictions on automobiles, television and radio, washing machines and dryers, other household appliances and house repairs.

The action set off a strong protest from mobilization officials, led by Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston who said it will be "bad news to every American housewife." Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said it "would reward those people who had no regard for attempts to stabilize the economy under voluntary controls" by propping up their "unjustified" price increases.

But Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of the Banking Committee contended the action would spur production by removing uncertainties facing producers and would thus help combat inflation.

Shortly after Maybank's committee voted, the House Banking Committee handed the administration a second setback. That group voted down a proposal to give price stabilizers authority to license business operators as a means of controlling prices. Such powers were used in World War II and permitted the government to shut down businesses which violated ceiling orders.

Both actions came as the two committees neared the end of their job of rewriting the Defense Production Act, which carries control powers, to extend the law past its present expiration date of June 30. Both groups hoped to finish the chore tomorrow and get bills out.

The Senate committee's pricing plan, if approved by the Senate and House, would prevent DiSalle from setting a price ceiling below the average level of Jan. 24-Feb. 24, 1951, unless the market price already was lower. In that case the ceiling could not be below the level just before the pricing order came out.

DiSalle, who already has cut live cattle prices 10 per cent, has decreed additional cuts of 4½ per cent Aug. 1 and 4½ per cent Oct. 1.

Along with the new price rule today, the Senate committee approved more liberal installment credit on purchases of automobiles. The one-third down payment requirement is retained but the payoff time is extended from 15 months to 18. The committee refused to liberalize the rules on other items such as household appliances.

United Air Lines Pilots Ordered To End Walkout

Strike Called Illegal By Mediation Board

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—United Air Lines' 900 pilots struck today and later in the day the National Mediation Board directed the AFL Air Line Pilots Association to end the walkout.

The UAL pilots' strike halted all the company's commercial non-military flights in the United States and its non-military run to Honolulu.

The mediation board in Washington ordered the AFL Air Line Pilots Association to call off the strike, which it termed illegal, but a union spokesman said the walkout is "completely legal."

Union Disagrees

The spokesman, a union officer who asked to remain anonymous, said all legal procedures of the Railway Labor Act—which also governs airline disputes—had been complied with.

The pilots are demanding a limit on work hours and milage and a bigger slice of the "increased productivity" they claim they provide by flying bigger and faster planes.

A spokesman for the striking AFL Air Line Pilots Association said pilots flying the air lift to Korea and transporting vital military cargo in this country are excepted from the walkout.

The walkout, at 4:55 a. m. (EST), left thousands of passengers stranded temporarily in cities across the country. NAL attempted to reserve space for them on other airlines or on trains.

The air line normally carries 9,600 passengers in 220 flights daily.

The union's Chicago headquarters said it expected the strike would not affect the operation of other airlines. A spokesman said pilots of other lines will cross strikers' picket lines.

The dispute over pay and working conditions goes back nearly two years. The pilots voted in favor of a walkout on March 30, if necessary to support their demands.

"Small" Shipment Of American Arms Sent To Yugoslavia

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The United States has sent a "small" shipment of arms to Marshal Tito's Communist Yugoslavia, the Defense Department announced late today.

A spokesman said the shipment included rifles, grenades, and other small arms and ammunition, mostly from Army surplus stocks, but he declined to estimate their value. Artillery was not included.

The announcement marked a new relationship with the Balkan country, at one time considered a Russian satellite. Later Yugoslavia broke with Moscow. In this role she has moved closer to support from the U. S. and other free nations.

House To OK Tax Hike This Week

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The biggest tax increase in American history was ticketed today for swift approval by the House this week.

The $7,200,000,000 measure is due to reach a final vote Thursday or Friday, with no basic changes permitted under procedure approved today by the House Rules Committee.

Debate will begin tomorrow if the administration leaders have their way.

The clearance given the bill by the Rules Committee will allow only two days of general debate, ending at 4 p. m. on the second day.

Individual members will be prohibited from offering amendments on the floor, although the Ways and Means Committee which developed the legislation can propose any technical or clarifying changes it deems desirable. This, in the lawmakers' slang, is known as a "gag rule" and was so referred to in a two-hour open hearing before the Rules Committee.

Three Guilty In Draft Conspiracy

BALTIMORE, June 19 (AP) — John J. Comi, convicted Baltimore bookie, was found guilty tonight of draft-bribery charges and sentenced to six years in prison and fined $2,000.

A Federal Court jury convicted Comi and two co-defendants of attempting to keep a man out of the armed forces by paying $450 to a local recruiting sergeant.

Eugene A. Hurley and Sgt. Frank L. Nelson were found guilty with Comi and also received sentences of six years and fines of $2,000 each.

The jury deliberated more than three hours before returning a verdict.

The 46-year-old Comi was subpoenaed today by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee as one of 10 witnesses to be heard in a full-scale probe of Maryland gambling.

The three were charged with conspiring to violate the Selective Service law with a $450 bribe to keep Hurley out of service.

Irate Father Sues Officers In McCarthy Party Aftermath

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 19 (AP)—An irate father has filed a $100,000 damage suit against Sheriff Glen E. Jones and others, claiming he was jailed when he attempted to take his 17-year-old daughter from a party being given by Oil Man Glenn McCarthy.

McCarthy was not named a defendant in the suit filed yesterday by Harry Gilman of Las Vegas. The suit is directed against Sheriff Jones, Deputies E. B. Woodward and Pat Pattengill, the Flamingo Hotel and Moe Sedway.

Gilman's complaint asserted that he learned his daughter, Tobey, was at the Flamingo Hotel last April 28, and that he found her there in a phone booth and asked her to come away with him.

Gilman alleged that a "Mr. Wells," identified as a bodyguard of Glenn McCarthy, Houston, Tex., intervened and said: "She's the guest of Mr. McCarthy's party and is staying."

The girl, the suit added, pleaded with Wells not to harm her father. Gilman stated she returned to the party in the hotel dining room and he asked the sheriff's office for help in removing her.

However, Gilman asserted, he himself was taken to jail by deputies at the request of Sedway, one of the defendants in the suit, and kept there for two days without charge.

Tension Rises After AIOC's Offer Spurned

Britain Will Guard Citizens, Property

TEHRAN, Iran, June 19 (AP)—Iran rejected tonight a British offer of a financial advance as a substitute for the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company profits she demands and talks on the oil nationalization issue broke down in bitter disagreement.

"The talks are broken off," B. R. Jackson of the AIOC negotiating team, told newsmen after a session of an hour and 20 minutes with Iranian officials. "The Iranians insist on their demands and nothing else."

The British-owned company had offered to pay £10,000,000 ($28,000,000) now as an advance toward reaching a "workable agreement" on its future and £3,000,000 ($4,400,000) monthly while the negotiations proceeded, Jackson said. This was to be paid with the understanding the government would keep its hands off company operations.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's government insisted that the company, a billion-dollar concern which has run Iran's oil industry under a concession dated to run until 1993, fulfill the nationalization law he pushed through parliament in March. The government demanded that the company turn over 75 per cent of its profits and bank the rest against future claims.

In their counter-proposal tonight, the British said this was an ultimatum they were unable to accept.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatimi said Mossadegh had called a special cabinet meeting for Wednesday to decide the government's next step.

The breakdown of the talks heightened the crisis over the fate of the company's refinery at Abadan, the world's largest. Iranian officials had been threatening for 48 hours to halt the loading of tankers there if the company turned down the Iranian demands.

(Qualified sources in London said shortly before the crucial meeting began in Tehran that any breakdown in the talks might bring a British decision to stop oil production in Iran and pull out all her workers. These would include technicians and engineers such as Iran lacks.)

Britain Will Use Force To Guard Lives, Property

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Qualified sources said tonight that Britain will use military force to guard the lives and property of her citizens in Iran against any threat to their safety.

They said Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd has power to call in British troops from nearby Middle Eastern territories at once if any sudden dangers arise in the troubled oil regions.

British military leaders in the Middle East have ready a plan to deal with the Iranian situation immediately in the event of its flaring into any kind of violence.

The possibility of Shepherd taking action in the next few hours—pending British Cabinet study of the situation—hangs on whether the Iranians carry out their threat to interfere with the operation of the Abadan refinery of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

An Iranian government spokesman has warned that the valves in the refinery controlling the oil flow will be turned off if the British reject Iran's demand for a settlement of the oil dispute.

The British informants said fires, explosions and flooding could follow this action.

Yugoslav Athletes Ask IRO For Asylum

SALZBURG, Austria, June 19 (AP) —Eight members of the Yugoslav water polo team who disappeared in Austria last week have asked the International Refugee Organization for asylum, it was learned tonight.

The eight swimmers, all Belgrade students, arrived in Salzburg yesterday after having been missing for several days following their disappearance in Innsbruck. They reported to an IRO camp near here, saying they did not want to return to Yugoslavia because they object to Marshal Tito's Communist government. All eight said they wished to join the United States Army.

Plan To Combat Dope Peril Given By Sen. O'Conor

Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor (D) Md., chairman of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, says the most serious problem facing authorities and citizens is the use of narcotics among teenagers. In the following article, O'Conor outlines a plan to combat the dope peril.

By SEN. HERBERT R. O'CONOR

ST. LOUIS.—(INS)—The most challenging problem which faces both law enforcement authorities and private citizenry today is what to do about the teen-age dope peril.

Efforts must be made by law enforcement officials, parent-teacher organizations, civic groups, hospitals and parents to stamp out this dreaded evil that is sweeping across our country and engulfing our youth.

It's up to law enforcement officials to double and triple their efforts to guard against the importation and and wide-spread selling of narcotics to teen-agers.

In the last few years alone the percentage of teen-agers who have become drug addicts has jumped a staggering 600 per cent.

There has to be an educational reawakening to this alarming problem which will point out to young people the inherent dangers of drugs. This must be driven home to teen-agers who might be tempted to start using narcotics or any of the marijuana-type drugs.

It has to be made clear that teen-agers face the greatest possible danger by jeopardizing their health and moral fiber when seeking dope "thrills."

They should know that once they start using such drugs they may become mentally crippled for life. Youths must be warned that the only way to avoid catching the lifelong habit is to keep away from drugs of all sorts—despite urging by their so-called "friends."

There must be increased efforts on the part of both state and local authorities to provide adequite hospitalization to cure those teen-agers afflicted with the dreaded habit.

These dope-enslaved youths ought to be segregated from the chronic cases of habitual users. This, I am sorry to say, is not being done in many institutions today. The practice of non-segregation should be stopped immediately if we are to safeguard our sons and daughters from the influence of habitual drug addicts.

I've watched and studied the methods of racketers for 30 years. You can be sure that if they find heavy profits with little risk in handling narcotics and other drugs they will do so.

Gangsters switched to liquor handling during the prohibition era and in more recent years to gambling. They might easily switch to narcotic "mob" rule too.

Armies and hoodlums and racketeers will try to sweep our sons and daughters into the drug habit if they find the profits great enough.

This field of criminal activity offers a great challenge for effective corrective action.

But the problem must be tackled at every level—from the household through the school, city, state and federal governments. The people should be alarmed at the problem. It justifies the utmost indignation on the part of all citizens to the point where those who are engaged in this business of ruining young lives morally and physically should be made to pay the severest penalties.

It is only by severe pressure on dope peddlers and by educating our youth that we can hope to check the narcotic traffic. The Senate Crime Investigating Committee is doing its utmost to uncover the true facts as a basis for remedial action. Then it will be up to each and every citizen as well as our law enforcement agencies to stamp out this dreaded disease by seeing to it that the remedies are effectively applied.

Edison Failed But New Group Tries To Sell Congress On Voting Device

WASHINGTON — (AP) — In 1869 Thomas A. Edison applied for his first patent. It was an automatic roll call machine, designed to speed up Congress.

Congress never paid any attention.

Today Marshall F. Thompson and Charles F. Thompson, who run an automatic roll call machine in Richmond, Va., were in town, trying to succeed where Edison failed 82 years ago.

They gave a demonstration in the Senate caucus room on how the contraption works. They had senators and representatives present to do some practice voting.

Although most of the comments appeared to be favorable, the consensus was that Congress would continue to vote by having a clerk bawl out the name (96 in the Senate, 435 in the House). For, as many a man besides Edison has learned, it's hard to hurry Congress.

Charles F. Thompson told reporters 25 states now have roll call machines in their legislatures. And he said no state which has installed one has had it taken out, except to put a more modern one in its place.

First state to have a roll call machine: Wisconsin, which used a rather crude photographic job in 1917. The newest state to give it a try: Maryland, which is having it installed now.

The argument for the machine: It takes the Senate 25 minutes to have a roll call, and the quorum call that almost invariably precedes it. A House roll call takes from 35 to 40 minutes. Several time consuming roll call votes may be taken in a day.

By means of the gadget, the vote is almost instantaneous; the machine also lights up a board to show how each man votes, and makes a permanent record of same.

Rep. Phillips (R-Calif), who attended the demonstration, turned out to be a pro-roll call machine man from 'way back. Fifteen years ago, he said, he helped install a machine in the California Legislature, and he's been a booster ever since.

I asked him why Congress had never cottoned to the idea.

Several reasons, said Phillips.

1. The cost—$300,000 in the House, $100,000 in the Senate.

2. Not many members have seen the machines in action.

3. Many members now use the roll call time to make their leisurely way from their offices or committee rooms to the House or Senate chamber.

"We could still give them that," Phillips said, "by giving the signal for the vote, and then delay its actual start for the time needed for our slowest walker."

4. "In Congress," Phillips said moodily, "we still think what was good enough for Thomas Jefferson is good enough for us."

An English hangman named John Ellis executed 203 murderers from 1900 to 1924. He cut his own throat in 1938.

Lumarith Film used in new-type wrapping

Your purchases today may be protected by wrappings originating at Amcelle

Cellulose acetate flake, produced in volume at the Amcelle plant of Celanese, is the principal base of the large and growing family of Lumarith* plastics, manufactured by the Plastics Division of the Celanese Corporation.

The packaging industry uses Lumarith for all types of containers from transparent bags to "see through" boxes for a wide variety of products, including blankets, flowers, candy and perfumes. Food markets protect processed meats and fresh vegetables with Lumarith.

Kids like the appearance of toys made out of Lumarith, and they are safe toys because they will not shatter. The electrical industry makes wide use of Cellulose Acetate Plastics for housings and other parts for mixers and vacuum cleaners. Many tools and utensils have handles made of Lumarith. It is used in safety headgear, machine guards, and goggles.

Military uses include transparent enclosures on planes, rocket components, window glazing, and complete protective covering for food and medical supplies.

Lumarith is a truly remarkable material and serves many needs in many industries. However, there is this to remember. We at Amcelle have to produce a cellulose acetate flake of a proper quality and at a cost which will make it competitive with other materials.

Your purchases today may be protected by wrappings originating at Amcelle

Cellulose acetate flake, produced in volume at the Amcelle plant of Celanese, is the principal base of the large and growing family of Lumarith* plastics, manufactured by the Plastics Division of the Celanese Corporation.

The packaging industry uses Lumarith for all types of containers from transparent bags to "see through" boxes for a wide variety of products, including blankets, flowers, candy and perfumes. Food markets protect processed meats and fresh vegetables with Lumarith.

Kids like the appearance of toys made out of Lumarith, and they are safe toys because they will not shatter. The electrical industry makes wide use of Cellulose Acetate Plastics for housings and other parts for mixers and vacuum cleaners. Many tools and utensils have handles made of Lumarith. It is used in safety headgear, machine guards, and goggles.

Military uses include transparent enclosures on planes, rocket components, window glazing, and complete protective covering for food and medical supplies.

Lumarith is a truly remarkable material and serves many needs in many industries. However, there is this to remember. We at Amcelle have to produce a cellulose acetate flake of a proper quality and at a cost which will make it competitive with other materials.

Hundreds Of Chinese Lured To China, Singapore Reports

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Glittering promises and "come back to China" groups are luring hundreds of wide-eyed Chinese students from Singapore to Red China. The prospect of becoming leaders of the masses and building a greater China is held out to the youngsters. Police have located undercover rings specializing in this work.

A police spokesman said the exodus began when the Communists took over the government of China 18 months ago.

"These youngsters were fired by appeals to work for the fatherland and they answered the call," he said. "Many left without the knowledge of their parents."

The situation was dramatized by the pick up in Hong Kong recently of six Chinese schoolgirls from prominent families. They left Singapore on the Dutch ship Tjiwangi without telling their parents. Singapore's government is deeply concerned. It said four of the girls cannot return unless "they show they have genuinely regretted their decision." The other two are under age.

"Patriotism" is the keynote of the appeal to the youngsters, the police spokesman said. "The Communist cry to students is—'come back to China, for we need people like you who are educated to lead the masses and build up a greater China.'"

The come back to China rings make all the arrangements. They supply passage money at pick-up points and route the students north.

Propaganda cells work in schools and social organizations that glorify Red China, police said. At the same time, alluring letters from students already in China are bait for new converts.

These letters, either originals or copies, are passed around and tell of the fine time the youngsters are having. The writers also stress the good they are doing for the peasants and workers.

Police said the China rings are not necessarily connected with the Malayan Communist Party.

"So far as we know they are often cells of the Chinese Communist Party," the spokesman said.

He added that not all students who went to China were lured away.

"On the contrary, I think many of them knew exactly what they were doing."

Board Again Told Reservoir Is Menace

J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, yesterday recommended that the Allegany County Board of Commissioners have one end of the reservoir on the county farm property removed.

Chapman said that despite all precautions and attempts to prevent youths from using the reservoir as a swimming pool the practice is being continued. The water in the reservoir is very cold and the commissioners fear that someone may be drowned while the pool is being used.

Fences and locked gates have been erected during the past few years, but youths have torn them down, according to Chapman. The reservoir was used in years past as a source of water for fire protection of the county home and Sylvan Retreat.

The board decided to follow Chapman's recommendation. Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said that even though the county does blow out one end of the masonry reservoir the county will be still liable for any damage or injuries to youths who use the structure in the future. He termed the reservoir "an attractive nuisance."

Members of the board feel that with the end of the reservoir blown out, water will no longer be available for swimming and this will reduce the major cause for alarm.

A petition was received from a number of residents in the Flintstone area requesting repairs to the Perrin Road. The petition stated the ditches were filled and water is causing the roadway to become gutted.

Basing Point Prices

The Senate is due to take up this week a bill (S 719) that, if enacted, could have some bearing on the legal status of the basing price system. Senators Kefauver and Magnuson dissented from the favorable report filed by a majority of the Judiciary Committee.

Last year Congress passed a bill pictured by its opponents as legalizing basing point prices, although its exact purport was in much doubt and dispute. This ambiguity was cited by President Truman in vetoing the bill. No attempt to override the veto was made in either house.

Under the basing point system, all buyers in a given territory are quoted delivered prices which include transportation charges from the basing point set up for the territory—whether the product was or wasn't actually shipped from that point. The idea is to prevent any particular buyer or seller from being favored or handicapped, as against other buyers or sellers, because of his geographical location.

In 1948 the Supreme Court in a 6-1 decision found the basing point system used in the cement industry in violation of the antitrust laws, also of the Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act of 1936. Some lawyers thought the Court's pronouncement covered only the particular methods used by the cement producers, other lawyers thought it outlawed basing point prices in general.

Chairman McCarran of the Judiciary Committee argues that the 1951 bill simply writes into law the 5-3 decision of the Supreme Court January 8, 1951, upholding price cuts by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The bill makes the Robinson-Patman Act inapplicable to a seller who utilizes a price system in order to meet any prices set legally by a competitor, and who intends in good faith thus to promote instead of to restrict competition.

Light On China Lobby

The joint Senate committee on the MacArthur dismissal wants, and will soon get, whatever information is in the files of government agencies on the so-called China Lobby. After seeing the data, the committee will decide whether to investigate that group of persons demanding bigger and better U.S. support for the Chiang Kai-shek government of China.

Senator Morse (R., Ore.), in urging that the "China Lobby" be investigated, said that the Chiang regime had paid one William J. Goodwin a large salary to promote American investments in China, also pro-Chiang sentiment among Americans in general and members of Congress in particular. Last year Goodwin announced that he had helped Senator McCarthy prepare the Senator's charges against Owen Lattimore as a dangerous influence in the State Department.

Goodwin came to pubic notice back in 1941 when he called the La Guardia administration of New York City "permeated by Communists." He predicted "civil war" in the United States, "probably" starting in New York City, if this country should enter the war in Europe. Goodwin was charged by the Greater New York Federation of Churches, through its executive secretary, with being active in the Christian Front and helping to foster a "Storm Trooper" movement in New York.

The New York Herald Tribune has explained editorially that the "China Lobby" is the name for "what has been construed as a pervasive and sinister force, exerting influence in mysterious ways over the formation of American foreign policy." But a spokesman for the group has alleged that "the real 'China Lobby' is the pro-Communist lobby within the State Department."

Tentative Tax Bill

The House of Representatives begins today to debate the new tax bill, and at the end of the week will probably accept the measure as drafted by its Ways and Means committee. This doesn't necessarily mean, however, that the bill finally enacted into law will bear much resemblance to the one passed by the House this week.

Too many things can happen abroad, especially in Korea, by the time the Senate takes final action. Last year, for instance, the House passed a tax bill reducing excise taxation and making up (almost) for the revenue lost by increasing the corporation income tax rate and plugging some of the "tax loopholes." Several days later came the invasion of South Korea, and the bill as enacted raised taxes all along the line.

Even when events don't change much, the Senate is apt to alter House tax bills radically and the House is apt to accept most of the Senate alterations. That was true of the excess profits tax law of last December, also of the 1943 "pay-as-you-go" revenue act for payment of the personal income tax currently.

Specifically, the Senate may reject the House device of increasing personal income taxation by adding 12½ per cent to each tax as computed under the present rates. A flat percentage increase of this nature has been imposed only once before, in 1940.

Don't expect, in any event, that the new tax measure will become law soon. The Senate usually takes its time on House tax proposals, and over the years about three months has elapsed, on the average, between passage of tax bills by the House and their final enactment

Rescuer Or Dictator

In the recent French election campaign, Gen. Charles Andre Marie Francois de Gaulle was denounced by his opponents as a "man on horseback" who would supplant French democracy by a fascist dictatorship. By his supporters he was extolled as the only man who could prevent a fascist or a Communist dictatorship from wrecking the Fourth Republic.

The anti-Gaullists pointed out that "The Grand Charlie" had quit as President in January, 1946, rather than accept the restrictions on the executive branch of the government. Today he opposes the constitution approved in October, 1946, by 36 per cent of the eligible voters (with 31 per cent opposed and 33 per cent abstaining), as making for too much balance of power in the French political system—if it can be called a system.

The pro-Gaullists replied that dictatorship comes in, not when the executive has too much power, but when it has too little. From this point of view, the off-again, on-again, gone-again aspect of French governments, under both the new and the old constitutions, is what makes too many Frenchmen long for a Hitler, or a Mussolini, or a Stalin to provide stability.

Those who saw a fascist in de Gaulle stressed his close study in years past of the super-man philosophy of Nietzche. And certainly some passages in de Gaulle's book, "The Army of the Future," published in 1934, sound like super-man stuff. But those who saw a real democrat in the General emphasized that in January, 1946, he had made no attempt to try to take over the government by a coup.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Regimen After A Heart Attack

Most heart attacks are caused by occlusion of one of the coronary arteries. These vessels supply the heart muscle with blood and obstruction occurs in areas where the passageway has become narrowed thru arteriosclerosis. In 1949 the condition accounted for 294,000 deaths.

Despite the high national death rate, most victims can be pulled thru the initial attack. Proper care is necessary and the most important consideration is rest in bed. In this way the heart is kept as quiet as possible because the plan is conducive to complete mental repose. Aboslute bed rest is not essential, however, as the individual usually is allowed to feed himself, move freely in bed, and even perform leg exercises. Many physicians also permit the victim to use the commode. Each case is an individual problem and the amount of activity depends of the severity of the occlusion.

Many sufferers can received adequate care at home. Hospitalization is advised when oxygen is needed or the individual lives so far from the physician that it would be difficult to reach him in an emergency. The hospital also is best when the patient is uncooperative and not likely to follow orders. Visiting can be regulated so that intrusions by relatives, friends, and business associates is kept to a minimum. As a rule most of the medication can be given at home and in many communities facilities are available for home laboratory tests, including the electrocardiogram.

Good nursing care quiets the victim and eliminates undesirable exertion. The nurse often is the go-between for the patient and the outside world. She protects him from telephone calls and visitors and when she provides a cheerful and quiet atmosphere healing is likely to occur more readily. But it is inadvisable for a nurse to be too attentive and to wait on her patient hand over foot. In the circumstances the sick man or woman ceases to be an individual and lies in bed like a log.

The diet is varied according to the patient's condition. Those who are fighting for life are in no mood to eat. They are satisfied with small amounts of fruit juices, broth, tea, milk, water or ginger ale. The family need not be concerned about starvation so long as some nourishment is taken. With improvement, appetite is restored and soft foods are added to the menus. Meals consist of milk toast, stewed fruit, soft boiled eggs, cooked cereals, mashed or baked potato, and puddings. Sooner or later the old eating habits return, but less should be consumed than formerly because exercise generally is reduced.

The question of tobacco, alcohol, and coffee is bound to arise as the majority of us are addicted to one or all of these stimulants. Alcohol has a tendency to dilate the coronary vessels, hence small amounts are not harmful; occasionally some benefit is noted. However alcoholic drinks should not be taken by those who dislike them or do not use them ordinarily. Coffee also is allowed in moderation provided it does not produce restlessness or sleeplessness. Tobacco is prohibited during the acute phase of the disease. In my opinion no one who has suffered a coronary attack should ever smoke again. Other physicians are more lenient and merely curtail the use of nicotine.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses the poor reader and speller.

BLEEDING GUMS

C. V. writes: Can a deficiency of vitamin C cause the gums to bleed?

REPLY

Yes, this is one cause. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on gum disorders.

THYROID DISORDER

M. L. writes: If the thyroid gland is not sluggish or overactive, but still is not functioning properly, what could be wrong?

REPLY

Other disturbances of the thyroid included simple enlargement (goiter), tumors, cysts, and inflammation.

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

Mrs. K. writes: What is responsible for cancer in babies?

REPLY

We do not know. In this respect, cancer in children is no different from that of adults. This goes to show that irritation is not the only origin of malignancies.

TONGUE BITER

C. P. writes: Once in a while I bite my tongue at night while asleep. What could make me do that?

REPLY

Examination would be needed to determine whether the shape of your mouth or your teeth are at fault. Epilepsy also must be considered; sometime it is the only sign that the individual has had a convulsion in his sleep.

EYE ARCS

H. J. writes: My mother has arcus senilis in both eyes. Will this cause blindness?

REPLY

No. This condition is an aging process like wrinkling and gray hair but it is not related to vision.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Galo Plaza Only Latin American President Born In U. S.; Ecuadorian Leader Is Advocate Of Democracy; Espouses Free Press, Civil Rights, U. S. Cows

(Ed. Note—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, goes to President Galo Plaza of Ecuador.)

WASHINGTON—The first president of a Latin American country ever born in the United States arrives in Washington today. He is Galo Plaza Lasso, president of Ecuador, who has played football at the University of California, sold apples in New York during the depression, and has built up a herd of 1,000 Holstein dairy cows one mile up on the plateaus of Ecuador.

More important than any of these, however, Galo Plaza is operating one of the few free and democratic countries in the Western Hemisphere. On a continent where democracy is squeezed between communism and fascism, and where democracy is considered a luxury safe only for countries which can afford deep freezes, he has shown that democracy can work.

In only five other Latin American countries today — Uruguay, Chile, Meexico, Cuba and Costa Rica—is there complete freedom of the press. In Peru, for instance, a newspaperman was jailed recently because he translated a Life magazine article on Evita Peron. The article was not even published, merely translated ready for publication. Nevertheless, he was clapped into jail.

Even in supposedly democratic India, Prime Minister Nehru has proposed legislation restricting the press. However, President Galo Plaza has laughed at the gibes of the Ecuadorian press, calls revolution "our national sport," has never imposed martial law, drives his own car to his farms, and talks in their own language to the Indians who come to see him.

Cows By Airplane

I confess to being a little partial toward Galo Plaza. I got to know him when he was ambassador to Washington, the introduction having come through the madame Holstein and the fact that some of my cows are related to his. Incidentally, the president of Ecuador studied at the University of Maryland in order to specialize in dairying, and since that time he has imported his herd sires and some of his heifers from Homer Remsberg at Middletown, Md., sometimes flying them to Ecuador by plane.

The fact that Galo Plaza was born in an almost unknown hotel—the Hotel Martin—in New York's Greenwich Village was due to the circumstance that his father, himself a president of Ecuador, was then in exile. His father was a buccaneering general who made his way by the sword, but who married a daughter of a top Ecuadorian aristocrat. She has spent much of her life in the United States and is still living.

As a youngster, Galo Plaza was literally brought up in politics. His father served two terms as president of Ecuador, once before Galo was born, once afterward. Galo saw him put across what were then almost revolutionary measures — public education, limiting the hours of the people's work, divorce, civil marriage, and expropriation of large landed estates.

During part of this time, Galo was a playboy at Maryland and California universities, sporting a convertible and a big coonskin coat, which, incidentally, proved a lifesaver when the old general got fed up with his son's life of ease and cut off his allowance. It was then that Galo sold apples on the street corners of New York, later got a job as assistant purser on the Grace Line between New York and Chile.

Fired Six Generals

Subsequently, Galo and his father patched up their differences, and young Plaza took over the operation of the family's farms, where he introduced American tractors, contour plowing, and Maryland cows. Neighbors scoffed, called him the "man with the gringo ideas." But since then, farm methods in Ecuador gradually have become modernized.

Plaza got started in politics at the very bottom. He became a member of the municipal council of Quito, then mayor of Quito, later Minister of Defense, at a most crucial period — 1938-'40 — just before Pearl Harbor. As Minister of Defense he laid down the unheard-of doctrine that the army must keep out of politics, and proved that he meant what he said.

At one cabinet crisis, his colleagues were in a dither over the threatened rebellion of six generals. Finally they turned to Galo Plaza, the Minister of Defense.

"It's very simple," he said. "I'll fire all six generals."

He did so. And the delineation between military and civilian government had progressed far enough in Ecuador that the six were not given the heroes' welcome given to General MacArthur in the United States today.

Whistle-Stop Campaign

Galo Plaza served as ambassador in Washington during part of the vital war years, but resigned in 1946 in protest against the dictatorship of President Velasco. He ran for president himself in 1948, staging the same sort of whistle-stop campaign as Harry Truman and with the same general expectation that he would be defeated.

With no political party behind him, he visited almost every town and village in Ecuador, and instead of haranguing the people with a stentorian outline of his policies, he asked their advice as to what should be done.

Galo Plaza's slogan since elected has been "more work and less politics."

"There are no quick solutions to Ecuador's problems," he says. "In a generation a miracle may be accomplished. But during my four years all I can do is to set the country on the right road."

Accordingly, he has concentrated not on social reforms but on economic progress. His old friend, Nelson Rockefeller, helped with this, sending American experts to study what products Ecuador can best produce. As a result, the country is already on the way to becoming one of the great rice-growing areas of the world, and is slowly pulling away from its unenviable status as the poorest and most disease-ridden country in South America.

Most important of all, however, Galo Plaza has remained one of the few Latin American presidents to serve out his full four years without restoring to armed strength, without suppressing civil liberties.

Following three abortive revolutions in 14 months, Plaza was urged to crack down on his enemies. However, the press still remains free to ridicule him, Communist speakers remain free to malign him in the public square, and he continues to maintain that democracy can work in a country without shoes.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Sideglances:

After one of the speeches he made in Texas, Gen. MacArthur returned to his hotel, washed up, changed his shirt, and rejoined his group in the living room of the suite. He listened for a time to a discussion of the points he had raised in the talk, their possible impact, the reaction of the administration and of Congress. Then he said:

"I hate to bring this lofty discussion down to a low level, but let's eat—I'm hungry."

A car reserved for "the press" was placed 22nd and next to last in the MacArthur motorcade which roared from the Houston airport to the Shamrock Hotel headquarters of the General's party, via downtown Houston.

Despite the somewhat lowly but not wholly unjustifiable position of the reporters' car, several of us felt pretty important—riding along in a MacArthur parade between palisades of curious spectators.

Felt important, that is, until we passed one point along the route and a Texan loud and clear, drawled:

"They must be his dishwashers."

The wide impression is that MacArthur has more uniforms than the head usher at the Roxy.

Matter of fact he has only two.

Frequent mention, usually unfavorable, has been made of the alleged fact that he has a closet-full of hats, all gold-braided. He was criticized during the war for appearing at battlefronts in "one of his gold-braided caps."

One is right. That's all he has.

A few months before Pearl Harbor and Manila were bombed, MacArthur wrote to the Philadelphia firm where he had been buying hats for many years before and said, "Please send me a hat."

The firm had not received an order from him since it had made up a fancy one for him during the period, shortly before, when he commanded the Philippine Commonwealth's armed forces. So they made him one like that, slapped on the gold braid, and billed him for $87. All he had wanted was a standard job.

The General was in the course of squawking, and sending it back, when the first bombs fell. After that he wore it because it was a hat, and he would not wear a helmet.

MacArthur has promised it to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, when he gives it up. I might reassure the curator there if he has any anxiety over what condition it will be in by the time he gets it.

The gold braid has turned a little green around the edges, but the chassis is still in good shape.

Last Friday, after a broiling day in the sun of San Antonio, MacArthur returned to his chartered Eastern airliner, picked up one of those little pillows with which the ship was armed, placed the pillow on the hatrack overhead, then took off the famed lid and put it carefully on top of the pillow.

Good feature about Washington investigations is it stops Congress from making more laws. And violations of laws is what Congress investigates.

It has had a busy semester workout its legislative obligations of poking sticks in cages, twisting arms and auditioning for television.

If curiosity killed the cat, the rate of insurance on kittens is prohibitive. Questions were asked and answered with the diminishing vagueness of an Alpine echo sticking to the subject while getting further away from its origin.

You can judge the intenseness of the results by the condition of the renovated Capitol dome. Not one blister in the gold leaf.

Today In Washington—

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Constructive results—possibly even a return to a bipartisan approach in foreign policy—may flow from the hearings which the Joint Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees are about to finish.

Although Administration supporters have endeavored to make the whole MacArthur episode seem just a question of personalities or hero worship—for that was the easiest way to play down or try to obscure the real issues—senators of both parties have come to recognize that something more fundamental is at stake than the removal of a military commander from his post.

One of the curious pieces of propaganda technique which has been used to try to belittle the hearings has been the repeated comment that the Republicans are lined up on one side and the Democrats on the other. Actually, the chief counsel for the Administration witnesses has been Senator Morse of Oregon, Republican, while some of the most penetrating criticism of the manner in which General MacArthur was replaced has come from Senators George of Georgia, Gillette of Iowa, Sparkman of Alabama, and other Democrats.

Not Partisan Controversy

The controversy has never been and is not now a partisan affair. It will not help toward the revival of a bipartisan attitude on foreign policy for Administration spokesmen to keep on emphasizing that the matter is political.

The hearings have been like a tonic in an otherwise unhealthy situation. They have restored the Senate of the United States to its rightful place as a partner in the making of foreign policy.

Certainly there will be politically partisan repercussions. The Republican campaigners are satisfied with the testimony because it contains so much that confirms their criticisms. Some senators say that, if not a word of additional testimony is given by either side, the record indicates clearly that Secretary of State Acheson cannot long remain in office after the exposure of the false State Department document that was used in December, 1949, to pave the way for the expected fall of Formosa. Likewise, these opponents of the Administration's policy in the Far East say the record shows that Republicans were not consulted on Far Eastern policies or decisions until after they were made.

There should be salutary results, too, from the revelation about the small number of troops which UN members have been furnishing in Korea and the failure of UN members to support our troops by banning trade with the enemy. The British government certainly has been told more pointedly than ever before about the concern of the Congress over British trade with Red China. Even in State Department circles this is privately described as all to the good.

The disclosure of the weakness at the top in the making of military policy—the absence of a war plan for Korea when the outbreak occurred a year ago and American aid had to be sent suddenly—cannot but focus attention on the need for a reorganization of the methods and operations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as well as the National Security Council.

But most important—aside from the passage by the UN of a resolution favoring the economic blockade, which was a direct consequence of what was brought out at the Senate hearings—the pressure is on now against all countries which take financial aid from the United States with one hand and fail to use their other hand to support the basic policies of the United Nations in resisting aggression.

Republicans Benefit More

The testimony will enable both Republicans and Democrats to argue the MacArthur case on the stump—if it should still be an issue in 1952. Both sides can find supporting statements for a political debate, though undoubtedly the Republicans will benefit far more. This is because to this day no satisfactory reason has been given for the manner of removing General MacArthur from his post and especially for dismissing him as Allied commander in Japan.

The Administration, as a consequence of the hearings, has been compelled to take a firm position in defense of Formosa and in support of the Chinese Nationalist government. This is also helpful, because it sharpens the cleavage between the Communist and this country. Whatever hopes the "left wingers" here—who from the start have been the most violent group against General MacArthur—have have had for achieving recognition of Red China and her admission to the United Nations now are dashed to the ground by the explicit pledges given against such a course by Secretaries Marshall and Acheson.

So far as revealing military information through the hearings, this is one of those exaggerations which came from persons who would have preferred complete suppression of Administration mistakes. The Russians got no military data. What they got was a constant repetition of the Administration's philosophy of fear—and this came primarily in a radio speech by President Truman apart from the Senate hearings.

While the testimony at times has been tedious, repetitious and rambling, the hearings have been on the whole beneficial. The American people know more than they ever did about our policies and lack of policies in the Far East.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign News Coverage

Russell F. Anderson, editor of "World News," writing in "The Michigan Alumnus Quarterly Review," is deeply concerned that in 1945, American newspapers employed 2,700 foreign correspondents, but in 1950 only 300. Of course, 1945 was the end of the war and a war is covered much like a fire with many Johnnys-on-the-spot.

Mr. Anderson's criticism, as long as it is quantitative, leaves me cold. One Wickham Steed, one Karl Von Wiegand, one Anne O'Hare McCormick is worth a legion of correspondents.

My own experience may be a case in point. When I arrived in China in 1918, I found in Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Tokyo correspondents of American, British and European newspapers, mature and literate men, who, most of them, were scholars who knew the country and its people and the language. Such men as Putnam Weale, Hugh Byas, O. M. Green, George Woodhead, Frederick Moore (who came and went), Rodney Gilbert and others were not only newspapermen but outstanding personalities. They held respected positions in their communities.

They approached the article of the day as a continuation of a prolonged history and although they wrote of news, they were equally concerned with views.

It was in the twenties that younger men were sent to China, particularly from the United States, and especially for the wire services, who were lacking, many of them, in preparation for reporting so complicated a story as that of China or Japan.

They had been accustomed in the United States to the "handout," that offensive device of giving reporters a mimeographed sheet that implied what "authority" wanted them to publish. They "banged out a story on the typewriter, fast and furious. They hunted in packs and depended on each other. One "covered for the other, and that paved the way for a publicity man for some Chinese faction covering for all of them.

It was unfortunate journalism because it produced a stereotyped account, each man sending the same as the other no matter how they might have differed in their personal reactions. As a matter of fact, for many years the late J. B. Powell, who was then editor of the "China Weekly Review," controlled most of the copy that was sent to the United States because his office became a newspaperman's center. The news was "angled" as he saw it. He had a charming personality and the newcomers came and went so fast that they had to depend upon an oldtimer like Powell to introduce them, to explain situations to them, etc.

There could be no objection to this, except that many of the correspondents did not stay long enough to have learned to stand on their own. It takes a good man four or five years to become really valuable as a correspondent assigned to a particular country. He needs to devote himself to intensive reading, to learning languages and he must be so flexible that he can divest himself of prejudices which seem to be inherent in the human character. Men who are without these tools and qualities are always surprised by the trivial and always miss the broad issues and trends.

This, too, I saw in 1917 in Russia during the revolution and I must say that to this day I tend to regard the British expert on Russia more favorably than the American. The British reporters worked hard in the months preceding the Bolshevik revolution to discover what Lenin and Trotzky were going to do and why; the Americans tended to wait until it happened. The outstanding exception was, of course, John Reed who, no matter what his faults and weaknesses, was a great reporter.

If our newspapers and wire services are to develop a great corps of competent foreign correspondents, they must be trained for that particular type of work. Foreign correspondence should be a career on its own and the men and women in this field should be kept in areas long enough to know what they are talking about. I can still say that much of the correspondence that I read in newspapers and magazines in this country often strikes me as silly because it is without background.

The roots of every event are in documented history. Nothing happens today that did not start somewhere a century or even centuries ago. The foreign correspondent must have the breadth of beam and patience to dig into the parental facts of his news. It takes time but it has its compensation in getting the story right and serving the reader adequately.

Basing Point Prices

The Senate is due to take up this week a bill (S 719) that, if enacted, could have some bearing on the legal status of the basing price system. Senators Kefauver and Magnuson dissented from the favorable report filed by a majority of the Judiciary Committee.

Last year Congress passed a bill pictured by its opponents as legalizing basing point prices, although its exact purport was in much doubt and dispute. This ambiguity was cited by President Truman in vetoing the bill. No attempt to override the veto was made in either house.

Under the basing point system, all buyers in a given territory are quoted delivered prices which include transportation charges from the basing point set up for the territory—whether the product was or wasn't actually shipped from that point. The idea is to prevent any particular buyer or seller from being favored or handicapped, as against other buyers or sellers, because of his geographical location.

In 1948 the Supreme Court in a 6-1 decision found the basing point system used in the cement industry in violation of the antitrust laws, also of the Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act of 1936. Some lawyers thought the Court's pronouncement covered only the particular methods used by the cement producers, other lawyers thought it outlawed basing point prices in general.

Chairman McCarran of the Judiciary Committee argues that the 1951 bill simply writes into law the 5-3 decision of the Supreme Court January 8, 1951, upholding price cuts by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The bill makes the Robinson-Patman Act inapplicable to a seller who utilizes a price system in order to meet any prices set legally by a competitor, and who intends in good faith thus to promote instead of to restrict competition.

Light On China Lobby

The joint Senate committee on the MacArthur dismissal wants, and will soon get, whatever information is in the files of government agencies on the so-called China Lobby. After seeing the data, the committee will decide whether to investigate that group of persons demanding bigger and better U.S. support for the Chiang Kai-shek government of China.

Senator Morse (R., Ore.), in urging that the "China Lobby" be investigated, said that the Chiang regime had paid one William J. Goodwin a large salary to promote American investments in China, also pro-Chiang sentiment among Americans in general and members of Congress in particular. Last year Goodwin announced that he had helped Senator McCarthy prepare the Senator's charges against Owen Lattimore as a dangerous influence in the State Department.

Goodwin came to pubic notice back in 1941 when he called the La Guardia administration of New York City "permeated by Communists." He predicted "civil war" in the United States, "probably" starting in New York City, if this country should enter the war in Europe. Goodwin was charged by the Greater New York Federation of Churches, through its executive secretary, with being active in the Christian Front and helping to foster a "Storm Trooper" movement in New York.

The New York Herald Tribune has explained editorially that the "China Lobby" is the name for "what has been construed as a pervasive and sinister force, exerting influence in mysterious ways over the formation of American foreign policy." But a spokesman for the group has alleged that "the real 'China Lobby' is the pro-Communist lobby within the State Department."

Tentative Tax Bill

The House of Representatives begins today to debate the new tax bill, and at the end of the week will probably accept the measure as drafted by its Ways and Means committee. This doesn't necessarily mean, however, that the bill finally enacted into law will bear much resemblance to the one passed by the House this week.

Too many things can happen abroad, especially in Korea, by the time the Senate takes final action. Last year, for instance, the House passed a tax bill reducing excise taxation and making up (almost) for the revenue lost by increasing the corporation income tax rate and plugging some of the "tax loopholes." Several days later came the invasion of South Korea, and the bill as enacted raised taxes all along the line.

Even when events don't change much, the Senate is apt to alter House tax bills radically and the House is apt to accept most of the Senate alterations. That was true of the excess profits tax law of last December, also of the 1943 "pay-as-you-go" revenue act for payment of the personal income tax currently.

Specifically, the Senate may reject the House device of increasing personal income taxation by adding 12½ per cent to each tax as computed under the present rates. A flat percentage increase of this nature has been imposed only once before, in 1940.

Don't expect, in any event, that the new tax measure will become law soon. The Senate usually takes its time on House tax proposals, and over the years about three months has elapsed, on the average, between passage of tax bills by the House and their final enactment

Rescuer Or Dictator

In the recent French election campaign, Gen. Charles Andre Marie Francois de Gaulle was denounced by his opponents as a "man on horseback" who would supplant French democracy by a fascist dictatorship. By his supporters he was extolled as the only man who could prevent a fascist or a Communist dictatorship from wrecking the Fourth Republic.

The anti-Gaullists pointed out that "The Grand Charlie" had quit as President in January, 1946, rather than accept the restrictions on the executive branch of the government. Today he opposes the constitution approved in October, 1946, by 36 per cent of the eligible voters (with 31 per cent opposed and 33 per cent abstaining), as making for too much balance of power in the French political system—if it can be called a system.

The pro-Gaullists replied that dictatorship comes in, not when the executive has too much power, but when it has too little. From this point of view, the off-again, on-again, gone-again aspect of French governments, under both the new and the old constitutions, is what makes too many Frenchmen long for a Hitler, or a Mussolini, or a Stalin to provide stability.

Those who saw a fascist in de Gaulle stressed his close study in years past of the super-man philosophy of Nietzche. And certainly some passages in de Gaulle's book, "The Army of the Future," published in 1934, sound like super-man stuff. But those who saw a real democrat in the General emphasized that in January, 1946, he had made no attempt to try to take over the government by a coup.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Regimen After A Heart Attack

Most heart attacks are caused by occlusion of one of the coronary arteries. These vessels supply the heart muscle with blood and obstruction occurs in areas where the passageway has become narrowed thru arteriosclerosis. In 1949 the condition accounted for 294,000 deaths.

Despite the high national death rate, most victims can be pulled thru the initial attack. Proper care is necessary and the most important consideration is rest in bed. In this way the heart is kept as quiet as possible because the plan is conducive to complete mental repose. Aboslute bed rest is not essential, however, as the individual usually is allowed to feed himself, move freely in bed, and even perform leg exercises. Many physicians also permit the victim to use the commode. Each case is an individual problem and the amount of activity depends of the severity of the occlusion.

Many sufferers can received adequate care at home. Hospitalization is advised when oxygen is needed or the individual lives so far from the physician that it would be difficult to reach him in an emergency. The hospital also is best when the patient is uncooperative and not likely to follow orders. Visiting can be regulated so that intrusions by relatives, friends, and business associates is kept to a minimum. As a rule most of the medication can be given at home and in many communities facilities are available for home laboratory tests, including the electrocardiogram.

Good nursing care quiets the victim and eliminates undesirable exertion. The nurse often is the go-between for the patient and the outside world. She protects him from telephone calls and visitors and when she provides a cheerful and quiet atmosphere healing is likely to occur more readily. But it is inadvisable for a nurse to be too attentive and to wait on her patient hand over foot. In the circumstances the sick man or woman ceases to be an individual and lies in bed like a log.

The diet is varied according to the patient's condition. Those who are fighting for life are in no mood to eat. They are satisfied with small amounts of fruit juices, broth, tea, milk, water or ginger ale. The family need not be concerned about starvation so long as some nourishment is taken. With improvement, appetite is restored and soft foods are added to the menus. Meals consist of milk toast, stewed fruit, soft boiled eggs, cooked cereals, mashed or baked potato, and puddings. Sooner or later the old eating habits return, but less should be consumed than formerly because exercise generally is reduced.

The question of tobacco, alcohol, and coffee is bound to arise as the majority of us are addicted to one or all of these stimulants. Alcohol has a tendency to dilate the coronary vessels, hence small amounts are not harmful; occasionally some benefit is noted. However alcoholic drinks should not be taken by those who dislike them or do not use them ordinarily. Coffee also is allowed in moderation provided it does not produce restlessness or sleeplessness. Tobacco is prohibited during the acute phase of the disease. In my opinion no one who has suffered a coronary attack should ever smoke again. Other physicians are more lenient and merely curtail the use of nicotine.

Galo Plaza Only Latin American President Born In U. S.; Ecuadorian Leader Is Advocate Of Democracy; Espouses Free Press, Civil Rights, U. S. Cows

(Ed. Note—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, goes to President Galo Plaza of Ecuador.)

WASHINGTON—The first president of a Latin American country ever born in the United States arrives in Washington today. He is Galo Plaza Lasso, president of Ecuador, who has played football at the University of California, sold apples in New York during the depression, and has built up a herd of 1,000 Holstein dairy cows one mile up on the plateaus of Ecuador.

More important than any of these, however, Galo Plaza is operating one of the few free and democratic countries in the Western Hemisphere. On a continent where democracy is squeezed between communism and fascism, and where democracy is considered a luxury safe only for countries which can afford deep freezes, he has shown that democracy can work.

In only five other Latin American countries today — Uruguay, Chile, Meexico, Cuba and Costa Rica—is there complete freedom of the press. In Peru, for instance, a newspaperman was jailed recently because he translated a Life magazine article on Evita Peron. The article was not even published, merely translated ready for publication. Nevertheless, he was clapped into jail.

Even in supposedly democratic India, Prime Minister Nehru has proposed legislation restricting the press. However, President Galo Plaza has laughed at the gibes of the Ecuadorian press, calls revolution "our national sport," has never imposed martial law, drives his own car to his farms, and talks in their own language to the Indians who come to see him.

Cows By Airplane

I confess to being a little partial toward Galo Plaza. I got to know him when he was ambassador to Washington, the introduction having come through the madame Holstein and the fact that some of my cows are related to his. Incidentally, the president of Ecuador studied at the University of Maryland in order to specialize in dairying, and since that time he has imported his herd sires and some of his heifers from Homer Remsberg at Middletown, Md., sometimes flying them to Ecuador by plane.

The fact that Galo Plaza was born in an almost unknown hotel—the Hotel Martin—in New York's Greenwich Village was due to the circumstance that his father, himself a president of Ecuador, was then in exile. His father was a buccaneering general who made his way by the sword, but who married a daughter of a top Ecuadorian aristocrat. She has spent much of her life in the United States and is still living.

As a youngster, Galo Plaza was literally brought up in politics. His father served two terms as president of Ecuador, once before Galo was born, once afterward. Galo saw him put across what were then almost revolutionary measures — public education, limiting the hours of the people's work, divorce, civil marriage, and expropriation of large landed estates.

During part of this time, Galo was a playboy at Maryland and California universities, sporting a convertible and a big coonskin coat, which, incidentally, proved a life-saver when the old general got fed up with his son's life of ease and cut off his allowance. It was then that Galo sold apples on the street corners of New York, later got a job as assistant purser on the Grace Line between New York and Chile.

Fired Six Generals

Subsequently, Galo and his father patched up their differences, and young Plaza took over the operation of the family's farms, where he introduced American tractors, contour plowing, and Maryland cows. Neighbors scoffed, called him the "man with the gringo ideas." But since then, farm methods in Ecuador gradually have become modernized.

Plaza got started in politics at the very bottom. He became a member of the municipal council of Quito, then mayor of Quito, later Minister of Defense, at a most crucial period — 1938-'40 — just before Pearl Harbor. As Minister of Defense he laid down the unheard-of doctrine that the army must keep out of politics, and proved that he meant what he said.

At one cabinet crisis, his colleagues were in a dither over the threatened rebellion of six generals. Finally they turned to Galo Plaza, the Minister of Defense.

"It's very simple," he said. "I'll fire all six generals."

He did so. And the delineation between military and civilian government had progressed far enough in Ecuador that the six were not given the heroes' welcome given to General MacArthur in the United States today.

Whistle-Stop Campaign

Galo Plaza served as ambassador in Washington during part of the vital war years, but resigned in 1946 in protest against the dictatorship of President Velasco. He ran for president himself in 1948, staging the same sort of whistle-stop campaign as Harry Truman and with the same general expectation that he would be defeated.

With no political party behind him, he visited almost every town and village in Ecuador, and instead of haranguing the people with a stentorian outline of his policies, he asked their advice as to what should be done.

Galo Plaza's slogan since elected has been "more work and less politics."

"There are no quick solutions to Ecuador's problems," he says. "In a generation a miracle may be accomplished. But during my four years all I can do is to set the country on the right road."

Accordingly, he has concentrated not on social reforms but on economic progress. His old friend, Nelson Rockefeller, helped with this, sending American experts to study what products Ecuador can best produce. As a result, the country is already on the way to becoming one of the great rice-growing areas of the world, and is slowly pulling away from its unenviable status as the poorest and most disease-ridden country in South America.

Most important of all, however, Galo Plaza has remained one of the few Latin American presidents to serve out his full four years without restoring to armed strength, without suppressing civil liberties.

Following three abortive revolutions in 14 months, Plaza was urged to crack down on his enemies. However, the press still remains free to ridicule him, Communist speakers remain free to malign him in the public square, and he continues to maintain that democracy can work in a country without shoes.

On The Line

NEW YORK — (INS) — Sideglances:

After one of the speeches he made in Texas, Gen. MacArthur returned to his hotel, washed up, changed his shirt, and rejoined his group in the living room of the suite. He listened for a time to a discussion of the points he had raised in the talk, their possible impact, the reaction of the administration and of Congress. Then he said:

"I hate to bring this lofty discussion down to a low level, but let's eat—I'm hungry."

A car reserved for "the press" was placed 22nd and next to last in the MacArthur motorcade which roared from the Houston airport to the Shamrock Hotel headquarters of the General's party, via downtown Houston.

Despite the somewhat lowly but not wholly unjustifiable position of the reporters' car, several of us felt pretty important—riding along in a MacArthur parade between palisades of curious spectators.

Felt important, that is, until we passed one point along the route and a Texan loud and clear, drawled:

"They must be his dishwashers."

The wide impression is that MacArthur has more uniforms than the head usher at the Roxy.

Matter of fact he has only two.

Frequent mention, usually unfavorable, has been made of the alleged fact that he has a closet-full of hats, all gold-braided. He was criticized during the war for appearing at battlefronts in "one of his gold-braided caps."

One is right. That's all he has.

A few months before Pearl Harbor and Manila were bombed, MacArthur wrote to the Philadelphia firm where he had been buying hats for many years before and said, "Please send me a hat."

The firm had not received an order from him since it had made up a fancy one for him during the period, shortly before, when he commanded the Philippine Commonwealth's armed forces. So they made him one like that, slapped on the gold braid, and billed him for $87. All he had wanted was a standard job.

The General was in the course of squawking, and sending it back, when the first bombs fell. After that he wore it because it was a hat, and he would not wear a helmet.

MacArthur has promised it to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, when he gives it up. I might reassure the curator there if he has any anxiety over what condition it will be in by the time he gets it.

The gold braid has turned a little green around the edges, but the chassis is still in good shape.

Last Friday, after a broiling day in the sun of San Antonio, MacArthur returned to his chartered Eastern airliner, picked up one of those little pillows with which the ship was armed, placed the pillow on the hatrack overhead, then took off the famed lid and put it carefully on top of the pillow.

Baering Down On The News

Good feature about Washington investigations is it stops Congress from making more laws. And violations of laws is what Congress investigates.

It has had a busy semester workout its legislative obligations of poking sticks in cages, twisting arms and auditioning for television.

If curiosity killed the cat, the rate of insurance on kittens is prohibitive. Questions were asked and answered with the diminishing vagueness of an Alpine echo sticking to the subject while getting further away from its origin.

You can judge the intenseness of the results by the condition of the renovated Capitol dome. Not one blister in the gold leaf.

Today In Washington—

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Constructive results—possibly even a return to a bipartisan approach in foreign policy—may flow from the hearings which the Joint Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees are about to finish.

Although Administration supporters have endeavored to make the whole MacArthur episode seem just a question of personalities or hero worship—for that was the easiest way to play down or try to obscure the real issues—senators of both parties have come to recognize that something more fundamental is at stake than the removal of a military commander from his post.

One of the curious pieces of propaganda technique which has been used to try to belittle the hearings has been the repeated comment that the Republicans are lined up on one side and the Democrats on the other. Actually, the chief counsel for the Administration witnesses has been Senator Morse of Oregon, Republican, while some of the most penetrating criticism of the manner in which General MacArthur was replaced has come from Senators George of Georgia, Gillette of Iowa, Sparkman of Alabama, and other Democrats.

Not Partisan Controversy

The controversy has never been and is not now a partisan affair. It will not help toward the revival of a bipartisan attitude on foreign policy for Administration spokesmen to keep on emphasizing that the matter is political.

The hearings have been like a tonic in an otherwise unhealthy situation. They have restored the Senate of the United States to its rightful place as a partner in the making of foreign policy.

Certainly there will be politically partisan repercussions. The Republican campaigners are satisfied with the testimony because it contains so much that confirms their criticisms. Some senators say that, if not a word of additional testimony is given by either side, the record indicates clearly that Secretary of State Acheson cannot long remain in office after the exposure of the false State Department document that was used in December, 1949, to pave the way for the expected fall of Formosa. Likewise, these opponents of the Administration's policy in the Far East say the record shows that Republicans were not consulted on Far Eastern policies or decisions until after they were made.

There should be salutary results, too, from the revelation about the small number of troops which UN members have been furnishing in Korea and the failure of UN members to support our troops by banning trade with the enemy. The British government certainly has been told more pointedly than ever before about the concern of the Congress over British trade with Red China. Even in State Department circles this is privately described as all to the good.

The disclosure of the weakness at the top in the making of military policy—the absence of a war plan for Korea when the outbreak occurred a year ago and American aid had to be sent suddenly—cannot but focus attention on the need for a reorganization of the methods and operations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as well as the National Security Council.

But most important—aside from the passage by the UN of a resolution favoring the economic blockade, which was a direct consequence of what was brought out at the Senate hearings—the pressure is on now against all countries which take financial aid from the United States with one hand and fail to use their other hand to support the basic policies of the United Nations in resisting aggression.

Republicans Benefit More

The testimony will enable both Republicans and Democrats to argue the MacArthur case on the stump—if it should still be an issue in 1952. Both sides can find supporting statements for a political debate, though undoubtedly the Republicans will benefit far more. This is because to this day no satisfactory reason has been given for the manner of removing General MacArthur from his post and especially for dismissing him as Allied commander in Japan.

The Administration, as a consequence of the hearings, has been compelled to take a firm position in defense of Formosa and in support of the Chinese Nationalist government. This is also helpful, because it sharpens the cleavage between the Communist and this country. Whatever hopes the "left wingers" here—who from the start have been the most violent group against General MacArthur—have have had for achieving recognition of Red China and her admission to the United Nations now are dashed to the ground by the explicit pledges given against such a course by Secretaries Marshall and Acheson.

So far as revealing military information through the hearings, this is one of those exaggerations which came from persons who would have preferred complete suppression of Administration mistakes. The Russians got no military data. What they got was a constant repetition of the Administration's philosophy of fear—and this came primarily in a radio speech by President Truman apart from the Senate hearings.

While the testimony at times has been tedious, repetitious and rambling, the hearings have been on the whole beneficial. The American people know more than they ever did about our policies and lack of policies in the Far East.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign News Coverage

Russell F. Anderson, editor of "World News," writing in "The Michigan Alumnus Quarterly Review," is deeply concerned that in 1945, American newspapers employed 2,700 foreign correspondents, but in 1950 only 300. Of course, 1945 was the end of the war and a war is covered much like a fire with many Johnnys-on-the-spot.

Mr. Anderson's criticism, as long as it is quantitative, leaves me cold. One Wickham Steed, one Karl Von Wiegand, one Anne O'Hare McCormick is worth a legion of correspondents.

My own experience may be a case in point. When I arrived in China in 1918, I found in Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Tokyo correspondents of American, British and European newspapers, mature and literate men, who, most of them, were scholars who knew the country and its people and the language. Such men as Putnam Weale, Hugh Byas, O. M. Green, George Woodhead, Frederick Moore (who came and went), Rodney Gilbert and others were not only newspapermen but outstanding personalities. They held respected positions in their communities.

They approached the article of the day as a continuation of a prolonged history and although they wrote of news, they were equally concerned with views.

It was in the twenties that younger men were sent to China, particularly from the United States, and especially for the wire services, who were lacking, many of them, in preparation for reporting so complicated a story as that of China or Japan.

They had been accustomed in the United States to the "handout," that offensive device of giving reporters a mimeographed sheet that implied what "authority" wanted them to publish. They "banged out a story on the typewriter, fast and furious. They hunted in packs and depended on each other. One "covered for the other, and that paved the way for a publicity man for some Chinese faction covering for all of them.

It was unfortunate journalism because it produced a stereotyped account, each man sending the same as the other no matter how they might have differed in their personal reactions. As a matter of fact, for many years the late J. B. Powell, who was then editor of the "China Weekly Review," controlled most of the copy that was sent to the United States because his office became a newspaperman's center. The news was "angled" as he saw it. He had a charming personality and the newcomers came and went so fast that they had to depend upon an oldtimer like Powell to introduce them, to explain situations to them, etc.

There could be no objection to this, except that many of the correspondents did not stay long enough to have learned to stand on their own. It takes a good man four or five years to become really valuable as a correspondent assigned to a particular country. He needs to devote himself to intensive reading, to learning languages and he must be so flexible that he can divest himself of prejudices which seem to be inherent in the human character. Men who are without these tools and qualities are always surprised by the trivial and always miss the broad issues and trends.

This, too, I saw in 1917 in Russia during the revolution and I must say that to this day I tend to regard the British expert on Russia more favorably than the American. The British reporters worked hard in the months preceding the Bolshevik revolution to discover what Lenin and Trotzky were going to do and why; the Americans tended to wait until it happened. The outstanding exception was, of course, John Reed who, no matter what his faults and weaknesses, was a great reporter.

If our newspapers and wire services are to develop a great corps of competent foreign correspondents, they must be trained for that particular type of work. Foreign correspondence should be a career on its own and the men and women in this field should be kept in areas long enough to know what they are talking about. I can still say that much of the correspondence that I read in newspapers and magazines in this country often strikes me as silly because it is without background.

The roots of every event are in documented history. Nothing happens today that did not start somewhere a century or even centuries ago. The foreign correspondent must have the breadth of beam and patience to dig into the parental facts of his news. It takes time but it has its compensation in getting the story right and serving the reader adequately.

Local Marine Wounded Twice In Korean War

Casualty lists released yesterday by the Department of Defense show a 23-year-old Cumberland Marine has been wounded for the second time in the Korean war.

Four other casualties include one soldier killed, two missing in action and another wounded.

Pfc. William T. Lanam, USMC, husband of Mrs. Mary Lanam, 324 North Mechanic Street, was hit the first time January 31, shortly after he arrived overseas to fight with the First Marine Division. He was wounded again May 31.

Pennsylvania Dead

Recalled to active duty with the Marine Reserves last July, Pfc. Lanam received training at Parris Island, S. C., and Camp LeJeune, N. C. He attended Penn Avenue High School and worked for the B. and O. Railroad.

Reported dead was Pfc. Joseph M. Panaro, husband of Mrs. Grace Panaro, Meyersdale, Pa., who paid the supreme sacrifice May 18 while serving with Company K, 36th Infantry Regiment.

The son of Frank and Edith Panara, he enlisted in the Army June 5, 1950. Survivors include a 12-year-old son, Joseph Francis Panaro, and ten brothers and sisters.

Garrett GI Hurt

Two West Virginians, Pfc. Vernon L. Rohrbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Rohrbaugh, Bismarck, Grant county, and Pfc. Paul T. Sites, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sites, Kline, Pendleton county, are missing in action.

Sgt. Dale H. Evans, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Evans, Kitzmiller, was burned May 28 about the face and hands by phosphorous flames. In the reserves, he previously served with the Army of Occupation in Japan before he arrived in Korea last December.

He is the husband of Mrs. Frances D. (Thompson) Evans, 720 Bay Street, Baltimore. The Evans have a three-month-old son, Dale Williams, whom he has not seen.

Inspectors Find Few Violations

At its meeting yesterday the Board of License Commissioners of Allegany County received reports on inspections of licensees.

William D. Porter, of Frostburg, the full-time inspector for the board, handed in report forms showing the results of checks made at 137 establishments. He took office June 1.

Porter said most places are abiding by the law and those which sell beer and wine have posted the required notices which state that liquor can not be displayed or consumed on the premises.

He also said he checked several places which are open after midnight and informed the license holders that no intoxicants can be sold after midnight and all bottles and glasses must be off the bar and the place cleared by 1 a. m. There are some places which hold restaurant licenses which can stay open later, but these establishments must not sell any intoxicants. They can only sell food after midnight it was explained.

Joseph Shuhart, Sr., of Barton, who has been named part-time inspector, reported he has checked license holders from Lonaconing to McCoole. He said he found no violations and in cases where the cards which must be displayed pertaining to the consumption or possession of liquor he found general observance good.

Donald Young, this city, the other part-time inspector, said he would hand in his report at the next meeting.

Harry G. Adams was granted a Class D beer license for "The Castle" at Mt. Savage. Edward H. Caspel was granted a Class B beer and wine license for the "Knotty Pine Restaurant" at 113 North Mechanic Street.

Bishop Walsh Told To Stay In Shanghai

Bishop James E. Walsh, 60, native of Cumberland, is among the eight Catholic churchmen the Chinese Reds have ordered to stay in Shanghai pending an investigation o. the Central Catholic Bureau there, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Hong Kong.

The official Communist government announcement that it has suspended the Catholic Central Bureau at Shanghai and ordered its personnel to remain in that city pending investigation reached Hong Kong Monday.

Seven priests attached to the bureau were ordered to stay in Shanghai along with Bishop Walsh. They are from Belgium, Ireland, Canada and France.

Bishop Walsh is a brother of William C. Walsh, Cumberland attorney and former attorney general of Maryland. He was born here a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William E. Walsh and received his early education in Cumberland.

Other relatives here are three sisters, Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian of the Cumberland Free Public Library, and Miss Margaret Walsh, both of 101 Washington Street, and Mrs. Julia Werner, Chase Street. The Rev. Father John F. Walsh, another brother connected with the Maryknoll order, is located in Bedford, Mass.

TWUA Executive Submits Report On Expulsion Cases

Officials of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), have received the complete report of the International Executive Council of the TWUA pertaining to the upholding of the local's action in expelling Arthur N. Schusterman and William Boyd Coleman from the organization because of membership in the Communist Party.

Another man, Clair R. Mease, was ordered reinstated in the union as the case against him was termed not sufficient. He was accused of acts detrimental to the union by "associating or collaborating" with members of the Communist party.

Properly Expelled

The members of the Executive Board in their report said "we believe Schusterman and Coleman were properly expelled."

"Although they were not eligible to hold office in the union because they were members of the Communist party, they did run for office and were elected," the Council wrote. Schusterman was recording secretary in 1946 and Coleman was president in 1946 and 1947. Both of them concealed the fact of their membership in the Communist party from the local union membership."

"We believe this to be a serious violation. Although we are not prepared to state that membership in the Communist party in and of itself permits expulsion under the terms of our Constitution, we do believe that if a member of our union who is also a member of the Communist party runs for office and wins that office, he is guilty of a serious breach of the Consitution. A member of the Communist party may remain a member of the union so long as he does not violate the union's Constitution.

Membership Concealed

"But Schusterman and Coleman did conceal their membership in the Communist party; they did hold office, despite the provision of the union's Constitution that made them ineligible for office.

"They engaged in typical Communist deception to infiltrate into positions of leadership in the local. It is this deception and fraud upon the union membership that makes their violation of the Constitution all the more serious, deserving of expulsion.

"We believe they were guilty of acts detrimental to the best interests of the union and they wilfully and knowingly violatd the Constitution and policies of the Textile Workers Union of America."

300 Bicycle Permits Issued By Police

City police have issued approximately 300 bicycle permits since last Monday. The deadline is July 1.

Authorities estimate there are more than 1,600 bikes in Cumberland. Detective Thomas J. See has charge of issuing licenses in the basement of Police Headquarters.

After the deadline, Chief R. Emmett Flynn warned, bicycles without tags will be confiscated. A fee of 25 cents is being charged for permits.

It makes a difference to a television actor whether he ranks or is.

NO METALLIC DEPOSIT!

It's true. Science now knows that engine cylinder wear, damage to valves, pistons and cylinders are the direct result of engine deposits left after combustion, and contamination.

Help protect your engine, help prevent engine deposits. Use the one motor fuel that can burn completely—Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel. Amoco-Gas is different. It is crystal clear. It is made of pure petroleum. It can burn completely. It can leave no metallic deposit. Use Amoco-Gas—for longer car life. There's nothing like it!

Duplicate Bridge Club Second Session Tonight

CURRENTLY enjoying a vacation tour of Europe, Margaret Truman (right) has a pleasant chat with Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium during a brief stopover she made in Brussels. (International)

Cumberland Duplicate Bridge Club will hold its second session of the new summer series tonight at the Cumberland Country Club.

Tonight's tournament will feature an interesting method of determining the winning pair as different systems of bidding and playing will be employed. Partners will be drawn as the members enter the ballroom and many will be playing for the first time with new partners. A grand prize will be awarded the winning couple.

The third session, June 28, will be the regular monthly Full Master Point night, and the season's largest attendance is anticipated.

The Country Club will be the scene of the first Annual Club Championship for open pairs, July 29. This tournament is open to any bridge player regardless of where he lives or whether he belongs to the social club or not.

The play will be a two-session event at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and all scores will be carried over from the afternoon session to the evening session. Two Full Master Points will be presented to all winning pairs in each section, both north and south and east and west. A grand prize will be given the pair who tops the entire field.

Social Chart

The Philathea Bible Class of Centre Street Methodist Church will meet tomorrow night at 7:45 p. m. in the Church Parlor. Miss Ella Hodgson will be guest speaker.

The North End Playground Association has suspended activities at the playhouse this week to prepare for the festival to be held next week.

The Loyal Daughters Bible Class of Kingsley Methodist Church will meet at the church Thursday at 8 p. m. with Mrs. Rhea Bolinger and Mrs. Thelma Hinkle as hostesses.

The Golden Glow Club will hold a picnic at Constitution Park Thursday evening. Members will meet at Central YMCA at 4 p. m. for transportation. Members are to bring their own place settings.

Duplicate Bridge Club Second Session Tonight

CURRENTLY enjoying a vacation tour of Europe, Margaret Truman (right) has a pleasant chat with Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium during a brief stopover she made in Brussels. (International)

Cumberland Duplicate Bridge Club will hold its second session of the new summer series tonight at the Cumberland Country Club.

Tonight's tournament will feature an interesting method of determining the winning pair as different systems of bidding and playing will be employed. Partners will be drawn as the members enter the ballroom and many will be playing for the first time with new partners. A grand prize will be awarded the winning couple.

The third session, June 28, will be the regular monthly Full Master Point night, and the season's largest attendance is anticipated.

The Country Club will be the scene of the first Annual Club Championship for open pairs, July 29. This tournament is open to any bridge player regardless of where he lives or whether he belongs to the social club or not.

The play will be a two-session event at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and all scores will be carried over from the afternoon session to the evening session. Two Full Master Points will be presented to all winning pairs in each section, both north and south and east and west. A grand prize will be given the pair who tops the entire field.

Social Chart

The Philathea Bible Class of Centre Street Methodist Church will meet tomorrow night at 7:45 p. m. in the Church Parlor. Miss Ella Hodgson will be guest speaker.

The North End Playground Association has suspended activities at the playhouse this week to prepare for the festival to be held next week.

The Loyal Daughters Bible Class of Kingsley Methodist Church will meet at the church Thursday at 8 p. m. with Mrs. Rhea Bolinger and Mrs. Thelma Hinkle as hostesses.

The Golden Glow Club will hold a picnic at Constitution Park Thursday evening. Members will meet at Central YMCA at 4 p. m. for transportation. Members are to bring their own place settings.

The WSCS of Melvin Methodist Church, Reynolds Street, will meet this evening at 7:30 at the church.

The Baraca Bible Class of St. Luke's Lutheran Church will hold its final meeting of the season in the form of a social tonight in the church hall. The class will resume in September.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON — Like a patchwork quilt, mixing all colors and materials, that's how you find capital conversation topics this week . . . Look at the Potomac patchwork:

Chinese Ambassadress Madame Wellington Koo hitting the road . . . Apparently, she didn't plan it that way but the lovely "Lady Without a Country" took off from "Twin Oaks" (now the Chinese Embassy, formerly home of Alexander Graham Bell) for a tour of America and a flight over the Pacific just on eve of President Truman calling for investigation of the China Lobby.

AUSTINE

After wining and dining by sympathetic Los Angelans and San Franciscans, Madame Koo heads over the ocean for the Philippines . . . Won't take in Formosa.

At Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston's dinner, his boss, Director of Defense Mobilization Charles Wilson, was backed against the wall by a certain GOP senator. "Lemme get this straight, Charlie, are you still a Republican?" stabbed the Senator . . . Wilson defended himself, "You know damn well I am—100 per cent."

• — • — •

Cloak-Rumors . . . That more and more political hostesses are phoning Chicago for hotel reservations for national conventions next summer . . . They want to get to know the candidates the minute they're nominated . . . Republicans predicting none of the well-known names will win the nomination race . . . More likely a dark horse from the Middle West . . . Besides pressures on senators and representatives from economic and legislative fronts, there are also vacation pressures . . . When summer rolls around their wives and kiddies hanker for lakes, streams and mountains, and so do the legislators . . . For the moment they can only talk about vacations though.

• — • — •

ECAer Parr Johnson wearing his cake very handsomely . . . Sitting beside Women's National Press Club President Ruth Montgomery at a recent birthday party in her honor, Mr. Johnson was lustily singing "Hap-py Biiirth-day tooo you" when somebody stumbled and threw the entire cake upside down in his lap! . . . Retiring to clean up, the bachelor remarked "The party's getting sticky."

• — • — •

The Capital is commenting on dapper Jiggs Donohue, our newest District commissioner . . . May I add my congrats to the praise heard about him on every side . . . Because after taking a stand on an issue, he reconsidered and has climbed over to my side of the fence . . . Hope I influenced him, if only a little . . . When public officials are wrong in their judgment, the press never hesitates to criticize . . . I wrote almost a whole column — an open letter to Commissioner Donohue — on how fluorination of the water supply reduces tooth decay in children . . . Improves the health of the community . . . Although Mr. Donohue had taken a stand against it for D. C., he later switched completely . . . That deserves a big bunch of roses — June roses.

The six-foot, powerful, "cafe au lait" Crown Prince Tonga from the Kingdom of Tonga visiting Harold Coolidge, the proper Bostonian, remote cousin of the presidential family.

Crown prince Tonga and Mr. Coolidge (a member of the American Academy of Sciences extremely concerned with conservation) met in the Fiji Islands . . . So when Coolidge learned the British government had invited the Polynesian prince to attend The Festival of Britain, he extended an invitation for a weekend in Washington . . . The weekend included:

Attending a meeting of the Academy of Scientists.

A cocktail party Friday night.

A small dinner with state and government conservation officials.

Sunday church services at National Cathedral.

Wearing a rain coat almost every minute over his carefully tailored European clothes . . . Alas! the prince from the sunny South Pacific now knows about Washington weather.

His kingdom consists of a string of 200 islands (principal source of wealth, bananas and dried coconut meat) and less than 50,000 subjects ruled by his mother.

A practicing Christian, educated in Australia, he speaks perfect English, has a baby son, (his third wedding anniversary happened to fall on June 10 while he was here), and was accompanied by an aide — an Irishman with a brogue! . . . That's not as wacky as it sounds . . . His kingdom has been for half a century a British protectorate . . . But the Crown Prince can rightfully brag he belongs to a dynasty older than the present British royal family . . . His family has worn a crown for over a thousand years!

Even straight-boned legs can look bowed, if the outer curves are over-developed. But reshaping them is easy!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Do you have sabre calves? Maybe you have never heard legs described by that term. But if you have them, you know that your legs give the appearance of being bowed, even though your bones are not malformed. Your legs have a marked outward curve of the outer side of the calf that destroys the beautiful line you want them to have.

Sabre calves are correctible, and quickly so. Instead of praying for long skirts to come back into fashion, get to work. You yourself can coax this minor defect back to normal in no time. Simple posture and exercise correctives will work wonders.

Reshaping Leglines

To reshape and reduce the sabre curves of the legs, perform this routine five times a day for a week and then increase gradually until you can run through it twenty times daily without feeling strain:

Remove your shoes and stand on your tiptoes, feet together, on a rug or carpet. Twist your knee caps away from each other, just as though you were turning doorknobs in opposite directions. Holding the twist, bend your knees as far as you can. Try to touch your hips to your heels — but watch it — don't let your feet slip out of position!

Whenever you can during the day, stand erect and take a few minutes to practice this supplementary routine: Twist your knee caps outward and hold the position for a count of five. In this way, you can give additional training to the muscles that need it without much physical effort on your part.

Make It Your Habit

Learn to monitor your posture during every minute of your waking hours. That is to say, be sure that you stand and walk with relaxed knees. The moment you stiffen your knees, you not only accentuate the bowline of the calves (as you can prove to yourself before a mirror) but you also put an unnatural amount of body pressure on the outer calf muscles. Such pressure will undo all the benefits of your corrective exercises and will tend to increase the muscles you are working to smooth into longer, smoother lines. Relax . . . and beautify!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON — Like a patchwork quilt, mixing all colors and materials, that's how you find capital conversation topics this week . . . Look at the Potomac patchwork:

Chinese Ambassadress Madame Wellington Koo hitting the road . . . Apparently, she didn't plan it that way but the lovely "Lady Without a Country" took off from "Twin Oaks" (now the Chinese Embassy, formerly home of Alexander Graham Bell) for a tour of America and a flight over the Pacific just on eve of President Truman calling for investigation of the China Lobby.

AUSTINE

After wining and dining by sympathetic Los Angelans and San Franciscans, Madame Koo heads over the ocean for the Philippines . . . Won't take in Formosa.

At Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston's dinner, his boss, Director of Defense Mobilization Charles Wilson, was backed against the wall by a certain GOP senator. "Lemme get this straight, Charlie, are you still a Republican?" stabbed the Senator . . . Wilson defended himself, "You know damn well I am—100 per cent."

•—•—•

Cloak-Rumors . . . That more and more political hostesses are phoning Chicago for hotel reservations for national conventions next summer . . . They want to get to know the candidates the minute they're nominated . . . Republicans predicting none of the well-known names will win the nomination race . . . More likely a dark horse from the Middle West . . . Besides pressures on senators and representatives from economic and legislative fronts, there are also vacation pressures . . . When summer rolls around their wives and kiddies hanker for lakes, streams and mountains, and so do the legislators . . . For the moment they can only talk about vacations though.

•—•—•

ECAer Parr Johnson wearing his cake very handsomely . . . Sitting beside Women's National Press Club President Ruth Montgomery at a recent birthday party in her honor, Mr. Johnson was lustily singing "Hap-py Biirth-day tooo you" when somebody stumbled and threw the entire cake upside down in his lap! . . . Retiring to clean up, the bachelor remarked "The party's getting sticky."

•—•—•

The Capital is commenting on dapper Jiggs Donohue, our newest District commissioner . . . May I add my congrats to the praise heard about him on every side . . . Because after taking a stand on an issue, he reconsidered and has climbed over to my side of the fence . . . Hope I influenced him, if only a little . . . When public officials are wrong in their judgment, the press never hesitates to criticize . . . I wrote almost a whole column — an open letter to Commissioner Donohue — on how fluorination of the water supply reduces tooth decay in children . . . Improves the health of the community . . . Although Mr. Donohue had taken a stand against it for D. C., he later switched completely . . . That deserves a big bunch of roses — June roses.

•—•—•

The six-foot, powerful, "cafe au lait" Crown Prince Tonga from the Kingdom of Tonga visiting Harold Coolidge, the proper Bostonian, remote cousin of the presidential family.

Crown prince Tonga and Mr. Coolidge (a member of the American Academy of Sciences extremely concerned with conservation) met in the Fiji Islands . . . So when Coolidge learned the British government had invited the Polynesian prince to attend The Festival of Britain, he extended an invitation for a weekend in Washington . . . The weekend included:

Attending a meeting of the Academy of Scientists.

A cocktail party Friday night.

A small dinner with state and government conservation officials.

Sunday church services at National Cathedral.

Wearing a rain coat almost every minute over his carefully tailored European clothes . . . Alas! the prince from the sunny South Pacific now knows about Washington weather.

His kingdom consists of a string of 200 islands (principal source of wealth, bananas and dried coconut meat) and less than 50,000 subjects ruled by his mother.

A practicing Christian, educated in Australia, he speaks perfect English, has a baby son, (his third wedding anniversary happened to fall on June 10 while he was here), and was accompanied by an aide — an Irishman with a brogue! . . . That's not as wacky as it sounds . . . His kingdom has been for half a century a British protectorate . . . But the Crown Prince can rightfully brag he belongs to a dynasty older than the present British royal family . . . His family has worn a crown for over a thousand years!

Even straight-boned legs can look bowed, if the outer curves are over-developed. But reshaping them is easy!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Do you have sabre calves? Maybe you have never heard legs described by that term. But if you have them, you know that your legs give the appearance of being bowed, even though your bones are not malformed. Your legs have a marked outward curve of the outer side of the calf that destroys the beautiful line you want them to have.

Sabre calves are correctible, and quickly so. Instead of praying for long skirts to come back into fashion, get to work. You yourself can coax this minor defect back to normal in no time. Simple posture and exercise correctives will work wonders.

Reshaping Leglines

To reshape and reduce the sabre curves of the legs, perform this routine five times a day for a week and then increase gradually until you can run through it twenty times daily without feeling strain:

Remove your shoes and stand on your tiptoes, feet together, on a rug or carpet. Twist your knee caps away from each other, just as though you were turning doorknobs in opposite directions. Holding the twist, bend your knees as far as you can. Try to touch your hips to your heels — but watch it — don't let your feet slip out of position!

Whenever you can during the day, stand erect and take a few minutes to practice this supplementary routine: Twist your knee caps outward and hold the position for a count of five. In this way, you can give additional training to the muscles that need it without much physical effort on your part.

Make It Your Habit

Learn to monitor your posture during every minute of your waking hours. That is to say, be sure that you stand and walk with relaxed knees. The moment you stiffen your knees, you not only accentuate the bowline of the calves (as you can prove to yourself before a mirror) but you also put an unnatural amount of body pressure on the outer calf muscles. Such pressure will undo all the benefits of your corrective exercises and will tend to increase the muscles you are working to smooth into longer, smoother lines. Relax . . . and beautify!

Bargaining Agent To Be Named By Western Maryland Crews

Balfoting Today Tomorrow, Friday

On the eve of voting for a collective bargaining agent for engineers, firemen and hostlers of the Western Maryland Railway, yesterday, the National Railroad Adjustment board remanded a case submitted by the Railroad Industrial Union.

Under the ruling it is up to the company and the local union to attempt to reach an agreement.

The RIU is one of the parties to the National Mediation Board election to be conducted in a car near the caller's office at Maryland Junction, W. Va., today, tomorrow and Friday. Opposing the RIU is the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and Enginemen.

Involves $71,000

"This case which concerns 31 men and involves almost $71,000 will be taken up immediately by the Brotherhood if we win this Western Maryland election," John P. Smarr, Hagerstown, general chairman of the Brotherhood for the Western Maryland system, said yesterday.

Smarr, a former resident of Cumberland, explained the election winner under the law must process any pending cases.

The Adjustment Board dispute was filed by the RIU on behalf of C. W. Thomas and T. W. Smith, hostlers of Hagerstown, and was a test case. It concerned the non-allowance of time tickets.

In remanding the case to the parties the Adjustment Board wrote "The petitioner and the carrier, having failed to reach accord in their negotiations, would have this division write a rule defining the work of hostlers on this property. The division not only declines to do so, but more important, this is beyond its authority and jurisdiction to do."

Smarr noted the Adjustment Board recently considered a similar case submitted by the Brotherhood and that the board awarded $35,000 in back pay to workers on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad. Along with Harry A. Porch, Cleveland, vice president of the Brotherhood, Smarr expressed confidence his organization would be successful in the local dispute. Porch is a former Cumberland resident.

Brotherhood Represented

Smarr pointed out the Brotherhood has representation on the Adjustment Board whereas the RIU does not.

Between 85 and 100 men are expected to vote here in the three days. Balloting time today will be between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m.; tomorrow between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., and Friday from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Voting on the system started June 11 and will continue to June 27. Ballots will be counted in Baltimore July 6. Almost 500 are eligible to vote.

Several years ago the Brotherhood lost a similar election, but now, according to Smarr and Porch, the membership is much larger. The Brotherhood instituted proceedings for the election.

Rescue Workers Fail To Locate Valentine

Rescue workers were unsuccessful again yesterday in an attempt to recover the body of Guy Valentine, 48, of Morningside Drive, who fell into the Potomac River late Sunday night.

Frederick C. "Buck" Dreyer, who conducted the rescue work, dragged the river all day Monday and yesterday. He said last night he plans to probe the river farther downstream at the end of the week.

Valentine tumbled from a 20-foot enbankment while walking along the tow path just below the Western Maryland Railway cutoff bridge.

Five Workshops For Musicians Ready To Start

150 Pupils Will Study Six Weeks

About 150 music students in Allegany County elementary and junior high schools will attend six-week workshops for specialists in various instruments, Jack Platt, supervisor of music education in the county school system, said yesterday.

Platt said that enrollment has justified two workshops for woodwind and brass band instruments and two for piano. A single workshop is planned for string instrument players.

One At West Side

One woodwind and brass workshop will be held at West Side School here Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 9 a. m. until noon, for six weeks beginning next week, with S. Lua Syckes, Allegany High School band director, in charge. The first session for this workshop will be held at 9 a. m. Friday because Syckes will be out of town the first part of next week.

The second will be held at Hill Street, Frostburg, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 9 a. m. until noon, beginning next Tuesday. Harry Malcolm, director of woodwind and brass instruments in the county schools, will conduct this workshop.

Mt. Royal School

Mt. Royal School here will be the location for the string instrument workshop, to be held Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays beginning next week. Martin Weisman, string instrument director, will be in charge.

One piano workshop will be held Tuesday and Thursdays at Virginia Avenue School, from 9 a. m. until noon, and the other at West Side School, Wednesdays and Fridays during the same hours, Miss Lois Stine, music teacher at Cresaptown School, will be in charge of both workshops.

Platt said that each workshop will culminate with a concert for parents and friends.

A limited number of additional registrations for the workshops still may be made by contacting Platt at the Board of Education office, 108 Washington Street.

Selectees May Enlist In Army

Selective service registrants who have been given pre-induction examinations and who have not received induction notification may enlist voluntarily at the local Army recruiting office in the Post Office building.

Sgt. Clarence Biehn said yesterday this will be effective from June 15 through July 13. He added a pre-inductee may have his choice of the regular Army or the Air Force.

Three 18-year-old graduates of Allegany High School enlisted in the Air Force for a period of four years and will receive basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. They are Bobbie A. McDermott, RFD 6, Cumberland, Daniel P. McKenzie, 103 Park Heights, and William N. Buchholtz, RFD No. 6, Cumberland.

Sgt. Robert S. Carner, who has been at the local Army recruiting office for the past two years has passed a physical and mental test at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., for entrance into Army Officers Candidate School.

Dynamite Caps Burned In Controlled Blaze

What some residents of the Westernport area thought was another explosion at the Harris Powder Company, Franklin Hill, about 4 p.m. yesterday actually was only a controlled fire set to get rid of dynamite caps, authorities reported.

Representatives of a chemical company from which Harris had purchased the dynamite caps conducted the precautionary fire. Alarm had been expressed about the presence of a number of dynamite caps lying around the area where one of the powder company's magazines was destroyed by an explosion June 11.

It was feared that curious persons might set off some of the dynamite caps with tragic results. When the controlled fire was first seen yesterday afternoon a fire alarm report was sent to Tri-Towns firemen.

Three Local Students Graduate From College

Three local students are listed among graduates receiving diplomas recently at commencement exercises in various universities.

J. Russell Cook Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Russell Cook Sr. 822 Buckingham Road, received a master's degree in business administration at Indiana University.

C. William Dailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dailey, 600 Kent Avenue, was awarded a bachelor of science degree at the University of Maryland, majoring in accounting.

Mary Emma Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Carl Richards, 859 Camden Avenue, was graduated from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. with a bachelor of science degree in botany.

Sisters To Meet

LONACONING — Miss Alma B. Crowe left Sunday for a two months vacation in Reno, Nev., where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Thelma Haas and niece Mrs. Shirley Webb, both formerly of Lonaconing. They have not seen each other in 12 years.

Three Counties Given Benefit Of Polio Drive

Three Maryland counties have received benefits from funds realized in the 1951 March of Dimes campaign held in January. Miss Catherine C. Gaule, state representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announces that a sizeable amount of the fund has been returned to the counties for emergency care of polio patients.

Prince George's County has received $8,700, Montgomery County $26,000 and Anne Arundel County $7,800, a total of $42,500. During a March of Dimes drive each year half of the funds are earmarked for use by the National Foundation and the other half for state use in the battle against the dread disease.

State Forester Visits District Office Here

State Forester H. C. Buckingham stopped off at the Allegany County Court House yesterday afternoon to discuss Western Maryland problems with District Forester William H. Johnson.

Buckingham was on his way to Garrett County with two Baltimore boys who will serve as life guards this summer in state parks in that county.

The boys are Frank Lee Blue, III, and George Bereska, Jr., both of whom were graduated this month from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute. Both are holders of YMCA and Red Cross senior life saving certificates. Blue will enroll at Tulane University in September and Bereska will go to the University of Maryland.

A third life guard in Garrett County will be Frederick R. Thayer, Jr., of Oakland, who completed his studies at Oakland High School this month. The guards will be situated at Swallow Falls, Harrington Manor and New Germany, but assignments of the boys have not yet been determined.

Buckingham said before leaving the Court House here yesterday that he plans to spend most of today in Garrett County. One of his tasks will be to complete arrangements for entertaining the 20-man State Legislative Council, which will visit New Germany overnight June 29.

Delegates from the 150 state ladies auxiliaries will register in the City Shrine Club.

The first session will be called to order by State President G. Mitchell Boulden, of Elkton. The invocation will be given by Rev. James W. Winter, of Hereford, chaplain.

Welcome By Post

The address of welcome to the delegates will be given by Mayor Thomas S. Post. The response to the welcome will be by Past President Philip J. Ryan, of Mt. Rainier.

Other business includes recognition of past presidents; announcements; appointment of credential committee, and roll call.

Annual reports will be given by Boulden; Zembower, vice president; B. Harrison Shipley, vice president; William A. Wilson, Midland, treasurer; Ted C. Gardner, Sr., Riverdale Heights, secretary; Rev. Mr. Minter.

John O. Cockey, Glydon, chairman of the Board of Trustees; William A. Chenoweth, Pikesville, chairman of the executive committee; Harry C. Walters, Corriganville, chairman of the exhibit committee.

More Reports

T. Alan Penn, Clinton, chairman of the fire chiefs committee; Benjamin W. Poindexter, Lexington Road, charman of the fire prevention bureau; David S. Tuohey, Cabin John, chairman of the fire service booster committee.

Harry E. Marschalk, Takoma Park, chairman of the historial and archives committee; John W. Smith, West Annapolis, chairman of the legislative committee; T. K. Blake, Jr., North East, chairman of the publicity committee, and Ersal D. Davey, Herald Harbor, chairman of the topics and statistics committee.

After the reports have been presented the afternoon session will be adjourned.

The convention will be concluded with a parade Friday at 7:30 p. m. starting in South End and going to the State Armory.

Will Be President

Cromwell C. Zembower, of LaVale, is unopposed for the office of president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association which opens its 59th annual convention tomorrow morning at the State Armory.

Zembower served this year as first vice president of the association. He is secretary of the convention committee that has as its chairman, Nelson W. Russler.

Zembower is a charter member of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department and is a past president of the Allegany-Garrett County Firemen's Association. Previously he served as chairman of the state association's statistical committee.

MRS. LENA MAY McCAULEY

Mrs. Lena May McCauley, 79, of 545 North Mechanic Street, died last night in Allegany Hospital where she had been a patient six days. She had been in failing health for four years.

Born in Slanesville, W. Va., she was the widow of George W. McCauley who died two years ago, and a daughter of the late Marion F. and Catherine Hoffman Fravel. She was a member of the Paw Paw Methodist Church and resided in Cumberland for about a year.

Surviving are four children, Victor E. McCauley, Mrs. Carl Robinette, with whom she resided, and Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, Cumberland, and Mrs. Carl Robinette, Ellerslie; a brother, Charles Fravel, Florida; a sister, Mrs. Edgar Smith, Ladiesburg, nine grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Controlled Materials Manual Received

A 17-page booklet, "Allotment Accounting for Consumers Under CMP", has been received by the local Chamber of Commerce office. It spells out the why, what, and how of records that must be established and maintained by consumers of controlled materials who receive allotments of such materials under the federal controlled materials plan.

The manual describes records consumers must keep to account for their use of steel, copper and aluminum. Anyone desiring to refer to the manual is asked to contact Harold W. Smith, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bill of complaint was titled Clay Sipple vs. Anna Sipple.

Margaret Truman Buys Paris Dress

PARIS, June 19 (AP) — Margaret Truman took a quick look at the heart of Paris today and promptly bought five "exciting" dresses.

The shopping was done at the fashionable establishment of Jacques Griffe. Griffe reported later that the purchases were three afternoon dresses, a tailored suit and an evening dress, the latter a fluffy crinoline in red lace.

The President's daughter, who is seeing the French capital for the first time, was accompanied this morning by Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the American ambassador. They lunched at Maxim's and visited the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the Chapel of St. Chappelle.

Harris Is Divorced

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, has been divorced by his wife, the former Elizabeth Sutherland.

Harris confirmed this tonight, the Washington Times Herald said, but declined further comment.

Margaret Truman Buys Paris Dress

PARIS, June 19 (AP) — Margaret Truman took a quick look at the heart of Paris today and promptly bought five "exciting" dresses.

The shopping was done at the fashionable establishment of Jacques Griffe. Griffe reported later that the purchases were three afternoon dresses, a tailored suit and an evening dress, the latter a fluffy crinoline in red lace.

The President's daughter, who is seeing the French capital for the first time, was accompanied this morning by Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the American ambassador. They lunched at Maxim's and visited the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the Chapel of St. Chappelle.

Harris Is Divorced

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, has been divorced by his wife, the former Elizabeth Sutherland.

Harris confirmed this tonight, the Washington Times Herald said, but declined further comment.

Hungary Calls Prelate To Trial

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 19 (AP) — Hungary disclosed today Archbishop Joszef Grosz will be called to trial Frdiay on charges that he took over from the imprisoned Cardinal Mindszenty the leadership of a group aimed at overthrowing the Communist government.

It was announced that Archbishop Grosz, 64, the righest ranking Roman Catholic clergyman in Hungary, has confessed he was the Cardinal's heir in such a movement and that armed groups had begun organizing to seize power.

He is accused of plotting against the government, dealing in black market currency, helping persons to flee Hungary and other crimes. Cardinal Mindszenty, under whom he worked, was sent to prison for life in 1949 on similar charges.

Eight others, including a Hungarian employe of the United States Information Service, will go on trial with the Archbishop. The U.S.I.S. employe is Dr. Elajos Pongracz, 42, who was arrested a month ago as a spy suspect. The government indictment said he and the others also have confessed in pre-trial statements.

1,300 Farmers' Wives Begin Short Course

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 19 (AP)—The 1,300 farmers' wives at the 25th rural women's short course buckled down to classes today.

"If the women of Russia could only see you," Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) at their first general assembly.

"If they could be onlookers and see democracy in action it would be about as potent an argument for our government, our way of life as could be imagined.' '

The women attended two hours of classes before trooping into the armory building for the first assembly and the Senator's talk. They are going to school for the week, taking accelerated courses in all kinds of subjects designed to make farm life and farm homes more attractive.

Trying On Dress Of Older Sister Costs Child Life

BALDWINVILLE, Mass., June 19 (AP) — The desire of little Claire Graves, 12, to see how she would appear in an older sister's new party dress cost the child her life.

Claire donned the dress last night, then stood on a bed, the better to view her reflection in a mirror. She slipped, struck a bed post and died.

Britain Orders China Embargo

LONDON, June 19 (AP) —Britain moved today to cut off the leakage of war materials through Hong Kong into Red China. The news was welcomed in Washington.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the government board of trade, announced he is:

1. Subjecting all United Kingdom exports for the crowd colony of Hong Kong and for China to strict licensing control as of next Tuesday —with a complete embargo on strategic goods.

2. Requesting Hong Kong to set up an import licensing system which would keep out war materials from non-British sources intended for re-export to the Chinese Communists.

Shawcross told the House of commons the United Kingdom embargo will be observed by all British colonies and territories, including Hong Kong itself.

He said no export licenses would be granted for shipment to China "of goods which in present circumstances could be of strategic and military importance."

A month ago, newspaper published an AP Wirephoto showing the little girl being kissed by her horse, Pirky, and a torrent of "get well" mail followed.

British Make Plans For Winter Campaign

LONDON, June 19 (AP) — The British government is making preparations for the continuation of the Korean campaign during the coming winter.

Several questions were asked in the House of Commons today about the provision of heating equipment for British troops there.

War Minister John Starchey said the government has made arrangements with United States authorities for stoves "for all our troops in Korea in time" for the cold weather.

Woman Wrestler Gives Husband's Friend "Haircut"

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 19 (AP)—A husky woman wrestler who police said snipped the blonde locks of a woman friend of her husband pleaded guilty today to assault and battery charges.

Mrs. Ida Juras, 33, Chicopee, was given a three-month suspended jail sentence by District Judge John M. Noonan. She was arrested on complaint of Miss Helen Sagan, Springfield.

Police said Mrs. Juras told them she had quarreled with her husband over Miss Sagan and that he had told her "not to touch a hair" of Miss Sagan's head.

Sedgman And Brough Head Seeded Players

LONDON, June 19 (INS) — Frank Sedgman, Australia's No. 1 tennis player, was seeded first today for the Wimbledon tennis championships starting June 25.

Budge Patty, of Los Angeles, the defending champion who has seen little action since winning his Wimbledon crown last summer, was seeded fourth behind Sedgman, Jaroslav Drobny, the Cezch and Arthur Larsen, U. S. champion from San Leandro, Cal.

American women took the top seven of eight seedings as follows: Louise Brough, of Beverly Hills, Cal., holder of the Wimbledon singles, doubles and mixed doubles crowns; Mrs. Margaret Osborn du Pont, of Bellevue, Del., U. S. champion; Doris Hart, of Coral Gables, Fla., Shirley Fry, of Akron, O., Beverly Baker, of Santa Monica, Cal., Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd, of La Jolla, Cal., Nancy Chaffee, of Ventura, Cal., and Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith, of England.

Czech Trial Set For AP's Oatis

LONDON, June 19 (AP) — Czechoslovakia has informed the United States that Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis will go on trial within a few days.

Oatis, arrested April 23 on charges which included activities hostile to the Communist government, may be given a public hearing before the state court, advices from Prague said today.

Foreign Minister Vilem Siroky told U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs the news when Briggs called at the Foreign Ministry last Friday. (The U. S. State Department said an American Embassy official is to be permitted to attend the trial.)

Frank J. Starzel, general manager of the Associated Press, has said the AP knows of no basis for the charges against Oatis.

Ship Operators Move To Settle Walkout

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The first sign of hope toward ending the four-day-old East and Gulf coast maritime tieup came today when shipping operators offered to make "some concessions."

Steps were rushed immediately for a night session of federal mediators with full bargaining committees of the operators and the three CIO unions involved in the stoppage.

The move by the operators came as an increasing number of ships missed scheduled sailings under a "no contract, no work" edit by the crews.

"We will go into the meeting with the idea in mind of making some concessions," Frank J. Taylor, chairman of a committee representing 40 shipping companies, told reporters.

American Wheat Heads For India

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 (AP)—American wheat, 336,000 bushels of it, was loaded on a Liberty ship today, the first U. S. grain cargo bound for famine-stricken India.

Madame Pandit, India's ambassador to the United States, stood on the deck of the brightly-painted vessel, John Chester Kendall, and said "thank you, thank you America" as longshoremen funneled the wheat into the yawning holds. The ship sails tonight.

"The ordinary words of gratitude are a poor expression for the manner in which America has risen to the occasion and helped its Indian friends," Madame Pandit said. "My countrymen will not forget. We know who are our friends."

And the woman whose brother, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, is India's prime minister pointedly thanked "the CIO unions for permitting this ship to be loaded to sail for my country today."

The CIO-National Maritime Union has idled all vessels on the Atlantic coast in a wage dispute, but it permitted its members to sign on the Kendall because it carries "critical cargo" for India.

Marylanders Warned Fireworks are Illegal

BALTIMORE, June 19 (AP) —Folks who like to celebrate the Fourth of July the old-fashioned way got a warning from the state insurance commissioner today. Fireworks are illegal.

They are illegal, Insurance Commissioner Harvey M. Chesney said, unless a permit has been obtained from the insurance department. Such permits are issued only after 10 days notice and after a careful inspection for fire hazards.

Nehru Tells Indians U. S. Has Come To Aid

DARBHANGA, India, June 19 (AP) —More than half a million people of famine-pinched Bihar state lined the railroad tracks and back roads to greet Prime Minister Jawahrlal Nehru today. He is making a 70-mile tour by train and jeep of the more acutely affected villages.

Nehru assured the cheering crowds that food was being rushed to scarcity areas by the Indian government and paid fribute to the United States for granting a loan with which 2,000,000 tons of American grain is being purchased.

"The United States, a country far from here, has come to our aid with food grains," he told his listeners.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Entertaining A New York Visitor

Mrs. Hal McCall came to New York recently to look the town over. As a result, I went places and saw things which had been blank spots for several years. When we stopped at Tuscaloosa, Ala., last winter to visit the McCall family, they turned the university town upside down, and you would think we were distinguished old grads or former quarterbacks of the Alabama football team who had made the All America.

Of course, we did not go to the Aquarium or Grant's Tomb or ride around on a sight-seeing bus. This yound lady, who is one of the best golfers of her sex in the Deep South, had already looked at pictures of those in her geography book. We started out one day at 11 in the morning for the race track to be sure we got there in time to bet on the daily double. As previously reported, this enterprise turned out well for all concerned, except Wheeler.

W had been invited to a cocktail party in honor of our guest on the way home, and it was the first one of these affairs I had attended since the late publisher's meeting at the Waldorf, following which I shortly came down with gout. This gathering was a great success, although because of the crowd and acoustics I could hear very little of what was said and I was calling guys "Joe" in a most friendly fashion when I found out later their names were Arthur and Harold. Several addressed me as "Mac."

The place was packed as is usually the case, an dit reminded me of a remark Bugs Baer made years ago when I was with him in Paris. We were dining at Maxim's, a famous French trap which achieved prominence in a song from "The Merry Widow," a great musical hit. The room, a small one, was crowded with diners and an orchestra that totaled about 10, armed with all sorts of instruments, mostly horns. In fact, some of them had overflowed and were sitting on the stairs. When they played a tune, the dishes on the table quivered and the noise was so great you might as well try to converse sitting under Niagara Falls. Between spasms, Bugs turned to me and said,

"It's the first time I ever heard Sousa's band in a telephone booth." Now you get the idea about cocktail parties.

My wife, Mrs. McCall and I started off together for dinner, and I mildly suggested the Unitversity Club which is quiet and fairly cheap, but was overruled by a vote of two to one, so we went to the Stork Club, of which Mr. Sherman Billingsley is the president and chairman of the board. It was my first visit there in more than a year, but we managed to get in without crawling under the velvet rope and landed in the Cub Room where everybody looks around to see what celebrities are present, and, if you don't happen to be the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, the rest are disappointed. Our appearance didn't make a ripple.

We ordered dinner, and I added a bottle of beer which shocked the waiter somewhat. Then things began to arrive, first perfume and lipstick for my two lady friends, next a bottle of champagne, and finally Mr. Billingsley, himself. This performance certainly gave me a lot of standing in Tuscaloosa. It was worth the price.

"How can you make any money when you give away all this stuff? I asked the boss. I found out later when I added up the check for what we had ordered.

"Only a few customers get it," he answered with a gracious smile. "I don't know how we do it except at the end of each year we seem to owe Uncle Sam money, so we must come out ahead."

Then he got to talking about his farm, 50 miles or so from New York.

"I have a station wagon," he said, "with a bed in it. When I leave at night, I go to sleep while I'm riding home and taking all the garbage from here to feed the pigs." This struck me as an interesting picture—the dapper Mr. B. and the garbage traveling together. He's a practical guy.

"Next day," he went on, "I bring back fresh vegetables with me for the Stork Club where I spend most of my time."

He's a generous man and remembers old customers from the first days when he started in business. I know one man, formerly rich, now broke, who can still sign checks there, although it is a sure thing he will never be able to pay.

"It's okay with me," added Sherman when I mentioned it.

Space will not permit me to chronicle the rest of the week. We went to the theater and various other places. It all proved to me age cannot keep in step with youth. Just before our friend departed, she said,

"You know I wouldn't live in this town if you gave it to me."

I took a couple of vitamin capsules and started for my farm in Connecticut.

Lower Floors Of Modern Buildings Provide Good A-Bomb Protection

NEW YORK, (AP)—You can survive an atom bomb, even when directly under it, if you are inside the lower floors of a modern building. In Hiroshima, the first atom-bombed city, 1,200 Japanese did so survive.

This report was made by Dr. L. W. Tuttle, of the division of biology and medicine, U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, to the opening session of the Institute of Food Technologists.

"We should be encouraged," he said, "by the knowledge that in the city of Hiroshima, a city of flimsy structures with only a handful of modern buildings, there were 1,200 survivors within the thousand-yard radius, the so-called zone of total destruction, directly under the burst.

"This attack was made upon a completely unaltered, undisciplined city at the peak of the morning rush hour, and those who survived, for the most part, were persons who just happened to be in the lower stories or basements of the few modern, reinforced concrete structures in the city.

"Let us note that at a point only a few hundred yards from the bomb itself one foot of concrete will protect against the blast and heat effects of the bomb, and a foot of concrete plus the equivalent of four or five feet of earth will afford complete protection also against the radiation (radioactive rays) from a bomb.

"From these facts we can conclude that persons in a modern city who have time to get into the subways or the basements of reinforced concrete buildings have a good-to-excellent chance of surviving with no injuries at all even within a few hundred yards of ground zero. (Zero is the point directly below the bomb).

"Persons who may be in any but the top half dozen stories of modern buildings and who are in the inner corridors will have a fair-to-good chance of surviving with non-disabling injuries."

Dr. Tuttle repeats the fact that almost nobody has understood about radioactivity dangers—namely that if the bomb is exploded at the height where it will do the most heat and blast damage, there is no danger from radioactivity after the first 30 seconds, but that there is a lot of long-lingering danger if the bomb is exploded close to the ground. And that this danger is not immediate death.

The radioactivity created in the ground and buildings by a low burst would create a long term problem which would tax the ingenuity of any community. And there would be additional problems in radioactivity in water supplies and of food or material used in food processing. These could harm people. They would be unlikely to cause death where precautions were taken to avoid over-exposure.

Quarterly Seminar Held By Health Officials

Deputy health officers from five counties and the State Department of Health officials met at the Department of Health yesterday for a quarterly seminar.

The seminars are held each three months to discuss various health problems, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, said. Seven counties were included in this seminar, but two, Garrett and Carroll, were not presented at the session.

Details of the closed session were not announced.

Attending are Dr. Dean Roberts, deputy director of the State Department of Health; Dr. Allan W. Freeman, consultant in public administration for the State Department of Health; Dr. C. E. Waller, chief of the division of V-D control, of the State Department of Health; Dr. Theodore Shrop, Howard county; Dr. V. E. Ellicott, Montgomery county and his assistant, Dr. Audrey McDonald; Dr. F. H. Burgess, Frederick county; Dr. Perry F. Prather, Washington county; and Dr. Frantz.

Woman Shoots Rattlesnake

A Gramlich Road woman shot and killed a 42-inch rattlesnake Monday in the garden of a neighbor.

The snake, which had 14 rattles and a button, was found in the garden of Mrs. Lester Whiteside, Gramlich Road, by her mother Mrs. C. C. Hendrickson, Cash Valley Road, and Mrs. Doris Kauffman, Gramlich Road.

Mrs. Kauffman obtained a rifle and killed the reptile.

They help NATURAL GAS serve you!

Today we pay tribute to the veterans of our business—men and women who have been on the job from 25 to 45 years.

Two recognitions will be given for this long and loyal service.

CUMBERLAND CHAPTER QUARTER CENTURY CLUB

These pins will signify the completion of 25, 30, 35, 40 and even 45 years of helping natural gas serve you.

Special honor will be paid to one employee whose 25-year service record entitles him to be welcomed into the Quarter Century Club. In addition to the 25-year service pin, he will receive a beautiful new gold watch.

W. A. Spangler of Piedmont, W. Va. is the new Quarter Century Club member. If you know him, do add your congratulations to ours.

W. A. Spangler

May we speak directly to Mr. Spangler and to the other members . . . for all to read?

We want you Quarter Century Club members to know that your company is very proud to have you celebrate many years of active service in this natural gas business. We appreciate the confidence and trust you have in us.

We can only guess how much the Gas Company has meant to you and your families during these many years.

When we are told that we have a good natural gas service, most of the credit must go to you. A splendid job has been done through the years.

May you be with us for a long time to come.

"Persons who may be in any but the top half dozen stories of modern buildings and who are in the inner corridors will have a fair-to-good chance of surviving with non-disabling injuries."

Dr. Tuttle repeats the fact that almost nobody has understood about radioactivity dangers—namely that if the bomb is exploded at the height where it will do the most heat and blast damage, there is no danger from radioactivity after the first 30 seconds, but that there is a lot of long-lingering danger if the bomb is exploded close to the ground. And that this danger is not immediate death.

The radioactivity created in the ground and buildings by a low burst would create a long term problem which would tax the ingenuity of any community. And there would be additional problems in radioactivity in water supplies and of food or material used in food processing. These could harm people. They would be unlikely to cause death where precautions were taken to avoid over-exposure.

They help NATURAL GAS serve you!

Today we pay tribute to the veterans of our business—men and women who have been on the job from 25 to 45 years.

Two recognitions will be given for this long and loyal service.

CUMBERLAND CHAPTER QUARTER CENTURY CLUB

These pins will signify the completion of 25, 30, 35, 40 and even 45 years of helping natural gas serve you.

Special honor will be paid to one employee whose 25-year service record entitles him to be welcomed into the Quarter Century Club. In addition to the 25-year service pin, he will receive a beautiful new gold watch.

W. A. Spangler of Piedmont, W. Va. is the new Quarter Century Club member. If you know him, do add your congratulations to ours.

W. A. Spangler

May we speak directly to Mr. Spangler and to the other members . . . for all to read?

We want you Quarter Century Club members to know that your company is very proud to have you celebrate many years of active service in this natural gas business. We appreciate the confidence and trust you have in us.

We can only guess how much the Gas Company has meant to you and your families during these many years.

When we are told that we have a good natural gas service, most of the credit must go to you. A splendid job has been done through the years.

May you be with us for a long time to come.

Bobby Raines Hurls Perfect Game In Legion League Opener

Westernport Is Winner, 5-0; Midland Whips Cumberland

Brodie Is 8-4 Victor; 21 Grantsville Batters Face Raines, 19 Whiff

Bobby Raines, who pitched a brilliant article of ball throughout the Bi-State Scholastic Conference for Bruce High School this spring, hurled a perfect game yesterday as Victory Post of Westernport launched its campaign in the Mountain District American Legion Junior Baseball League with a 5-0 decision over Grantsville Post of Garrett county.

Only 21 men faced the kid right-hander and 19 of them went down via the strikeout route. Bobby failed to issue a pass or hit a batter and his mates accorded his errorless support. Grantsville failed to get a man on base throughout the 7-inning tilt.

Westernport earned four of its five runs and Raines batter in two of the tallies. He and Mike Nofsinger shared four of the winners' seven safeties yielded by McKenzie and J. George.

Brodie Wins For Champs

Midland Post's defending champions got away to a flying start when they defeated Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 at the Midland Ball Park before a good-sized crowd by the score of 8-4.

Jack Brodie, Central High School (Lonaconing) star of the past season, limited the Cumberlanders to four hits and fanned nine.

Tom Richards homered for Midland in the third inning with Tom Kelly abroad. Richards also rapped a single and turned in a nice catch back of third base on Robertson's fly in the 7th inning. Burner also collected two hits for Manager Huge Coleman's team. Widdows was credited with two of the losers' safeties.

Verl Ash, mayor of Midland tossed the first ball which was caught by Eddie Wegman, Mountain District baseball commissioner. "It looked like a "Rip" Sewell blooper pitch and I had to stretch to catch it," Wegman said. Ash crossed up the advance dope by throwing right-handed.

Lions Grab 4th In Row

Edge Exchange, 4-3; Two Contests Today

Manager Jim Stevenson's Lions Club, only undefeated team in the Hot Stove Baseball League, made it four in a row yesterday by nosing out the Exchange Club last night at Penn Avenue Field by the score of 4-3.

Bob Dawson, the Paca Street speedball artist, struck out 15 Exchange Club batsmen and scattered six hits. Galan McGregor held the Lions to four hits, one of which was a homer by Ed Widdows in the 5th stanza, and fanned eight.

Only one of the Exchange Club's runs was earned.

Two games are scheduled today in the Hot Stove League. The Optimist Club and B'nai B'rith meet at Fort Hill Field while the Kiwanis Club and Jaycees tangle at Campobello. Both tilts are set for 3:30 p. m. Last night's score:

Holmes Named As Successor To Southworth

Billy Resigns Post As Braves' Manager

BOSTON, June 19 (AP) — Billy Southworth, one of the National League's most successful managers, has resigned from the Boston Braves. His request to be relieved of five-year contract that runs through 1952 was granted by President Lou Perini.

The latter named Tommy Holmes, one of the most popular players in recent Boston history, to take over as manager for the remainder of this season and all of next.

Now 58, Southworth, who suffered a near nervous breakdown in midseason of 1949, informed Perini and general manager John Quinn last Sunday that he felt "some one else could do a better job."

Southworth came to the Braves from the Cardinals in 1946, after his St. Louis club won pennants in 1942-43-44. He directed the Braves to their first National League championship in 34 years in 1948.

Southworth's initial Boston contract was a long-term affair that called for a $35,000 annual salary. After the 1947 season, however, Southworth was signed to a new five-year agreement that was reported to guarantee him a quarter-million dollars.

The second Southworth departure from the Braves in three seasons was announced by Quinn in Chicago this afternoon, shortly before the Braves were shut out, 3-0, by the Cubs.

At the time, Holmes was in Elmira, N. Y., with his Hartford club, the Braves-owned Eastern League farm, which he took over this season.

"The first I heard the job mentioned was Sunday," Holmes said. "Mr. Perini called me and asked me if I'd take the challenge. I told him 'yes'."

When Southworth became ill two seasons ago, Coach Johnny Cooney replaced him. At the time Cooney asked Perini not to consider his appointment permanent, regardless of Southworth's future health. Billy appeared to be in perfect physical shape when he rejoined the Braves in the 1950 spring training camp.

Under Southworth, the Braves finished fourth and third before leading the league in 1948. They also were fourth the past two seasons and now are in fifth place with 28 wins and 31 losses, 15 of which have been by one-run margins.

Both Perini and Southworth urged Holmes to end his nine-year major league playing career this season by succeeding "Rip" Collins, former Cardinals star, as the Hartford pilot.

Tommy has been operating as a player-manager while boosting his Eastern League forces into second place.

U. B. Wins Protest, Sunday School Loop Replay Set Today

Cresaptown Methodist defeated First Methodist, 11-5, in the opening game of the best-of-three series for the championship of the YMCA Sunday School Softball League yesterday at Stitcher Field then learned that a protest filed by United Brthren in the semi-finals of the playoffs was upheld last night by the league board of directors and that game which First Methodist won, 8-6, on Monday, must be replayed from the third frame when the score was 4-4.

The protest was over a player being called out for batting out of turn.

If First Methodist wins the replay the result of yesterday's game will stand. If UB wins the protested game a new series with Cresaptown must be started.

U. B. and First Methodist will meet today at East Side Field at 6 p. m. The score was 4-4 with two out and Fred Wolford at bat in the third inning when the protest was filed.

In yesterday's game, Gene Horton hit two homers and Ronnie Turner, one, for Cresaptown. Score:

White Sox Hold New Yorkers On Even Terms Before 60,441

Pale Hose Win, 5-4, After 11-9 Defeat

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The battling Chicago White Sox showed why they are leading the pack in the American League when they came surging back in the twilight of a long day to defeat their sternest rivals, the New York Yankees, 5 to 4, in the second game of their vital doubleheader after the Bombers had beaten them 11-9 in the opener.

Bob Dillinger, a pinch hitter, drove across the deciding run in the ninth inning of the tense second game with a line double to right after the veteran Ed Stewart had kept the Six in the struggle with a three-run homer off Vic Raschi in the previous inning.

A paid crowd of 60,441 packed the big stadium for the doubleheader.

The even break enabled the Sox to keep a tight hold on their three and one-half game lead and guaranteed that they will leave New York still the club to catch, no matter what the result of single games tomorrow and Thursday.

The first game dragged on for three hours and 11 minutes.

Seven pitchers took part, four for the winners, and none earned his day's pay until Joe Ostrowski held the league leaders to a single hit over the final three innings. He was the winner.

A total of 27 hits pierced the humid air, 15 of them Yankee propelled and including three-run homers by Yogi Berra, his 10th, and Mantle, his fifth. Box:

Eagles Halted By Moose, 4-3

Snap 14-Game Win Streak In Tenth

Joe Geatz's single scored Bob Wade with the 10th inning run that gave the Loyal Order of Moose tossers a 4-3 decision over the Fraternal Order of Eagles and snapped the latter's 14-game winning streak in a Rocking Chair Softball League battle yesterday at East Side Field.

It was the first loss of the season for the Eagles who now lead the race by three full games.

Bob Wade hit to open the third overtime frame and moved to second on Comer's sacrifice. After Williams was purposely passed, Geatz delivered the game-winning hit to left-center. A two-run rally by the Moose in the last of the 7th had sent the game into extra innings.

Bob Wade and Archie Carr shared four of the Moose team's 10 hits. Morrissey made a sensational catch of Lou Riehl's drive to left in the 10th while Jim Rice turned Joe Geatz's fly to centerfield into a double play. Pete Elliott had three of the Eagles' six hits.

Jim Morrison's three-hit pitching, home runs by "Shorty" Brown and Bill Sweitzer and three hits by George Hixenbaugh featured the Outdoor Club's 8-1 win over the Knights of Columbus at Campobello. Ray Swach scored the Knights only run in the first inning.

Bill Underdonk posted his 10th win of the season as the B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Amvets at Fort Hill in a nine-inning battle, 3 to 1. Two runs in the ninth broke the 1-1 deadlock. Underdonk rapped a pair of doubles while "Bee" Orndorff and Bob Pence had two singles apiece for the Elks. The scores:

Bill Buzzard's Dodgers kept their record unblemished in the Dan Division of the Little League by walloping the Braves yesterday at Community Park by the score of 16-5.

While Frank Valentine was turning back the Braves with six hits and fanning 10, his mates teed off on Wolford and Beck for an even dozen safeties to register 5th consecutive win of the season.

Ronnie Bruce belted a homer and two singles and Dave Wallace connected for a homer and single to pace the winners at the plate. B. Beck with three hits and Wolford with two led the Braves' hitters.

Bob Paye's stellar relief pitching highlighted the Indians' 2-1 victory over the Tigers last night at Penn Avenue Field.

Paye came on to relieve Hook in the 4th and notched his fourth victory against no losses. The Indians put over the winning tally in the sixth when Ronnie Mayo walked, stole second and scored on Bollu Brode's sharp single into centerfield. Robert Judy had two of the Indians' five hits and Weatherholt collected two of the Tigers' three. The loss was the fifth for the winless Tigers. Hook and Paye struck out six batters each while McGann fanned eight. The scores:

Prices Have 11 Racers — "13" Lucky For Beall
Little League's March — Ed, Doug Hit "Double"

By C. V. BURNS

Eleven thoroughbreds owned by Enoch P. Price and his son, Junior, of Frostburg, are now quartered at two West Virginia tracks.

Six of the bangtails are now racing at Waterford Park, the new track in West Virginia. They are Melissa W., which has figured in three big payoffs in as many races, LaVega, Rectortown, Bus N Bus, Bonziah Seniah and Neddies Doll which ran in the 8th race yesterday. Waterford's 40-day meeting closes July 4.

Five of the Price bread winners are at Charles Town awaiting the opening of the 19-meet on Saturday. They are Stanley, Maid Sun, Mr. Frostburg, Tiz Tiz It and Hurray Beacon, a two-year-old that has never started.

After Charles Town, the Price runners will vie at Fairgo. The local 10-day meeting opens July 17.

There's a good story going the rounds relative to Lee Sala's recent appearance in that stinkeroo of a pro show at the State Armory.

Jimmy Milligan, a 4th rater from New Jersey was slated to meet Sala but a last minute change brought in a high board artist named "Buddy" Jackson.

The local gambling fraternity, eager to get a line on Jackson, called out-of-town and here's the information their received.

"If it was legal to mark up a KO before the fight begins you can count Jackson as already knocked out."

Jackson was starched by Sala in 2:54 of the first round.

NOVELTY IN ENGINES

The Diesel Requires No Stoker and Emits No Smell or Smoke

The Diesel engine is a new thing, rich with promise. It has no boiler and no furnace; it requires no stoker; it emits no smell or smoke. I have seen a 22 horse-power specimen at work near Manchester, writes a correspondent of the London News, and the principle is equally applicable to an engine of 2,200 horsepower. Its fuel is various. The Manchester specimen feeds on air and oil — ordinary air and oil of the coarsest and cheapest. Gasses — including, it is believed, one that is at present a waste product — and coal dust, also in conjunction with air, are alternative articles of diet. In any case, the Diesel requires only half as much food as other engines. . . . Complete combustion of fuel is the ideal that Mr. Diesel has aimed at and apparently achieved. The smell that comes from oil motors and the smoke that arises from chimneys (it has been explained to me) both represent fuel which, owing to a deficiency of available oxygen, has escaped combustion and employment. In the new engine air and oil (or other fuels) are balanced, or, rather, the former is introduced in excess of the quantity necessary for the consumption of the latter. — Excerpts from an article on Diesel Motors appearing in The Daily News of May 24th, 1901.

Bobby Raines Hurls Perfect Game In Legion League Opener

Westernport Is Winner, 5-0; Midland Whips Cumberland

Brodie Is 8-4 Victor; 21 Grantsville Batters Face Raines, 19 Whiff

Bobby Raines, who pitched a brilliant article of ball throughout the Bi-State Scholastic Conference for Bruce High School this spring, hurled a perfect game yesterday as Victory Post of Westernport launched its campaign in the Mountain District American Legion Junior Baseball League with a 5-0 decision over Grantsville Post of Garrett county.

Only 21 men faced the kid righthander and 19 of them went down via the strikeout route. Bobby failed to issue a pass or hit a batter and his mates accorded his errorless support. Grantsville failed to get a man on base throughout the 7-inning tilt.

Westernport earned four of its five runs and Raines batter in two of the tallies. He and Mike Nofsinger shared four of the winners' seven safeties yielded by McKenzie and J. George.

Brodie Wins For Champs

Midland Post's defending champions got away to a flying start when they defeated Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 at the Midland Ball Park before a good-sized crowd by the score of 8-4.

Jack Brodie, Central High School (Lonaconing) star of the past season, limited the Cumberlanders to four hits and fanned nine.

Tom Richards homered for Midland in the third inning with Tom Kelly abroad. Richards also rapped a single and turned in a nice catch back of third base on Robertson's fly in the 7th inning. Burner also collected two hits for Manager Huge Coleman's team. Widdows was credited with two of the losers' safeties.

Verl Ash, mayor of Midland tossed the first ball which was caught by Eddie Wegman, Mountain District baseball commissioner. "It looked like a "Rip" Sewell blooper pitch and I had to stretch to catch it," Wegman said. Ash crossed up the advance dope by throwing righthanded.

Lions Grab 4th In Row

Edge Exchange, 4-3; Two Contests Today

Manager Jim Stevenson's Lions Club, only undefeated team in the Hot Stove Baseball League, made it four in a row yesterday by nosing out the Exchange Club last night at Penn Avenue Field by the score of 4-3.

Bob Dawson, the Paca Street speedball artist, struck out 15 Exchange Club batsmen and scattered six hits. Galan McGregor held the Lions to four hits, one of which was a homer by Ed Widdows in the 5th stanza, and fanned eight.

Only one of the Exchange Club's runs was earned.

Two games are scheduled today in the Hot Stove League. The Optimist Club and B'nai B'rith meet at Fort Hill Field while the Kiwanis Club and Jaycees tangle at Campobello. Both tilts are set for 3:30 p. m. Last night's score:

Holmes Named As Successor To Southworth

Billy Resigns Post As Braves' Manager

BOSTON, June 19 (AP) — Billy Southworth, one of the National League's most successful managers, has resigned from the Boston Braves. His request to be relieved of five-year contract that runs through 1952 was granted by President Lou Perini.

The latter named Tommy Holmes, one of the most popular players in recent Boston history, to take over as manager for the remainder of this season and all of next.

Now 58, Southworth, who suffered a near nervous breakdown in midseason of 1949, informed Perini and general manager John Quinn last Sunday that he felt "some one else could do a better job."

Southworth came to the Braves from the Cardinals in 1946, after his St. Louis club won pennants in 1942-43-44. He directed the Braves to their first National League championship in 34 years in 1948.

Southworth's initial Boston contract was a long-term affair that called for a $35,000 annual salary. After the 1947 season, however, Southworth was signed to a new five-year agreement that was reported to guarantee him a quarter-million dollars.

The second Southworth departure from the Braves in three seasons was announced by Quinn in Chicago this afternoon, shortly before the Braves were shut out, 3-0, by the Cubs.

At the time, Holmes was in Elmira, N. Y., with his Hartford club, the Braves-owned Eastern League farm, which he took over this season.

"The first I heard the job mentioned was Sunday," Holmes said. "Mr. Perini called me and asked me if I'd take the challenge. I told him 'yes'."

When Southworth became ill two seasons ago, Coach Johnny Cooney replaced him. At the time Cooney asked Perini not to consider his appointment permanent, regardless of Southworth's future health. Billy appeared to be in perfect physical shape when he rejoined the Braves in the 1950 spring training camp.

Under Southworth, the Braves finished fourth and third before leading the league in 1948. They also were fourth the past two seasons and now are in fifth place with 28 wins and 31 losses, 15 of which have been by one-run margins.

Both Perini and Southworth urged Holmes to end his nine-year major league playing career this season by succeeding "Rip" Collins, former Cardinals star, as the Hartford pilot.

Tommy has been operating as a player-manager while boosting his Eastern League forces into second place.

U. B. Wins Protest, Sunday School Loop Replay Set Today

Cresaptown Methodist defeated First Methodist, 11-5, in the opening game of the best-of-three series for the championship of the YMCA Sunday School Softball League yesterday at Stitcher Field then learned that a protest filed by United Brthren in the semi-finals of the playoffs was upheld last night by the league board of directors and that game which First Methodist won, 8-6, on Monday, must be replayed from the third frame when the score was 4-4.

The protest was over a player being called out for batting out of turn.

If First Methodist wins the replay the result of yesterday's game will stand. If UB wins the protested game a new series with Cresaptown must be started.

U. B. and First Methodist will meet today at East Side Field at 6 p. m. The score was 4-4 with two out and Fred Wolford at bat in the third inning when the protest was filed.

In yesterday's game, Gene Horton hit two homers and Ronnie Turner, one, for Cresaptown. Score:

White Sox Hold New Yorkers On Even Terms Before 60,441

Pale Hose Win, 5-4, After 11-9 Defeat

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The battling Chicago White Sox showed why they are leading the pack in the American League when they came surging back in the twilight of a long day to defeat their sternest rivals, the New York Yankees, 5 to 4, in the second game of their vital doubleheader after the Bombers had beaten them 11-9 in the opener.

Bob Dillinger, a pinch hitter, drove across the deciding run in the ninth inning of the tense second game with a line double to right after the veteran Ed Stewart had kept the Six in the struggle with a three-run homer off Vic Raschi in the previous inning.

A paid crowd of 60,441 packed the big stadium for the doubleheader.

The even break enabled the Sox to keep a tight hold on their three and one-half game lead and guaranteed that they will leave New York still the club to catch, no matter what the result of single games tomorrow and Thursday.

The first game dragged on for three hours and 11 minutes.

Seven pitchers took part, four for the winners, and none earned his day's pay until Joe Ostrowski held the league leaders to a single hit over the final three innings. He was the winner.

A total of 27 hits pierced the humid air, 15 of them Yankee propelled and including three-run homers by Yogi Berra, his 10th, and Mantle, his fifth. Box:

Eagles Halted By Moose, 4-3

Snap 14-Game Win Streak In Tenth

Joe Geatz's single scored Bob Wade with the 10th inning run that gave the Loyal Order of Moose tossers a 4-3 decision over the Fraternal Order of Eagles and snapped the latter's 14-game winning streak in a Rocking Chair Softball League battle yesterday at East Side Field.

It was the first loss of the season for the Eagles who now lead the race by three full games.

Bob Wade hit to open the third overtime frame and moved to second on Comer's sacrifice. After Williams was purposely passed, Geatz delivered the game-winning hit to left-center. A two-run rally by the Moose in the last of the 7th had sent the game into extra innings.

Bob Wade and Archie Carr shared four of the Moose team's 10 hits. Morrissey made a sensational catch of Lou Riehl's drive to left in the 10th while Jim Rice turned Joe Geatz's fly to centerfield into a double play. Pete Elliott had three of the Eagles' six hits.

Jim Morrison's three-hit pitching, home runs by "Shorty" Brown and Bill Sweitzer and three hits by George Hixenbaugh featured the Outdoor Club's 8-1 win over the Knights of Columbus at Campobello. Ray Swach scored the Knights only run in the first inning.

Bill Underdonk posted his 10th win of the season as the B. P. O. Elks took the measure of the Amvets at Fort Hill in a nine-inning battle, 3 to 1. Two runs in the ninth broke the 1-1 deadlock. Underdonk rapped a pair of doubles while "Bee" Orndorff and Bob Pence had two singles apiece for the Elks. The scores:

Bill Buzzard's Dodgers kept their record unblemished in the Dan Division of the Little League by walloping the Braves yesterday at Community Park by the score of 16-5.

While Frank Valentine was turning back the Braves with six hits and fanning 10, his mates teed off on Wolford and Beck for an even dozen safeties to register 5th consecutive win of the season.

Ronnie Bruce belted a homer and two singles and Dave Wallace connected for a homer and single to pace the winners at the plate. B. Beck with three hits and Wolford with two led the Braves' hitters.

Bob Paye's stellar relief pitching highlighted the Indians' 2-1 victory over the Tigers last night at Penn Avenue Field.

Paye came on to relieve Hook in the 4th and notched his fourth victory against no losses. The Indians put over the winning tally in the sixth when Ronnie Mayo walked, stole second and scored on Bollu Brode's sharp single into centerfield. Robert Judy had two of the Indians' five hits and Weatherholt collected two of the Tigers' three. The loss was the fifth for the winless Tigers. Hook and Paye struck out six batters each while McGann fanned eight. The scores:

Prices Have 11 Racers — "13" Lucky For Beall
Little League's March — Ed, Doug Hit "Double"

By C. V. BURNS

Eleven thoroughbreds owned by Enoch F. Price and his son, Junior, of Frostburg, are now quartered at two West Virginia tracks.

Six of the bangtails are now racing at Waterford Park, the new track in West Virginia. They are Melissa W., which has figured in three big payoffs in as many races, LaVega, Rectortown, Bus N Bus, Bonziah Seniah and Neddies Doll which ran in the 8th race yesterday. Waterford's 40-day meeting closes July 4.

Five of the Price bread winners are at Charles Town awaiting the opening of the 19-meet on Saturday. They are Stanley, Maid Sun, Mr. Frostburg, Tiz Tiz It and Hurray Beacon, a two-year-old that has never started.

After Charles Town, the Price runners will vie at Fairgo. The local 10-day meeting opens July 17.

• — • — •

The Cumberland Fair Association has designated Wednesday, July 25 as Dapper Dan Day at the races.

There's a good story going the rounds relative to Lee Sala's recent appearance in that stinkeroo of a pro show at the State Armory.

Jimmy Milligan, a 4th rater from New Jersey was slated to meet Sala but a last minute change brought in a high board artist named "Buddy" Jackson.

The local gambling fraternity, eager to get a line on Jackson, called out-of-town and here's the information their received.

"If it was legal to mark up a KO before the fight begins you can count Jackson as already knocked out."

Jackson was starched by Sala in 2:54 of the first round.

NOVELTY IN ENGINES

The Diesel Requires No Stoker and Emits No Smell or Smoke

The Diesel engine is a new thing, rich with promise. It has no boiler and no furnace; it requires no stoker; it emits no smell or smoke. I have seen a 22 horsepower specimen at work near Manchester, writes a correspondent of the London News, and the principle is equally applicable to an engine of 2,200 horsepower. Its fuel is various. The Manchester specimen feeds on air and oil — ordinary air and oil of the coarsest and cheapest. Gasses — including, it is believed, one that is at present a waste product — and coal dust, also in conjunction with air, are alternative articles of diet. In any case, the Diesel requires only half as much food as other engines. . . . Complete combustion of fuel is the ideal that Mr. Diesel has aimed at and apparently achieved. The smell that comes from oil motors and the smoke that arises from chimneys (it has been explained to me) both represent fuel which, owing to a deficiency of available oxygen, has escaped combustion and employment. In the new engine air and oil (or other fuels) are balanced, or, rather, the former is introduced in excess of the quantity necessary for the consumption of the latter. — Excerpts from an article on Diesel Motors appearing in The Daily News of May 24th, 1901.

Who said "13" is an unlucky number?

They don't think so at Beall High School.

Beall's baseball team hung up a new Bi-State Conference record of 13-0 this season.

The Frostburg nine scored its 13th victory in the 13th inning in the final contest of the conference's 13th season.

Beall claims two other records, namely, "Moose" Arnone's pitching mark of 12-0 and the team's defensive mark of 10 runs yielded in 97 innings of play.

Here are the Bi-State's champion's over a 13-year stretch:

1939—Keyser (7-1)
1940—Beall (7-3)
1941— Fort Hill (8-1)
1942—Fort Hill (5-2)
1943—Fort Hill, LaSalle tied (8-2)

MGM records is about ready to release the first recording of "Little League"—the official march of Little League baseball.

Leroy Holmes and his orchestra, with the Holmes Vocal Quartet, are cutting the platter which is backed with "Take Me Out To The Ball Game."

The Times-News has its own Little League quartet in Bill Buzzard, Howard Northcraft, Charley Hornbrook and Sherman Weatherholt with John "Joker" Boyle available as trouble shooter." You oughta get a load of this harmony!

Who said "13" is an unlucky number?

They don't think so at Beall High School.

Beall's baseball team hung up a new Bi-State Conference record of 13-0 this season.

The Frostburg nine scored its 13th victory in the 13th inning in the final contest of the conference's 13th season.

Beall claims two other records, namely, "Moose" Arnone's pitching mark of 12-0 and the team's defensive mark of 10 runs yielded in 97 innings of play.

Here are the Bi-State's champion's over a 13-year stretch:

1939—Keyser (7-1)
1940—Beall (7-3)
1941— Fort Hill (8-1)
1942—Fort Hill (5-2)
1943—Fort Hill, LaSalle tied (8-2)
1944—LaSalle (6-2)
1945—Allegany (7-1)
1946—Beall (9-1)
1947—LaSalle (8-2)
1948—Fort Hill (9-2)
1949—Hyndman (8-3)
1950—Beall (10-3)
1951—Beall (13-0)

Eddie Landis of Fort Hill and Douglas Connally of LaSalle won the "double" during the past school term.

Landis copped the James H. Hipsley Memorial Award for football and then bagged the George F. Hazelwood prize at graduation.

Connolly annexed the K. of C. Sportsmanship Award for basketball and also earned the Rapplier Club Trophy at the Explorers' commencment.

Commenting on the coming Charles-Walcott match, Arnold Lazarus, Wheeling sports columnist says:

"And to think they've planned this sad spectacle at Pittsburgh. Too bad that fair city abolished smoke. The bout probably would have looked better through a thick screen of the stuff."

Dick Wehr, who starred for the Wheeling Blues in the All-American Pro Basketball League in 1949-50, is one of the outstanding candidates for the job of head basketball coach at West Liberty State College as successor to Eli Munson who vacated the job several weeks ago.

The George Roberts whom "Skeets" Starkey blitzed in five heats at Ridgewood Grove Saturday night is rated in the "canvas-back" class.

He lost six of his last seven matches and his best effort was a draw. Four of the losses were via the K. O. route. He has not been in the winners' circle since February, 1949.

Probe Continues Into Fire Set At Mine Building

Masteller Victim For Third Time

West Virginia State Police last night were continuing their investigation into a fire, believed deliberately set, which damaged an office building of the Masteller Coal Company in Mineral County, not far from Westernport. The fire occurred early yesterday.

This is the third time since October that the company has been struck by arsonists.

The fire bug was brazen as he started the flames in the glare of a large spotlight bought by the coal company.

The fire was discovered about midnight by Francis Llewellyn, an employe of the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, as he was enroute home from work on the second shift.

Llewellyn saw the flames in the interior of the two-story brick and frame office building and supply house.

Fire Companies Praised

Volunteer firemen responded from Bloomington, Tri-Towns Company of Piedmont, Potomac Company of Westernport and Beryl, W. Va.

Earl Heff, superintendent at the deep mine at Hampshire, W. Va., said their quick work saved the building and limited damage to about $700.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of the LaVale Barracks of the Maryland State Police, said the arsonist obtained rags and waste from two coal cars on a siding and stuffed them under the building.

The fire burned away a heavy wooden door and part of the first floor.

Today police from Maryland and West Virginia pressed a bloodhound into service in an effort to catch the arsonist.

It is the second case of arson or attempted arson within 24 hours in the coal mining region in the Maryland-West Virginia area.

Sunday night two men tried to set fire to a tipple at Tunnelton, W. Va. A watchman at the non-union Sigley Coal Company said he fired five or six shots at the pair and believed he wounded one of them. However, they escaped into the brush.

Mine Union Operation

Previously the Hampshire Mine had been struck by fire on October 13 when a blacksmith shop was destroyed and three weeks ago when a shop containing a road grader and tools was leveled. The Hampshire Mine is a union operation.

Lottery King Booked

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19 (AP) — A 56-year-old negro was booked over the weekend by police on gaming charges. His name? Lottery King.

Lonaconing Will Pay Debt

The town of Lonaconing, with a population of 2,282, will be debt-free in August when $1,000 will be paid to wipe out its outstanding obligations.

This was revealed yesterday by County Commissioner James Holmes. He mentioned the fact during a discussion on the benefits to incorporated communities of Allegany county from monies received under the Sherbow Plan.

Holmes said that Lonaconing and other incorporated towns can not use Sherbow money to pay bonded indebtedness but it can be used to keep up streets and other public property. This releases tax money for paying off bonded debt.

Wants Road Repaired

The discussion came about when Colin Bowers, a representative of the Special Taxing Area for Mt. Savage, appeared to ask the county commissioners to repair a road adjacent to the community building.

Bowers recounted the problems of having work done on roads in that area and mentioned the fact that weeds grow 10 or 12 feet high along Jennings Run and should be cut as they are a health hazard.

Both Commissioner Holmes and Commissioner William H. Lemmert informed Bowers that Mt. Savage could obtain the necessary funds for this type work simply by incorporating.

Holmes said that Mt. Savage would probably obtain about $5,000 in Sherbow money, which is alloted to the various communities by the state, if they are incorporated.

Frostburg Helped

Lemmert pointed out that Frostburg, of which he was mayor at one time, was able to get on a sound financial footing and he credited the Sherbow monies for much of this success.

Holmes said that Lonaconing, Barton, Midland and other towns along the Georges Creek section have all been able to pave streets, maintain and install sewers through the use of the state funds.

Incorporated towns of Allegany county are allocated monies from state horse racing taxes, fees from liquor licenses and gasoline taxes.

Visitors

MT. SAVAGE — Mr. and Mrs. Amos Blair and children, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rizer. Another guest was Mrs. Isaac Metsler of Cumberland.

Oakland Church Sets Extra Summer Masses

To accommodate the increased number of visitors to Deep Creek Lake and Garrett county two extra masses will be said each Sunday at St. Peter's Catholic Church during the summer, Rev. Michael K. Carney, pastor, has announced.

This schedule will begin Sunday and continue through September 2. The time of the masses will be at 7, 8, 10 a.m. and noon.

Tri-Towns Briefs

A temperance program will be presented at the Church of the Brethren, Friday at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Irene Hott, temperance chairman states. Special music will be presented.

Thirty-six children were enrolled at the two weeks daily vacation Bible School, which opened at the Franklin Mission, with Rev. William Wilkinson, pastor, as superintendent. The closing exercises will be held Friday, June 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The Scouters of the Tri-Towns District will meet today at 7:30 p.m., at the Odd Fellow's Hall, Dr. Donald P. Whitworth, chairman, states.

The big picnic question—a bee or not to be?

Lonaconing Officials Will Extend Sewer System

LONACONING—The mayor and council held their second monthly meeting of June Monday evening in the Council Chamber.

Sewage pipe lines of 18-inch concrete will be laid on Jackson and Hanekamp Streets to beyond the VFW Post Home to take care of water coming from Jackson Mountain, they decided.

A dog ordinance was drawn to take stray dogs from the streets. If they are not claimed in 24 hours they will be destroyed.

A town ordinance prohibits the dumping of refuse in the creeks and a motion was passed and will be strictly enforced this summer. Violators will be fined.

Road men were given an increase from 90c to $1.00 an hour for their wages.

A new traffic light will be installed at Central High School which will work both automatically and by hand control from a police officer's traffic shelter box.

Mayor Virgil Alexander voiced his opinion on the speeding of vehicles in the town limits and instructed the police officers to halt the violation. The policemen were also given instructions to stop those washing cars on the streets.

Uniforms were ordered for the two police officers.

Today police from Maryland and West Virginia pressed a bloodhound into service in an effort to catch the arsonist.

It is the second case of arson or attempted arson within 24 hours in the coal mining region in the Maryland-West Virginia area.

Sunday night two men tried to set fire to a tipple at Tunnelton, W. Va. A watchman at the non-union Sigley Coal Company said he fired five or six shots at the pair and believed he wounded one of them. However, they escaped into the brush.

Mine Union Operation

Previously the Hampshire Mine had been struck by fire on October 13 when a blacksmith shop was destroyed and three weeks ago when a shop containing a road grader and tools was leveled. The Hampshire Mine is a union operation.

Lottery King Booked

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19 (AP) —A 56-year-old negro was booked over the weekend by police on gaming charges. His name? Lottery King.

Lonaconing Will Pay Debt

The town of Lonaconing, with a population of 2,282, will be debt-free in August when $1,000 will be paid to wipe out its outstanding obligations.

This was revealed yesterday by County Commissioner James Holmes. He mentioned the fact during a discussion on the benefits to incorporated communities of Allegany county from monies received under the Sherbow Plan.

Holmes said that Lonaconing and other incorporated towns can not use Sherbow money to pay bonded indebtedness but it can be used to keep up streets and other public property. This releases tax money for paying off bonded debt.

Wants Road Repaired

The discussion came about when Colin Bowers, a representative of the Special Taxing Area for Mt. Savage, appeared to ask the county commissioners to repair a road adjacent to the community building.

Bowers recounted the problems of having work done on roads in that area and mentioned the fact that weeds grow 10 or 12 feet high along Jennings Run and should be cut as they are a health hazard.

Both Commissioner Holmes and Commissioner William H. Lemmert informed Bowers that Mt. Savage could obtain the necessary funds for this type work simply by incorporating.

Holmes said that Mt. Savage would probably obtain about $5,000 in Sherbow money, which is alloted to the various communities by the state, if they are incorporated.

Frostburg Helped

Lemmert pointed out that Frostburg, of which he was mayor at one time, was able to get on a sound financial footing and he credited the Sherbow monies for much of this success.

Holmes said that Lonaconing, Barton, Midland and other towns along the Georges Creek section have all been able to pave streets, maintain and install sewers through the use of the state funds.

Incorporated towns of Allegany county are allocated monies from state horse racing taxes, fees from liquor licenses and gasoline taxes.

Visitors

MT. SAVAGE — Mr. and Mrs. Amos Blair and children, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rizer. Another guest was Mrs. Isaac Metsler of Cumberland.

Oakland Church Sets Extra Summer Masses

Thirty-six children were enrolled at the two weeks daily vacation Bible School, which opened at the Franklin Mission, with Rev. William Wilkinson, pastor, as superintendent. The closing exercises will be held Friday, June 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The Scouters of the Tri-Towns District will meet today at 7:30 p.m., at the Odd Fellow's Hall, Dr. Donald P. Whitworth, chairman, states.

The big picnic question—a bee or not to be?

Lonaconing Officials Will Extend Sewer System

LONACONING—The mayor and council held their second monthly meeting of June Monday evening in the Council Chamber.

Sewage pipe lines of 18-inch concrete will be laid on Jackson and Hanekamp Streets to beyond the VFW Post Home to take care of water coming from Jackson Mountain, they decided.

A dog ordinance was drawn to take stray dogs from the streets. If they are not claimed in 24 hours they will be destroyed.

A town ordinance prohibits the dumping of refuse in the creeks and a motion was passed and will be strictly enforced this summer. Violators will be fined.

Road men were given an increase from 90c to $1.00 an hour for their wages.

A new traffic light will be installed at Central High School which will work both automatically and by hand control from a police officer's traffic shelter box.

Mayor Virgil Alexander voiced his opinion on the speeding of vehicles in the town limits and instructed the police officers to halt the violation.

The policemen were also given instructions to stop those washing cars on the streets.

Uniforms were ordered for the two police officers.

Piedmont Will Buy Chlorinator From N. J. Firm

Old One Will Go To Swimming Pool

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — The city will purchase a new chlorinator for $2,211 from Wallace and Turnon Company, Inc., Newark, N. J.

At a meeting of Mayor Allan Hill and City Council Monday the question was referred to the finance committee with authority to place an order for the machine.

The chlorinator has a solution feed with visible vacuum chlorinator, complete with standard accessories and including two main connections with 100 feet of solition hose.

This new device will replace an existing one at the filtration plant. The older one will be removed to the Piedmont swimming pool for chlorinating water there.

The city clerk, Mrs. Lilyan Cole, was authorized to purchase stationery and complaint warrants.

It also was ordered that persons who do not have their garbage cards displayed in a prominent place will not have their garbage picked up by the garbage employees. Persons will not be permitted to let garbage accumulate. Any person found placing his garbage with other persons garbage also will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The parking meters neted $169.27 for the past two weeks was reported.

William Poland requested that Fisher Street be continued from Harrison Street to Frederick Street. The mayor advised him that it would be further investigated.

Community Concert Will Be Held June 29 In Frostburg

Wilson, Hart, Koos Will Be Featured

FROSTBURG — A community concert featuring Betty Wilson, soprano, Ted Hart, baritone, and Ray Koos, pianist, will be presented at 8 p.m., Friday, June 29, in the auditorium of Frostburg State Teachers College.

The highlight of the program will be the presentation of "Katie and Kevin" a musical comedy by Jacques Offenbach. This one-act comedy will be sung in English, with appropriate staging and colorful costumes.

Before intermission, Miss Wilson and Hart will sing duet and solo groups of songs. Koos will be heard in a solo group as well.

Miss Wilson, well-known lyric soprano, is a native of Frostburg. She recently sang for the annual Memorial Day observance at The Frostburg Memorial Park.

Ted Hart is a native of Vassar, Mich. He has sung with the New York City Opera company for three seasons and with the Metropolitan Opera chorus for one. He will tour next season with the Metropolitan's production of "Fledermaus". He made his concert debut in Times Hall, New York, and has since sung numerous concerts there and on tour. His musical training was at Michigan State and with private teachers in New York.

Ray Koos is from Dearborn, Mich. He received his master's degree in piano from Michigan State, studying with Frank Mannheimer and Ernst Victor Wolf. He recently completed a concert tour throughout the State of Michigan.

All three toured with the Musical in the middle west last winter and met with great success.

No tickets will be sold but a donation will be asked to help defray expenses.

Parsons Camp Opens Season

PARSONS, W. Va.—Camp Horseshoe, near Parsons, opened this week for its 12th annual season.

The camp for this week is sponsored by the West Virginia Lion's Club for the purpose of Youth Leadership training. These boys and girls represent cities throughout the state. Camp Horseshoe is owned by the U. S. Forest Service and is leased, equipped and staffed by the West Virginia YMCA Extension committee with Robert M. Alden, state extension secretary, as camp director.

The campers are attending classes under the leadership of Dean L. Shutt, of Marshall College and M. Stanley Miller, member of the faculty of Wellsburg High School. Sam Kistler, recreational consultant for the Monongahela Power Company will lead a game seminar. This training will include parliamentary procedure, duties of a club officer, group dynamics and social recreation. This is completed by a well rounded camping experience.

During the service Margaret Wade sang "He Leadeth Me". Gifts were given the officers and deputy presidents. Eight of the 14 members were present. They were Anna Keiling, Betty Pfister, Vivian Lloyd, Evelyn Lloyd, Janet Parks, Carrie Miller, Anna Festerman and Rosella Youngerman. Assembly officers present were President Florecce De Bou, Baltimore; Vice President, Blanche Carey, Salisbury; Warden Mildred Powell, Aberdeen; State Instructress Winnie Bean, Baltimore; Past President Emma Cessna, Mt. Savage; Jr. Past President Catherine Couter, Cumberland. Visitors were present from Lonaconing and Cumberland lodges.

Lloyd Gets Jail Term On Open Razor Charge

KEYSER, W. Va.—William Lloyd, Keyser-Piedmont Road, was sentenced Tuesday to the Mineral County Jail for six months after pleading guilty before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle on a charge of carrying an open old-fashioned razor.

He was also charged with assault, but after pleading not guilty to that charge it was dismissed. He was arrested by State Police, on a warrant obtained by Sheriff F. G. Davis.

Witnesses said Lloyd threatened his wife, forcing her from her home and into a car, where he threatened both her and her father with the razor.

Miss Porter Is Married

FROSTBURG—The marriage of Miss Eunice Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, this city, and William Whiteman, Lonaconing, was celebrated Saturday at 4 p. m. in Gospel Hall, Grahamtown, with Evangelist James Lepke, Cleveland, Ohio, performing the ceremony, the first marriage ever celebrated in the church.

Gospel Hall was formerly the Grahamtown public school.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Price, Park Avenue, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a ballerina length gown of white embossed net, and a shoulder length veil. She carried a white prayer book with white orchid corsage. Her sister was attired in a dress of pink embossed net fashioned similarly to that of the bride. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of roses and summer flowers.

Preceding the ceremony, Edward Hunter, Lonaconing, gave a program of nuptial music.

Following the marriage ceremony, a reception was held in the social room of the church. A large wedding cake adorned the refreshment table. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Raymond Baer, Miss Ardith Dunn and Miss Olive Dunn.

The bridegroom is employed with the A. & P. Super Market, this city, and the bride is an employee of the G. C. Murphy Company. They will reside temporarily with the bride's parents.

DAR Chapter Visits Old Fort

KEYSER, W. Va.—Potomac Valley Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution closed its year's business activities for the summer vacation at the meeting held in old Fort Ashby last week.

A number of out-of-town visitors attended the meeting and took advantage of the opportunity to visit the old fort. In the visiting party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, daughter Anna and son Philip, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Davis is curator at the Adison Institute Museum established by Henry Ford at Greensfield Village, Dearborn, Mich. He was much interested in the local historical shrine and expressed much interest in the local chapter's work in collecting and preserving old articles in the fort museum.

A covered dish luncheon was served and during the afternoon business was transacted, with Mrs. Eltin D. Gourley, Westernport, regent, presiding. The president general's message, read by Mrs. Jaworek, stressed the importance of Flag Day celebrations this year. The regent read the chapter's annual report, referring to the various projects of the past year.

Piedmont Will Buy Chlorinator From N. J. Firm

Old One Will Go To Swimming Pool

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — The city will purchase a new chlorinator for $2,211 from Wallace and Turnon Company, Inc., Newark, N. J.

At a meeting of Mayor Allan Hill and City Council Monday the question was referred to the finance committee with authority to place an order for the machine.

The chlorinator has a solution feed with visible vacuum chlorinator, complete with standard accessories and including two main connections with 100 feet of solition hose.

This new device will replace an existing one at the filtration plant. The older one will be removed to the Piedmont swimming pool for chlorinating water there.

The city clerk, Mrs. Lilyan Cole, was authorized to purchase stationery and complaint warrants.

It also was ordered that persons who do not have their garbage cards displayed in a prominent place will not have their garbage picked up by the garbage employees. Persons will not be permitted to let garbage accumulate. Any person found placing his garbage with other persons garbage also will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The parking meters neted $169.27 for the past two weeks was reported.

William Poland requested that Fisher Street be continued from Harrison Street to Frederick Street. The mayor advised him that it would be further investigated.

Community Concert Will Be Held June 29 In Frostburg

Wilson, Hart, Koos Will Be Featured

FROSTBURG — A community concert featuring Betty Wilson, soprano, Ted Hart, baritone, and Ray Koos, pianist, will be presented at 8 p.m., Friday, June 29, in the auditorium of Frostburg State Teachers College.

The highlight of the program will be the presentation of "Katie and Kevin" a musical comedy by Jacques Offenbach. This one-act comedy will be sung in English, with appropriate staging and colorful costumes.

Before intermission, Miss Wilson and Hart will sing duet and solo groups of songs. Koos will be heard in a solo group as well.

Miss Wilson, well-known lyric soprano, is a native of Frostburg. She recently sang for the annual Memorial Day observance at The Frostburg Memorial Park.

Ted Hart is a native of Vassar, Mich. He has sung with the New York City Opera company for three seasons and with the Metropolitan Opera chorus for one. He will tour next season with the Metropolitan's production of "Fledermaus". He made his concert debut in Times Hall, New York, and has since sung numerous concerts there and on tour. His musical training was at Michigan State and with private teachers in New York.

Ray Koos is from Dearborn, Mich. He received his master's degree in piano from Michigan State, studying with Frank Mannheimer and Ernst Victor Wolf. He recently completed a concert tour throughout the State of Michigan.

All three toured with the Musical in the middle west last winter and met with great success.

No tickets will be sold but a donation will be asked to help defray expenses.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 19. (INS)—Greer Garson and Buddy Fogelson will vacation either in Honolulu or in Europe depending on how much time Buddy can take away from his new oil field in Midland, Texas.

Then, when the Fogelsons return this fall, Greer reports to MGM for "The Burning Secret," Stephen Zweig's novel, which Dore Schary will have ready for her.

Greer Garson

Gottfried Reinhardt, the producer, has assigned Samson Raphaelson to do the script which pleases Greer very much. Raphaelson wrote one of her big hits on the London stage, "Accent On Youth."

Speaking of Reinhardt, he and his brother, Wolfgang, have just been notified that the Austrian government has turned back their family estate to them. It was confiscated during the war.

• — • — •

If you are one of the many females who believe you live in a man's world, Walter Wanger may change your mind.

He has just bought "Queen Of The Universe," an original by Ben Hecht, and after reading it I must confess it is certainly "original."

Hecht, who can always be depended onto come up with a different kind of story, has outdone himself in this one that begins in the year 2200 after Queen Cala of the planet Venus has conquered the earth and all men become the slaves of women. That is, all except three grizzled he-men cowboys on the desert of Arizona. This should give you a rough idea of the fun and satire.

I wouldn't be a bit surprised if Walter stars his lovely wife, Joan Bennett, as Queen Cala.

Grabbing my portable typewriter in one hand and my hat in the other, I took off over the hills to Warners today to emote in "Starlift." In this musical, based on Travis Air Field, I'm playing Louella Parsons. I may not give an Oscar perforamnce—but, by golly, I ought to be natural.

I've always said I'm a frustrated ham at heart. But believe me, it isn't easy for a non-professional to stand in the spotlight and act natural even when I'm called upon just to be myself.

It was nice to see such friendly faces as Doris Day, Ruth Roman, Janice Rule and Dick Webb when I showed up on the set for my first scenes. Doris, Ruth and Janice presented me with a gold-tipped rabbit's foot for good luck. I'll be telling you more about my acting stint in the next few days.

All you fans worried about Cornel Wilde—here's the latest report on his condition: The x-rays reveal no permanent damage, but he is still suffering double vision of the left eye. This is the same eye injured several years ago when a sword pierced it.

Cornel, however, will be permitted to return to work on "Califnoria Conquest"—but only for the less strenuous scenes. The athletic stunts will have to wait.

Frank Sinatra has been at Palm Springs all by his lonesome studying his Universal-International script.

Dagmar, buxom TV beauty, is being sued by Agent Dan Hollywood for back commissions. He claims that Jenny Lewis—that's her real name—owes him $6,000.

William Powell, at Sonja Henie's party, looking better than I've seen him in years. Bill's added a few pounds and on him it's becoming. He and Mousey are very happy.

Gen. MacArthur was deeply touched by the gift of two sepra-bol pipes given him in Texas. On the box was one of the original boxes of matches which the General dropped over the Philippines during World War II bearing his words in his own handwriting, "I shall return."

Sally Forrest and Robert Clarke are off to New York for the charity premiere of "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" all proceeds going to the Journal-American fund for disabled war veterans.

Director Roy Rowland, who likes to appear briefly in his own pictures had to get permission from actors equity to speak one line in "Bugles In The Afternoon."

Dixie and Bing Crosby, beaming with pride, at the graduation of Lindsay from Catholic school in Beverly Hills.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

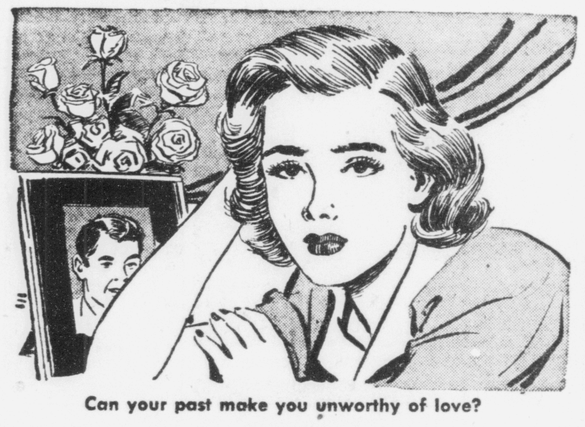
Hungary Names Envoy

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 19 (AP)—Appointment of Dr. Emil Weil as Hungary's minister to the United States was announced Monday. He succeeds, Hmre Horvath, who was recalled.

LIKE his half-brother, Prince Aly Khan, Prince Sadri Khan apparently likes to dance. Here he is with Sondra Ritter, a Manhattan resident, dancing in a New York night club. The prince is a Harvard student. (International)

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Can your past make you unworthy of love?

Answer: Not in itself. The only question is how far you have outgrown or "seen through" the emotions that led you to make the mistakes which you are now so much ashamed of. Insofar as you have really done this, you are less likely to go wrong again than a person who has always "toed the straight and narrow." Your worst handicap is likely to be whatever sense of guilt you feel at your past missteps, for this guilt not only hampers the self-esteem which mature love requires, but tends to discourage you from trying to achieve the happiness that may still be yours. "Let the dead past bury its dead."

May repressed hate hamper learning?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Herbert L. Harris, Cambridge, Mass., psychiatrist. Experiments at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology showed striking improvement in learning and study habits in a large number of students who had had an opporunity in psychiatric treatment to get their repressed rage at repressed parental discipline out of their systems. "These students unwittingly transferred rage from fathers to fatherlike teachers," and got their revenge by refusing to study or learn. Any child's natural curiosity makes him eager to learn provided he does not regard studying as something that is forced upon him.

Can you bribe the "baby" in you?

Answer: Yes, and with quite "Small change", provided the currency is pleasure. Trying to cut down my smoking, I observed that if I thought of lighting a cigarette but refrained from doing so, it became considerably harder to concentrate on on my work, whereas giving in to the "temptation" at once released a flood of ideas. While my conscious reason shows me plenty of incentives for getting my job done, these are all comparatively in in the future — at least as far off as next week's pay check. But being completely infantile (like everyone else's) my unconscious mind "can't wait" and demands pleasure now."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY DIDN'T HE DO IT?

WHENEVER an opponent fails to do what you expected him to do, you should stop, look, listen and ask yourself a question. Why didn't he do it? Frequently the answer to that is the guide to your own conduct. Take the case of a deal on which you had bid one suit, your partner another and your side then winds up with your second suit as the trump. Certainly such bidding betokens ability of your partner to ruff your first suit and your own to ruff his first suit. You usually expect a trump lead against such bidding. If the opener instead picks the unbid suit, what was his reason?

	♠ 2 ♥ A K 9 4 2 ♦ A 9 4 3 ♣ Q 9 6
♠ 9 8 5 ♥ Q 8 7 3 ♦ Q 5 2 ♣ K 7 4	N W E S	♠ K 10 7 ♥ J 10 5 ♦ 8 ♣ A J 10 8 5 3
	♠ A Q J 6 4 3 ♥ 6 ♦ K J 10 7 6 ♣ 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	4 ♦

South was all ready to expect a trump lead against such cross-ruff bidding. But West instead picked the club 4, which East won with the A. Drawing no particular deductions from that, South depended on the table of abstract probabilities in his play of the trump suit after he ruffed the club J return with the diamond 10. He led the diamond J, won with the A and of course later had to lose a trick to the Q to be set.

Road signs were up all over the place for South to read. First let's look at the composition of the club suit as advertised by play to the first two tricks. Wasn't it a virtual certainty, after East won with the A and returned the J, that West had the K and led away from it at the start? Why would he go to such lengths to avoid a trump lead, so strongly marked by the bidding? Especially, why risk failure to score his club K when the contract was a small slam and that card might be an absolutely necessary trick-taker to beat the slam?

The only sound excuse for resorting to as extreme a measure as that would be his desire to protect a possible trump winner. Since the odds only favor seeking the drop of the Q very slightly with a nine-card trump holding, South should have played West for the diamond Q after his refusal to lead the suit. Taking the diamond A first, ready to finesse on the next round, would have been the sound play—and the winning play.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A ♥ 5 ♦ 7 6 5 ♣ A Q 10 8 6 5 3 2
♠ Q 7 5 2 ♥ A ♦ K J 10 8 3 2 ♣ J 9	N W E S	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ Q J 9 3 ♦ A Q 9 4 ♣ K 7
	♠ K J 10 9 8 ♥ K 10 8 7 6 4 2 ♦ None ♣ 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If North opens with 3-Clubs, South bids 4-Hearts and West doubles, what should he lead?

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 19. (INS)—Greer Garson and Buddy Fogelson will vacation either in Honolulu or in Europe depending on how much time Buddy can take away from his new oil field in Midland, Texas.

Then, when the Fogelsons return this fall, Greer reports to MGM for "The Burning Secret," Stephen Zweig's novel, which Dore Schary will have ready for her.

Greer Garson

Gottfried Reinhardt, the producer, has assigned Samson Raphaelson to do the script which pleases Greer very much. Raphaelson wrote one of her big hits on the London stage, "Accent On Youth."

Speaking of Reinhardt, he and his brother, Wolfgang, have just been notified that the Austrian government has turned back their family estate to them. It was confiscated during the war.

If you are one of the many females who believe you live in a man's world, Walter Wanger may change your mind.

He has just bought "Queen Of The Universe," an original by Ben Hecht, and after reading it I must confess it is certainly "original."

Hecht, who can always be depended onto come up with a different kind of story, has outdone himself in this one that begins in the year 2200 after Queen Cala of the planet Venus has conquered the earth and all men become the slaves of women. That is, all except three grizzled he-men cowboys on the desert of Arizona. This should give you a rough idea of the fun and satire.

I wouldn't be a bit surprised if Walter stars his lovely wife, Joan Bennett, as Queen Cala.

Seems that the big money bettors are not hanging around the cigar stores or the tracks. They're hanging around their radios in the mornings listening to Arthur Godfrey. The big play today is how big is the percentage of Chesterfield smokers in the Godfrey studio audience. As any fool knows, the studio audience is polled every morning and, since Chesterfield happens to be paying the bills over there, or possibly by mass hypnosis, or maybe that's just the way things are, Chesterfield runs off wtih top honors.

The bookies, who right away began calling themselves Tobacco Counsellors, set up a point-spread system. Just like basketball. The bookies are paying off bets below 78 per cent and above 81 per cent. That four-point spread assures a fair return on any day and, for a while there, it was a good honest gambling, robbing the widows and orphans only of what they decently owed. Then the sure-thing boys, who took all the fun out of basketball, got into the thing as they always do.

The fix is in. Those furtive gents with the pin stripes that happen to be turning up in large numbers in the studio audience these days, Arthur, have been corrupted. Sometimes they throw the vote to Chesterfield, sometimes to Lucky Strike—well, it depends on how much money is bet and where it has been laid. I don't know what can be done about it either. Legalize gambling? Outlaw smoking? Both seem a little drastic. But something has got to be done. A man who deliberately lies about the brand of cigaret he smokes is on the way to perdition. He may even land in Madison Square Garden.

Or just possibly the whole thing is a figment of my undercover man's imagination. He's been undercover so long that the sunlight blinds him when he gets back to the surface, and his brain gets a little addled.

* * *

I missed the Studio One's modern dress presentation of "Coriolanus," an ambitious enterprise, but I have at home some of theambitious prose emanating from CBS, which is some consolation. Worthington Miner, the producer, declared that Shakespeare was "the only complete master of good style and good form in television. He needs nothing but cutting," added Mr. Miner.

Well, I don't know about that. Shakespeare doesn't need cutting so much as censorship. "Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall." ("Measure for Measure"). What sort of talk is that for our womenfolk who have been taught by countless soap operas that sin leads only to destruction, that virtue gets you everything, including the presidency of the local garden club?

The ad men would have to make a lot of changes, too. "He that hath a beard is more than a youth and he that hath no beard is less than a man." ("Much Ado About Nothing"). How do you suppose that would sit with the Schick people, the Gillette crowd? "Comparisons are odorous," cried Shakespeare, also in "Much Ado." And in the next 10 minutes here is a gentleman telling you to switch to Camels and compare, the favorite word of the ad crowd.

* * *

No, I'm afraid Shakespeare is all wrong for TV. He is too much afflicted with "the naked truth" ("Love's Labour Lost") for this medium where truth must come decently clothed in the habiliments of custom and propriety, where truth must make its obeisance to the delicate sensibilities of each pressure group, each advertiser, and almost every listener who possesses a pencil and feels the urge to write a letter.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

KUT STGN IUG WGNI UAN YAHYOV-NIMCYG MEETKN, STGN KGEE, MYIN CTWEB—BTOCP.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: MIDNIGHT, AND YET NO EYE THROUGH ALL THE IMPERIAL CITY CLOSED IN SLEEP—SOUTHEY

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all those who were so kind to us following the death of our husband and father, Frank A. Hite. Especially do we thank Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor of Centre St. Methodist Church, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

Mrs. Frank A. Hite & Children

The family of the late Loretta M. Booth, wish to thank all of those who were so kind and helpful at the time of her death.

NOAH B. BOOTH & CHILDREN

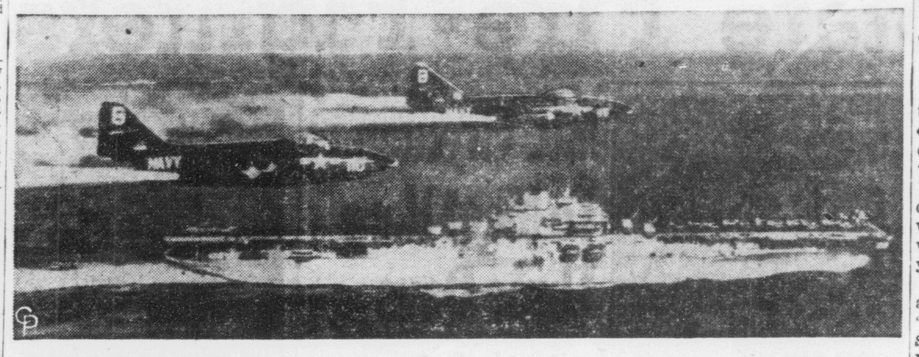
JETS EMPTY GAS IN CARRIER-LANDING OFF KOREA



ROARING NAVY PANTHER JETS are photographed at the vital moment of making a pass at the U.S.S. Princeton, as they come in for a deck landing after a flight against the Reds in Korea. The two F-9-F's shot into camera range of a third jet just as they emptied gasoline from wing tip tanks for safety. These speedy planes are credited with helping to turn the current Red offensive. Yanks Recall Morgan

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The New York Yankees today recalled Tom Morgan, 21-year-old right hander, from their Kansas City farm club of the American Association. He will report in time for tomorrow's game here with the Chicago White Sox.

The addition brings the roster to the 25-player limit and gives the Yanks nine pitchers. Morgan had a 2-1 record with the champions earlier this year, before being released to the Blues. He had a similar record against association foes, one victory being a one-hitter.

'Thar She Smokes!'

Here's How Foresters Spot Fires Today

Lookout Sam Ferris detects smoke and locates it for his chief.

Bob Ramstad, who spots it on map of 155,000 acres.

By JAMES STEVENS
Central Press Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash. — When the voice of the Clemons tree farm lookout calls "Smoke!" over shortwave radio or the telephone it sends Boss Forester Bob Ramstad first of all to a big wall map.

On the map a celluloid circle is fastened on a spot that corresponds with the location of the lookout tower. From its center a leaded cord protrudes. The forester takes the lead in hand, pulls the cord out a way, and draws it to the place of the smoke on the map as he hears it given.

Away out in the lookout tower the man on guard is sighting the smoke through a device called the Osborn fire-finder. It is set on a flat, circular map that is a larger version of the circle on the wall map at headquarters.

Rapid calculation places the smoke well enough for Forester Ramstad to plot the route for the fire crews in their trucks. He may obtain a cross-check from another lookout. Then the trucks roll as fast as mountain curves and grades allow for the smoke.

Robert M. Ramstad is a "dirt forester," a tree farm manager. A technically-trained college man in calked boots and overalls, he is protection chief over the 155,000 acres of the Clemons tree farm of a big timber company.

* * *

THE MANAGEMENT plan for tree growing and fire fighting also takes in another 173,000 acres, some owned by the state, some by small private owners. In the big woods fire is everybody's enemy.

Forester Ramstad has in his charge four lookouts, 312 miles of fire roads, 20 miles of telephone line, a shortwave radio system. Within Clemons tree farms itself there are 30 water storage reservoirs, seven portable fire pumps, five pumper trucks, two bulldozers, 15 two-way radio sets, 13,500 lineal feet of fire hose, and many more big and little items of protection equipment. He has a summer crew of 12 fire fighters.

Clemons tree farms will observe its 10th anniversary June 23. It was the first unit in a program of industrial forestry standards that has been extended from Grays Harbor county, Washington, into 28 other states. Three thousand tree farms now cover 23 million acres. It is a rapidly growing movement.

* * *

FORESTRY committees of the timber industries certify tree farms. A tract may be 10 acres, or 500,000 acres, to win a certificate. It must be privately-owned and managed on specific high standards of harvesting, growing and protecting timber crops. The owner must agree to periodic inspections to keep his certificate.

In other times the forestry school graduate whose ambition was the practice of his profession as an act on the land commonly had to turn to employment by the United States Forest Service in the national forests.

The growth of state forestry enlarged the forester's opportunities, but it is industrial tree farming that has opened new vistas of private enterprise to foresters of the breed of Bob Ramstad.

Like other dirt foresters, he believes that keeping fire out of the woods is 75 per cent or more of the reforestation problem.

"Keeping fire out depends on quick detection of the first thread of smoke," says Bob Ramstad, "then on reaching the smoke as rapidly as possible, preferably with water. Of course, fire prevention is the ideal objective—stop 'em before they start."

Entries For Dingle Tennis Tournament Will Close Friday

Entries for the Dingle tennis tournament, starting Saturday, will close Friday evening on the Dingle courts, at which time the drawings will be made.

This is the first local tournament of the season. The men's singles was won last year by Maurice Bernstein who will defend his title again this year.

Other entries in this event to date are Lua Syckes, Johnny Clemmer, "Bill" Day, Walter Davis, Jr., "Bob" Sutton, Dr. Thos. Robinson, Walter Eyler, Jr., Harry Kauffman, Norman Sell, Jack Evans, Dale Fuller, Allan Williams, and L. E. Van Sant.

Women's singles, men's doubles and mix doubles also will be played.

Entries can be made up to Friday evening to L. E. Van Sant, 219 Greene Street.

Connie Says Fain Best A. L. Hitter

MERIDEN, Conn., June 19 (AP) — Who's the best hitter in the American League?

Why, Ferris Fain, says Connie Mack, the retired manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Fain is the A's first baseman.

That's the answer the 88-year-old Mack gave to a group of inmates yesterday at the state reformatory at Cheshire during a question and answer session.

Yes, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams are pretty good batters but the old gentleman said he'd take Fain anytime.

Williams vs DiMaggio in batting? Mr. Mack said he'd take Williams.

CUBS BLANK BRAVES

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—Bob Rush limited the Boston Braves to only four hits today while the Chicago Cubs swept on to a 3 to 0 victory.

The Cubs scored all three of their runs against Max Surkont in the first and second innings.

Surkont was through after the second inning, whereupon Dave Cole came in to duel Rush. The rookie righthander gave up just two hits in five innings and struck out the side in the fourth inning, but the damage had been done. Box:

Market Ends Quiet Session With Gains, Losses Mixed

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — The stock market turned itself into a corkscrew mixture of gains and losses in a quiet session.

Oil issues again dominated trading both in volume and in price movement. But the tsrength of the forward movement of the oils was not enough to pull the rest of the market along.

Standard Oil (NJ) was the most active issue with 22,200 shares t raded. It closed off ⅛ at 64⅞ after being unchanged to lower all day.

Richfield Oil was fourth most active, up 3¼ at 60⅞. Gulf Oil gained 2½ at 98, and Cities Service was up 1 at 107¾.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged up 10 cents at $93.30. The industrial component of today's average lost 10 cents, rails gained a like amount, and utilities were up 30 cents.

Of the 1,077 individual issues appearing on the tape, 296 advanced and 490 declined. But among the 15 most active issues, eight were up, three down, and four unchanged.

Volume amounted to 1,100,000 shares as compared with 1,050,000 shares yesterday.

Motion picture issues did well with Warner Bros. Second most active of the day up ½ at 13⅛.

Air lines were unchanged to lower with United Air Lines sagging the most—off ⅝ at 28. The air line has been under pressure of a pilots' strike.

Utilities were aided by a run-up in Commonwealth Edison of 1¼ at 29¾ reflecting the dividend declaration of 45 cents as against 40 cents previously paid quarterly. It was 12th most active.

Lockheed topped the aircraft division up 1¼ at 39⅜. Stockholders approved a two-for-one split.

General Motors was fairly typical of its section, off ⅝ at 48⅛, and third most active.

JETS EMPTY GAS IN CARRIER-LANDING OFF KOREA

ROARING NAVY PANTHER JETS are photographed at the vital moment of making a pass at the U.S.S. Princeton, as they come in for a deck landing after a flight against the Reds in Korea. The two F-9-F's shot into camera range of a third jet just as they emptied gasoline from wing tip tanks for safety. These speedy planes are credited with helping to turn the current Red offensive. Yanks Recall Morgan

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The New York Yankees today recalled Tom Morgan, 21-year-old right hander, from their Kansas City farm club of the American Association. He will report in time for tomorrow's game here with the Chicago White Sox.

The addition brings the roster to the 25-player limit and gives the Yanks nine pitchers. Morgan had a 2-1 record with the champions earlier this year, before being released to the Blues. He had a similar record against association foes, one victory being a one-hitter.

'Thar She Smokes!'

Here's How Foresters Spot Fires Today

Lookout Sam Ferris detects smoke and locates it for his chief.

Bob Ramstad, who spots it on map of 155,000 acres.

By JAMES STEVENS
Central Press Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash. — When the voice of the Clemons tree farm lookout calls "Smoke!" over short-wave radio or the telephone it sends Boss Forester Bob Ramstad first of all to a big wall map.

On the map a celluloid circle is fastened on a spot that corresponds with the location of the lookout tower. From its center a leaded cord protrudes. The forester takes the lead in hand, pulls the cord out a way, and draws it to the place of the smoke on the map as he hears it given.

Away out in the lookout tower the man on guard is sighting the smoke through a device called the Osborn fire-finder. It is set on a flat, circular map that is a larger version of the circle on the wall map at headquarters.

Rapid calculation places the smoke well enough for Forester Ramstad to plot the route for the fire crews in their trucks. He may obtain a cross-check from another lookout. Then the trucks roll as fast as mountain curves and grades allow for the smoke.

Robert M. Ramstad is a "dirt forester," a tree farm manager. A technically-trained college man in calked boots and overalls, he is protection chief over the 155,000 acres of the Clemons tree farm of a big timber company.

• • •

THE MANAGEMENT plan for tree growing and fire fighting also takes in another 173,000 acres, some owned by the state, some by small private owners. In the big woods fire is everybody's enemy.

Forester Ramstad has in his charge four lookouts, 312 miles of fire roads, 20 miles of telephone line, a shortwave radio system. Within Clemons tree farms itself there are 30 water storage reservoirs, seven portable fire pumps, five pumper trucks, two bulldozers, 15 two-way radio sets, 13,500 lineal feet of fire hose, and many more big and little items of protection equipment. He has a summer crew of 12 fire fighters.

Clemons tree farms will observe its 10th anniversary June 23. It was the first unit in a program of industrial forestry standards that has been extended from Grays Harbor county, Washington, into 28 other states. Three thousand tree farms now cover 23 million acres. It is a rapidly growing movement.

• • •

FORESTRY committees of the timber industries certify tree farms. A tract may be 10 acres, or 500,000 acres, to win a certificate. It must be privately-owned and managed on specific high standards of harvesting, growing and protecting timber crops. The owner must agree to periodic inspections to keep his certificate.

In other times the forestry school graduate whose ambition was the practice of his profession as an act on the land commonly had to turn to employment by the United States Forest Service in the national forests.

The growth of state forestry enlarged the forester's opportunities, but it is industrial tree farming that has opened new vistas of private enterprise to foresters of the breed of Bob Ramstad.

Like other dirt foresters, he believes that keeping fire out of the woods is 75 per cent or more of the reforestation problem.

"Keeping fire out depends on quick detection of the first thread of smoke," says Bob Ramstad, "then on reaching the smoke as rapidly as possible, preferably with water. Of course, fire prevention is the ideal objective—stop 'em before they start."

Entries for the Dingle tennis tournament, starting Saturday, will close Friday evening on the Dingle courts, at which time the drawings will be made.

This is the first local tournament of the season. The men's singles was won last year by Maurice Bernstein who will defend his title again this year.

Other entries in this event to date are Lua Syckes, Johnny Clemmer, "Bill" Day, Walter Davis, Jr., "Bob" Sutton, Dr. Thos. Robinson, Walter Eyler, Jr., Harry Kauffman, Norman Sell, Jack Evans, Dale Fuller, Allan Williams, and L. E. Van Sant.

Women's singles, men's doubles and mix doubles also will be played.

Entries can be made up to Friday evening to L. E. Van Sant, 219 Greene Street.

Connie Says Fain Best A. L. Hitter

MERIDEN, Conn., June 19 (AP) — Who's the best hitter in the American League?

Why, Ferris Fain, says Connie Mack, the retired manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Fain is the A's first baseman.

That's the answer the 88-year-old Mack gave to a group of inmates yesterday at the state reformatory at Cheshire during a question and answer session.

Yes, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams are pretty good batters but the old gentleman said he'd take Fain anytime.

Williams vs DiMaggio in batting? Mr. Mack said he'd take Williams.

CUBS BLANK BRAVES

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—Bob Rush limited the Boston Braves to only four hits today while the Chicago Cubs swept on to a 3 to 0 victory.

The Cubs scored all three of their runs against Max Surkont in the first and second innings.

Surkont was through after the second inning, whereupon Dave Cole came in to duel Rush. The rookie righthander gave up just two hits in five innings and struck out the side in the fourth inning, but the damage had been done. Box:

Market Ends Quiet Session With Gains, Losses Mixed

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — The stock market turned itself into a corkscrew mixture of gains and losses in a quiet session.

Oil issues again dominated trading both in volume and in price movement. But the tsrength of the forward movement of the oils was not enough to pull the rest of the market along.

Standard Oil (NJ) was the most active issue with 22,200 shares traded. It closed off ⅛ at 64⅞ after being unchanged to lower all day.

Richfield Oil was fourth most active, up 3¼ at 60⅞. Gulf Oil gained 2½ at 98, and Cities Service was up 1 at 107¾.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged up 10 cents at $93.30. The industrial component of today's average lost 10 cents, rails gained a like amount, and utilities were up 30 cents.

Of the 1,077 individual issues appearing on the tape, 296 advanced and 490 declined. But among the 15 most active issues, eight were up, three down, and four unchanged.

Volume amounted to 1,100,000 shares as compared with 1,050,000 shares yesterday.

Motion picture issues did well with Warner Bros. Second most active of the day up ½ at 13⅛.

Air lines were unchanged to lower with United Air Lines sagging the most—off ⅝ at 28. The air line has been under pressure of a pilots' strike.

Utilities were aided by a run-up in Commonwealth Edison of 1¼ at 29¾ reflecting the dividend declaration of 45 cents as against 40 cents previously paid quarterly. It was 12th most active.

Lockheed topped the aircraft division up 1¼ at 39¾. Stockholders approved a two-for-one split.

General Motors was fairly typical of its section, off ⅝ at 48⅛, and third most active.

City Welcomes State Fire-Fighters Convention

North Mechanic Street Will Be Open By Weekend

Traffic Bottlenecks Will Be Eliminated

Traffic conditions in the city are slated to improve within the next week as three bottlenecks created by flood control projects are eliminated.

The major improvement is expected on North Mchanic Street between Bedford and Frederick Streets.

Workers yesterday had virtually completed the construction of two manholes on a sewage siphon in front of the Eagles Home and workers of the Thomas Earle construction firm had begun to backfill the excavation.

Officials of the Small-Paye Company, liaison agent for the city on the flood control project, said North Mechanic Street should be reopened by the end of the week.

The necessity of detouring traffic by way of City Hall Plaza to North Liberty Street during the construction work on Mechanic Street has created a difficult traffic situation at Baltimore and Liberty Streets.

John I. Coleman, of the Small-Paye firm, said that by the end of next week, a project which necessitated one-way traffic on Mechanic Street at Valley Street should be completed to further improve traffic conditions on that street.

Henderson Avenue at Valley Street is expected to be open by the middle of next week, Coleman said.

Hit-Run Driver To Serve Term

Robert L. Whorton Dismisses Appeal

Robert L. Whorton, 22, of Fairgo, gave himself up Monday at Trial Magistrates Court to begin serving sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction.

Whorton, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced by Magistrate J. Milton Dick June 11 on a hit-and-run charge, had filed notice of an appeal to Circuit Court through Attorney Edward S. Ryan and was released on $500 bond. He later dismissed the appeal and decided to serve his sentence.

The 22-year-old parolee drew the term for failing to stop when his car struck Shirley Jean True, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis True, 211 Bedford Street on Friday, June 8.

Arrested in the same case were Elmer C. Lease, Jr., Route 5, who was riding with Whorton when the mishap occurred, and Luther W. Grogg, Rawlings. A failure to stop charge against Lease was dismissed and Grogg was fined $10.75 for permitting Whorton to use license plates issued to another vehicle.

Police said the True child was playing on the sidewalk in front of her home when Whorton's car jumped the curb, hit her and failed to halt. Witnesses furnished investigators with a description of the hit-run vehicle and license number.

Corriganville Carnival Set

A parade at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 28, will feature the week-long carnival of the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company next week.

Joseph Stuckey, who is chairman of the five-man carnival committee, said last night that invitations have been extended to 56 fire companies, auxiliaries, drum and bugle corps and bands in Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The A. M. P. Shows have been booked to provide the carnival from Monday through Saturday of next week, Stuckey said. Rides, shows and concessions and a free high-wire act will be offered.

Summer carnivals have been featured at Corriganville ever since the fire company was organized in 1939, Stuckey explained.

Wins District Governor's Award

Massie H. Roe, Hagerstown, international councilor of Lions International, is seen congratulating Alvin E. Yaste, District 22-W governor, after he presented the local man with the coveted 100 Per Cent District Governor's Award at a ceremony last night marking the installation of officers of the Cumberland Lions Club. At Roe's left is William G. Heagy, Westminster, district governor elect, and at Yaste's right is Winfield H. Adam, president of the Cumberland Lions Club. Also awarded at the meeting in the Shrine Country Club was a membership key to Merrill Barnes and 20 year chevrons and 10 year monarch awards to members of the club.

Video Coaxial Cable Plans Underway By Romney Firm

Following the go ahead signal given by city officials Monday night at the council meeting, plans are underway to install the coaxial cable in Cumberland providing clear television reception to city residents.

J. Holland Rannells, president of the Potomac Valley Television Company, Inc., Romney, W. Va., which plans to install the necesary equipment, is now in Philadelphia with his chief engineer Ralph Wirgman and Buford Saville for schooling at the Jerrold Electronics Corporation, manufacturers of the necessary equipment.

While on the trip Rannells expects to line up the necessary material to be used in Cumberland's installation.

The newer equipment is much more expensive and has a detailed factory policy of laying out the city in a methodical manner. Close supervision is maintained and a five year guarantee is given with the material.

Approximately 200 miles of coaxial cable will be required by the firm to give a fair coverage to the Queen City area and they expect to hold down the hookup price to $150.00 with a monthly charge of $4.00. The life expectancy of the cable used under conditions applicable to Cumberland is approximately five years.

Rannells said anyone paying the established fee as outlined in the contract for commercial or residential hookup has the right to hookup any make of set regardless of where it is purchased.

The hookups will be made in consecutive order as received in so far as trunk lines can be extended to serve the most people.

The Potomac Valley Television Company is interested, Rannells said, in assuring clear reception to Cumberland residents.

As yet, Rannells continued to say, the Romney firm has not received permission from the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company or the Potomac Edison Company.

Firemen Petition To Join State Pension Plan

City To Be Asked To Back Proposal

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department are expected to petition the Mayor and Council Monday to place members of the department into the Employes Retirement System of Maryland.

A spokesman for the department reported last night that "it looks like the men will vote to go into the state pension plan."

He added that at the time, 38 of the 51 active members of the department had signed a petition calling for the action.

The Mayor and Council on Monday night rejected a previous petition from the department calling for return of their contributions prior to putting them into the state system. Barring such action, the men asked that their payments into the present plan be discontinued.

The city, in a formal report, said there was no way it could grant the request which would be consistent with present legislation, saying the city has the power to change but not abandon the present plan, except for joining the state system.

It is estimated that the present firemen's pension plan, faced with annual payments of some $22,000 to pensioned members, will go broke in about 18 months.

If the men go into the state plan, their contributions will be placed to their individual accounts in the state plan.

A bill sponsored by Senator Robert B. Kimble which would have required the city to return the contributions before switching to the state plan was vetoed by the governor.

The number who last night had signed the petition is well above the 60 per cent needed to petition to go into the state plan.

City officials said yesterday that John P. Mannion, director of the state pension system, informed them that there was a possibility that the local system could be incorporated into the state plan by August 1.

4-H Junior Extension Weekend Camp Set

Junior Extension 4-H Club members of Allegany County will attend a week-end camp beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday at 4-H Camp Algawa, Pleasant Valley Recreation Area, Bittinger, it was announced yesterday.

Today is the deadline for registering for the camp. The campers should contact Miss Edith Lewis, RFD 5, Winchester Road, 561-J-1, or 458.

Vehicle Insurance Bids Are Received

Bids received by the Mayor and Council for insurance on 70 city owned vehicles were referred to Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz for tabulation.

A low bid of $2,180.86 was submitted by the Gearre-Everstine firm. Other bids were $2,361.66 from the J. H. Holzshu Company; $2,212.69 from Barnes and Barnard, and $2,607.44 from the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The board of Directors of the Junior Association of Commerce will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Jaycee office.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, 802 Fayette Street, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter of American Red Cross, will leave today to attend the 1951 National Red Cross Convention at New York June 25 to 27.

Work Underway On Pasteurizing Unit At Brewery

Queen City Plant Increases Output

Preparatory construction work for the installation of a new automatic pasteurizing unit is now underway at the Bottling House of the Queen City Brewing Company, Market Street. The George F. Hazlewood Company is the contractor.

L. N. Duncan, general manager of the local brewery, yesterday said the modernization program was started the first of this month and the completion date is expected within ninety days.

The present expansion program is necessitated by a 40 per cent increase in production and employment at the local brewery has jumped from 10 to 15 per cent over last year, Duncan added.

When the new pasteurizing unit is installed the bottling process will be handled in one operation from the time the empty bottles are placed in the washing solution, filled and labeled for shipment.

The Queen City Brewing Company is now on a seven-day schedule and the bottling house has stepped up to a 13-hour day. Robert E. Hager, manager of the bottling house, said yesterday the hourly output of the present unit is 567 cases or 13,608 bottles, and with the installation of the new equipment higher production will be realized.

About 485 barrels are pumped from the brewery to the Government Cellar located under the bottling machines where the beer is kept cool at a temperature of about 33 degrees. All beer coming through the government tunnel is registered on a meter.

In the cellar six tanks with a capacity of 160 barrels and four tanks with a capacity of 80 barrels are maintained. From the tanks the product is pumped upstairs for bottling.

In one of the tanks, beer for consumption in two Virginia counties and the state of West Virginia is kept and bottled separately.

L. N. Duncan, who became general manager of the local brewery on June 1 came to Cumberland as brewmaster last November. He previously had worked in Furgus Falls, Minn.

Md. Firemen To Meet Here Three Days

Parade Friday Will Highlight Colorful Affair

The vanguard of some 5,000 delegates and guests to the 59th annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association which opens here today, began arriving early last night.

Following a pre-convention meeting of the state executive committee and the local convention committee last night in LaVale Fire Hall, officials said all details needed to make the three-day meeting a success have been completed.

Record Crowd

Housing accommodations have been arranged for the record crowd of visitors, with all available hotel space pressed into service and hundreds of rooms in private homes reserved.

By Friday night, when the mammoth street revue is scheduled, firemen estimate the city will be jammed with 50,000 visitors and spectators.

G. Mitchell Boulder, Elkton, state president, opened the meeting yesterday at LaVale Fire Hall and William A. Chenoweth, Pikesville, conducted the session devoted to last-minute plans for the meeting.

Dinner Served

Early last night, the Convention Committee was host to state officials and distinguished guests at a dinner served by members of the LaVale Fire Company Auxiliary.

Principal speaker was J. Millard Tawes, state comptroller and a past president of the association.

Tawes stressed the need for good government in the state association and each volunteer fire company and auxiliary.

Such friendships made at such conclaves, he said, serve to cement friendships which will have lasting effects throughout the state of Maryland.

Tawes urged that all volunteer fire associations cooperate fully with the state association and the University of Maryland to make a better fire fighting program.

Many Guests At Dinner

Nelson W. Russler, this city, served as master of ceremonies at the dinner.

Distinguished guests included Police Commissioner John J. Long, who represented the Mayor and Council of Cumberland; Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Cumberland; Mayor Jesse F. Jacobs, Frostburg; Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

Sheriff Edward R. Muir, State's Attorney Paul C. Fletcher, officers of the Allegany-Garrett Firemen's Association and members of the convention committee.

Jesse H. Simmons, Ridgeley, president of the West Virginia Firemen's Association, represented that organization.

Among those slated to speak to the convention who attended the dinner was Robert C. Byrus, head of the fire training department of the University of Iowa.

Registration Planned

Today at 9 a.m. the delegates from 251 companies will register at

Jury Decides Farmer Owes $289 On Silo

Veniremen Given Five Issues In Case

After deliberating two-and-one-half hours late yesterday afternoon a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court determined four issues in a complicated silo dispute, with the result that they decided that Harry Shafer, Washington County farmer, still owes $289.27 to the Michigan Silo Company for a silo which he purchased in 1949.

The Michigan Silo Company had filed suit for $1,200 in Washington County Circuit Court against Shafer, charging that he still owed $591.27 on the silo. In answer, Shafer had filed a $6,000 cross-suit charging that the silo was improperly constructed. As a consequence, he contended that ensilage spoiled causing the death of four of his cows and illness for others.

Removed Case

This case was removed to Allegany County Circuit Court several months ago. It was the last jury trial of the April term, which began April 2.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided, gave the jurors five issues to decide when they began their deliberations at 3:15 p.m. yesterday. It was 5:45 p. m. when they returned with their verdict.

In the first issue, the jury determined that the Michigan Silo Company erected the silo in an unworkmanlike manner or of improper materials as a result of which it would not store corn forage without an unreasonable amount of spoilage. In the second issue, the jury decided that $300 would have been the reasonable cost of correcting defects so as to put the silo in condition called for by the contract.

The jury also determined that the carelessly erected silo caused some of the ensilage to become poisonous to Shafer's cows. However, the jury also ruled that Shafer was negligent in feeding to the cows or in permitting the cows to feed upon dangerously spoiled ensilage. These were the third and fourth issues. The jurors returned no answer in the fifth issue which asked this question: At what amount do you estimate Shafer's damages, if the careless erection of the silo caused the ensilage to become poisonous?

First Of Kind

Zur W. Craine, Norwich, N. Y., executive secretary of the National Association of Silo Manufacturers, who testified Monday as an expert witness, told a reporter after the trial recessed Monday that this case marked the first time in the entire country that a farmer has sued a silo manufacturer allegeding that cattle died from eating spoiled ensilage. As a consequence a favorable verdict for Shafer would have set a precedent for the nation.

Attorneys for the silo company were David W. Byron, Hagerstown, and Thomas N. Berry, this city. The defendant was represented by Charles F. Wagaman, Hagerstown, and Edward J. Ryan, this county.

WEATHER

Cumberlanders enjoyed another summer day yesterday with the temperature climbing to the eighties. The sun shone brightly during the afternoon. The high as recorded by the weather station at Constitution Park was 80, the low 53 and at 8:15 o'clock last night the mercury stood at 74. Fair and warm weather is predicted for the opening day of the Firemen's State Convention.

B & O Orders 44 Diesel Units For Delivery In '52

Includes 39 Freights And Five Switchers

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company announces that orders have been placed for an additional 44 Diesel-Electric units. Thirty-nine of these will be freight units and five will be road switchers.

The Electro-Motive Division, General Motors Corporation, will construct 27 units, consisting of eighteen 1500 HP type "A" freight units and nine 1500 HP type "B" freight units. (Under normal conditions two "A" units are used with one "B" unit or a total of 4500 HP for handling the average freight train. The "'A' units are the operating control units.) Six of the units ordered from the Electro-Motive Division will be delivered in first quarter of 1952 and 21 units will be delivered in third quarter of 1952.

The American Locomotive Company will construct 9 units, consisting of six 1600 HP type "A" freight units and three 1600 HP type "B" freight units. Delivery is scheduled for February 1952.

The Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Company will construct a total of 8 units. Two of these units will be 1600 HP type "A" freight units and one will be a 1600 HP type "B" freight unit. The other five units ordered from this Company will be four-wheel road switchers of 1600 HP each. The freight units are scheduled for delivery in April 1952 and the switching units are scheduled for February 1952.

The Baltimore and Ohio and its subsidiaries, The Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad Company and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company, now operate a total of 631 Diesel-Electric locomotives. This total includes 66 passenger units, 292 freight units and 273 switch units.

Street Oiling Program Opens

Eastern, Riser Avenues Completed

Cumberland's street oiling program, long delayed by rains, got under way yesterday in the Lindnerville section.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said work on Eastern and Riser Avenues and several short streets was completed yesterday.

It took crews about four hours to apply the some 4,000 gallons of oil delivered on the job yesterday by an oil company trailer.

Another trailer load of oil is slated to arrive today as work continues in that area.

Work will be called off, however, in case of rain.

Officials said crews will be working in the Lindnerville section for several days.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the street oiling program will be done on a balanced scheduled in order to facilitate the work, expected to take about six weeks.

Tederick Heads Exchange Club

George H. Tederick was elected president of the Cumberland Exchange Club at a meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Other officers named for 1951 are Lewis J. Ort, vice-president, George W. Landis, secretary, John S. Crone, treasurer and Ward N. Hauger, G. W. Davis, and Karl Perry, board of directors.

An installation of officers will be held next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. A dance will be held after the dinner.

Tederick is a member of city council, commissioner of water and electric lights.

Banners and decorations were seen everywhere throughout the city yesterday as Cumberland prepared to welcome the thousands of delegates and visitors slated to be here today through Friday for the 59th annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association. At the right officials of the convention committee are seen preparing for the registration of delegates which will get under way today at 9 a. m. in the State Armory. Left to right are William A. Chenoweth, chairman of the arrangements committee; Ted C. Gardner, secretary, and Cromwell C. Zembower, state vice president. Delegates from 251 companies and 150 auxiliary units will participate in the state meeting.

Work Underway On Pasteurizing Unit At Brewery

Queen City Plant Increases Output

Preparatory construction work for the installation of a new automatic pasteurizing unit is now underway at the Bottling House of the Queen City Brewing Company, Market Street. The George F. Hazlewood Company is the contractor.

L. N. Duncan, general manager of the local brewery, yesterday said the modernization program was started the first of this month and the completion date is expected within ninety days.

The present expansion program is necessitated by a 40 per cent increase in production and employment at the local brewery has jumped from 10 to 15 per cent over last year, Duncan added.

When the new pasteurizing unit is installed the bottling process will be handled in one operation from the time the empty bottles are placed in the washing solution, filled and labeled for shipment.

The Queen City Brewing Company is now on a seven-day schedule and the bottling house has stepped up to a 13-hour day. Robert E. Hager, manager of the bottling house, said yesterday the hourly output of the present unit is 567 cases or 13,608 bottles, and with the installation of the new equipment higher production will be realized.

About 485 barrels are pumped from the brewery to the Government Cellar located under the bottling machines where the beer is kept cool at a temperature of about 33 degrees. All beer coming through the government tunnel is registered on a meter.

In the cellar six tanks with a capacity of 160 barrels and four tanks with a capacity of 80 barrels are maintained. From the tanks the product is pumped upstairs for bottling.

In one of the tanks, beer for consumption in two Virginia counties and the state of West Virginia is kept and bottled separately.

L. N. Duncan, who became general manager of the local brewery on June 1 came to Cumberland as brewmaster last November. He previously had worked in Furgus Falls, Minn.

Md. Firemen To Meet Here Three Days

Parade Friday Will Highlight Colorful Affair

The vanguard of some 5,000 delegates and guests to the 59th annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association which opens here today, began arriving early last night.

Following a pre-convention meeting of the state executive committee and the local convention committee last night in LaVale Fire Hall, officials said all details needed to make the three-day meeting a success have been completed.

Record Crowd

Housing accommodations have been arranged for the record crowd of visitors, with all available hotel space pressed into service and hundreds of rooms in private homes reserved.

By Friday night, when the mammoth street revue is scheduled, firemen estimate the city will be jammed with 50,000 visitors and spectators.

G. Mitchell Boulder, Elkton, state president, opened the meeting yesterday at LaVale Fire Hall and William A. Chenoweth, Pikesville, conducted the session devoted to last-minute plans for the meeting.

Dinner Served

Early last night, the Convention Committee was host to state officials and distinguished guests at a dinner served by members of the LaVale Fire Company Auxiliary.

Principal speaker was J. Millard Tawes, state comptroller and a past president of the association.

Tawes stressed the need for good government in the state association and each volunteer fire company and auxiliary.

Such friendships made at such conclaves, he said, serve to cement friendships which will have lasting effects throughout the state of Maryland.

Tawes urged that all volunteer fire associations cooperate fully with the state association and the University of Maryland to make a better fire fighting program.

Many Guests At Dinner

Nelson W. Russler, this city, served as master of ceremonies at the dinner.

Distinguished guests included Police Commissioner John J. Long, who represented the Mayor and Council of Cumberland; Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Cumberland; Mayor Jesse F. Jacobs, Frostburg; Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

Sheriff Edward R. Muir, State's Attorney Paul C. Fletcher, officers of the Allegany-Garrett Firemen's Association and members of the convention committee.

Jesse H. Simmons, Ridgeley, president of the West Virginia Firemen's Association, represented that organization.

Among those slated to speak to the convention who attended the dinner was Robert C. Byrus, head of the fire training department of the University of Iowa.

Registration Planned

Today at 9 a.m. the delegates from 251 companies will register at

Jury Decides Farmer Owes $289 On Silo

Veniremen Given Five Issues In Case

After deliberating two-and-one-half hours late yesterday afternoon a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court determined four issues in a complicated silo dispute, with the result that they decided that Harry Shafer, Washington County farmer, still owes $289.27 to the Michigan Silo Company for a silo which he purchased in 1949.

The Michigan Silo Company had filed suit for $1,200 in Washington County Circuit Court against Shafer, charging that he still owed $591.27 on the silo. In answer, Shafer had filed a $6,000 cross-suit charging that the silo was improperly constructed. As a consequence, he contended that ensilage spoiled causing the death of four of his cows and illness for others.

Removed Case

This case was removed to Allegany County Circuit Court several months ago. It was the last jury trial of the April term, which began April 2.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided, gave the jurors five issues to decide when they began their deliberations at 3:15 p.m. yesterday. It was 5:45 p. m. when they returned with their verdict.

In the first issue, the jury determined that the Michigan Silo Company erected the silo in an unworkmanlike manner or of improper materials as a result of which it would not store corn forage without an unreasonable amount of spoilage. In the second issue, the jury decided that $300 would have been the reasonable cost of correcting defects so as to put the silo in condition called for by the contract.

The jury also determined that the carelessly erected silo caused some of the ensilage to become poisonous to Shafer's cows. However, the jury also ruled that Shafer was negligent in feeding to the cows or in permitting the cows to feed upon dangerously spoiled ensilage. These were the third and fourth issues. The jurors returned no answer in the fifth issue which asked this question: At what amount do you estimate Shafer's damages, if the careless erection of the silo caused the ensilage to become poisonous?

First Of Kind

Zur W. Craine, Norwich, N. Y., executive secretary of the National Association of Silo Manufacturers, who testified Monday as an expert witness, told a reporter after the trial recessed Monday that this case marked the first time in the entire country that a farmer has sued a silo manufacturer allegeding that cattle died from eating spoiled ensilage. As a consequence a favorable verdict for Shafer would have set a precedent for the nation.

Attorneys for the silo company were David W. Byron, Hagerstown, and Thomas N. Berry, this city. The defendant was represented by Charles F. Wagaman, Hagerstown, and Edward J. Ryan, this county.

WEATHER

Cumberlanders enjoyed another summer day yesterday with the temperature climbing to the eighties. The sun shone brightly during the afternoon. The high as recorded by the weather station at Constitution Park was 80, the low 53 and at 8:15 o'clock last night the mercury stood at 74. Fair and warm weather is predicted for the opening day of the Firemen's State Convention.

B & O Orders 44 Diesel Units For Delivery In '52

Includes 39 Freights And Five Switchers

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company announces that orders have been placed for an additional 44 Diesel-Electric units. Thirty-nine of these will be freight units and five will be road switchers.

The Electro-Motive Division, General Motors Corporation, will construct 27 units, consisting of eighteen 1500 HP type "A" freight units and nine 1500 HP type "B" freight units. (Under normal conditions two "A" units are used with one "B" unit or a total of 4500 HP for handling the average freight train. The "A' units are the operating control units.) Six of the units ordered from the Electro-Motive Division will be delivered in first quarter of 1952 and 21 units will be delivered in third quarter of 1952.

The American Locomotive Company will construct 9 units, consisting of six 1600 HP type "A" freight units and three 1600 HP type "B" freight units. Delivery is scheduled for February 1952.

The Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Company will construct a total of 8 units. Two of these units will be 1600 HP type "A" freight units and one will be a 1600 HP type "B" freight unit. The other five units ordered from this Company will be four-wheel road switchers of 1600 HP each. The freight units are scheduled for delivery in April 1952 and the switching units are scheduled for February 1952.

The Baltimore and Ohio and its subsidiaries, The Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad Company and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company, now operate a total of 631 Diesel-Electric locomotives. This total includes 66 passenger units, 292 freight units and 273 switch units.

Street Oiling Program Opens

Eastern, Riser Avenues Completed

Cumberland's street oiling program, long delayed by rains, got under way yesterday in the Lindnerville section.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said work on Eastern and Riser Avenues and several short streets was completed yesterday.

It took crews about four hours to apply the some 4,000 gallons of oil delivered on the job yesterday by an oil company trailer.

Another trailer load of oil is slated to arrive today as work continues in that area.

Work will be called off, however, in case of rain.

Officials said crews will be working in the Lindnerville section for several days.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the street oiling program will be done on a balanced scheduled in order to facilitate the work, expected to take about six weeks.

Tederick Heads Exchange Club

George H. Tederick was elected president of the Cumberland Exchange Club at a meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Other officers named for 1951 are Lewis J. Ort, vice-president, George W. Landis, secretary, John S. Crone, treasurer and Ward N. Hauger, G. W. Davis, and Karl Perry, board of directors.

An installation of officers will be held next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. A dance will be held after the dinner.

Tederick is a member of city council, commissioner of water and electric lights.

Banners and decorations were seen everywhere throughout the city yesterday as Cumberland prepared to welcome the thousands of delegates and visitors slated to be here today through Friday for the 59th annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association. At the right officials of the convention committee are seen preparing for the registration of delegates which will get under way today at 9 a. m. in the State Armory. Left to right are William A. Chenoweth, chairman of the arrangements committee; Ted C. Gardner, secretary, and Cromwell C. Zembower, state vice president. Delegates from 251 companies and 150 auxiliary units will participate in the state meeting.
